Closed-Door Hearing Voted For M'Arthur

GOP Raises Cry Of 'Terrible Injustice'

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP) — Democratic senators rode down Republican protests today and decreed a closed-door hearing for Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

MacArthur will testify Thursday about his dismissal as Far Eastern commander and the host of foreign policy questions his ouster raised.

The Senate Armed Service and Foreign Relations Committees, set for a joint investigation with MacArthur as the first witness, voted 14 to 9 today to bar the public from the hearings.

Russell To Preside

Chairman Russell (D-Ga) of the Armed Services Committee, who will preside at the hearings, said closed-door hearings were necessary to prevent military secrets from being leaked.

MacArthur plans to fly here from New York to give his testimony and to return to New York late Thursday.

His spokesman, Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney, declined direct comment on the committees' action but said MacArthur will respond to whatever request the committees make.

Whitney was with MacArthur in Murfreesboro, Tenn.

The hearings will bring to a new climax the "Great Debate" on how the U. S. should conduct the war against the Chinese Communists and erect barriers against further Communist aggression at the same time.

Two architects of opposing policies, Secretary of State Acheson and Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), drew the line of conflict clearer today in speeches to the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

Taft Urges "Aggressive War"

Acheson claimed successes for his limit-the-war policy in Korea and declared that the best chance of real victory lies in holding firm to that policy.

Senate Democratic Leader McFarland of Arizona, meanwhile, said after a White House briefing that the situation in Korea "didn't seem to look so black."

"The withdrawals seem to be orderly," McFarland told reporters without elaborating. He and other congressional leaders were given a private military report on the Korean situation at their regular weekly meeting with President Truman.

Union Labor Leaders Vote To End Two-Month Boycott Of Key Defense Agencies

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—The United Labor Policy Committee today ended its quarrel with mobilization officials and expressed the view that its two-month boycott of defense agencies would benefit the American people.

The committee, representing 15,000,000 members of the AFL, CIO, and most railroad workers, voted unanimously to return immediately to the agency posts they vacated in February.

The labor walkout from the Wage Stabilization Board on Feb. 16 collapsed that panel. A new one, twice the size of the first agency, is to be reconstituted this week under the chairmanship of Professor George W. Taylor of the University of Pennsylvania. The labor unions will be represented by six members, as will management and the public.

In addition, the ULPC will place a top adviser in the office of Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson—who had been the chief traget of the union leaders in their running battle with the mobilization agencies over a voice in policy.

George M. Harrison, president of the AFL railway clerks, a vice president of the AFL and friend of Presidents Truman and Roosevelt, will become an advisory assistant to Wilson.

Nominated by the CIO for a similar post in the office of Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston was David J. McDonald, secretary-treasurer of the CIO steelworkers.

Similar advisory jobs will be filled later in the office of Price Stabilizer Michael V. DiSalle and the National Production Authority.

The Wage Stabilization Board will have as its labor members the following:

For the CIO—Emil Rieve of the textile workers, John A. Livingston of the United Auto Workers, and Joseph A. Beirne of the communications workers.

The ULPC decided to also assign Eli Oliver, a special lawyer-research expert for the AFL and railroad unions, as the chief consultant to the labor members and also their alternate on occasions.

Symington OK'd As Head Of RFC

WASHINGTON, April 30 (INS)—The Senate today approved W. Stuart Symington as head of the reorganized Reconstruction Finance Corp., while former President Herbert Hoover and ex-Commerce Secretary Jesse Jones urged Congress to kill the much-criticized lending agency.

Final action on Symington was taken by a voice vote. He will be the first to direct the agency since Congress approved the RFC reorganization under which a single administrator replaces the five-man board.

Hoover appeared before the committee today and was critical of RFC loans to hotels, beverage makers, beauty parlors, poolrooms and "a snake farm." He said it is difficult to see what public interest would be served by such credits "at the taxpayers' risk."

Chiang Urges Chinese Revolt; Promises Aid

TAIPEH, Formosa, Tuesday, May 1 (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek today urged workers in Red China to revolt and promised "in the near future I shall come to your rescue and deliver you from your suffering."

The Chinese Nationalist leader's declaration was made in a May Day message.

He charged the Chinese Reds had "sent workers by thousands to Siberia to work as slave laborers for the Soviet imperialists" and "they have also sent laborers by the thousands to Korea, to serve as cannon fodder for the Soviet imperialists."

Ill Draftee, Smuggled From Camp, In Serious Condition

CHICAGO, April 30 (AP)—A draftee whose family smuggled him out of an Army camp because he said he was not receiving proper medical attention was described today as in serious condition.

The soldier, Pvt. Stanley Amborski, 21, was brought to Chicago by his family from Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., Sunday. The father, John Amborski, 45, a printing company inspector, said he had received two letters from Stanley complaining that he was ill and unable to get proper medical attention at the camp.

The camp commander, Brig. Gen. Samuel D. Sturgis, Jr., said records there showed the soldier had been treated by medical officers on four different days between April 12 and 27.

Amborski said the second letter from his son said: "Get me out Dad. I'm going to fall dead soon."

Upon their arrival home, Amborski called in the family physician who said the soldier was suffering from peritonitis. But at naval training hospital, his illness was diagnosed as pneumonia in both lungs.

Gen. Sturgis said "Private Amborski, of course, is absent without leave. His case is being thoroughly investigated and any action taken will depend upon the outcome of this investigation."

The elder Amborski, his wife, Stanley's wife, and the sick youth's brother and three sisters drove to Fort Leonard Wood Saturday. The father said his son appeared very ill. The family talked to a chaplain and a sergeant in Amborski's company, then went to a tourist camp where they planned to smuggle the soldier home Sunday.

They dressed him in civilian clothing in a patch of woods on the reservation, then drove him out of camp without any challenge from military policemen on guard at the gate.

Groups Branded Subversive Have Right To Hearing

Government Lashed By Supreme Court

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—The Supreme Court lashed out at the government today for branding organizations as Communist without a hearing. It threw a legal cloud over the government's listing of 159 organizations as subversive, until the charges are proved.

But, by a tie vote in another case, the court upheld the right of the government to fire, without a trial, an employe suspected of disloyalty.

Five-To-Three Vote

By a five-three vote, the justices ruled organizations listed as subversive by the Attorney General must be given the right to a hearing. Each of the five in the majority wrote a separate opinion.

Four of these stingingly accused the government of violating basic rights in denying such a hearing. Two of the four, Justices Douglas and Black, declared the entire government loyalty program is unconstitutional; the others didn't rule on that point.

Douglas said the issue is "one of the gravest of our generation" and that the government's action illustrated a trend in times of tension to "set in motion a subversive influence of our own design that destroys us from within."

"Tyrannical Practices"

Black described the government's loyalty program as "tyrannical practices" smacking of "a most evil type of censorship."

Three organizations listed as subversive appealed to the courts. They said they were peaceful, charitable or business groups and the government's action in branding them subversive, without a hearing was unconstitutional.

Two lower courts dismissed the appeal but the Supreme Court, by its five-three vote, ruled the groups are entitled to a hearing and ordered the district court here to give them one.

The organizations are the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee of New York, the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, Inc., Washington, and the International Workers Order, Inc., of New York.

GIs Reported Killed By Own Troops' Fire

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—Sen. Case (R-SD) relayed to Secretary of Defense Marshall today a report that American soldiers in Korea have been killed and wounded by artillery and mortar fire from their own troops.

The report came, Case said, from 15 soldiers who signed and sent to him a petition protesting the conditions under which they are fighting in Korea.

The soldiers said, Case related, that they were fired upon by their own troops on three occasions. On April 6, they reported, four of their fellow soldiers were killed and nine wounded. They did not say what casualties, if any, were inflicted the other two times.

Truman Declares $60 Billion Arms Fund Vital For Security

President Warns Russia Of What She May Expect If She Elects To Spread Conflict

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—President Truman told Congress today the nation needs a $60 billion military budget to continue arming for the general war Russia may thrust upon the world.

He said the $60,679,414,690 he estimated for the fiscal year beginning next July 1 was "essential to our national security" because:

"The outbreak of aggression, the threat of general war that overhangs the world, make it imperative to increase our defenses rapidly and efficiently."

The President put into his message a warning of what Russia may expect if she elects to spread the war beyond the confines of the Korean conflict. He said:

"If the Soviet Union chooses to unleash a general war, the free world must be in a position to stop the attack and strike back decisively and at once at the seats of Soviet power."

Russia Willing To Risk War

Mr. Truman said "the aggression in Korea showed the Soviet rulers were willing to push the world to the brink of a general war to get what they wanted."

Emphasizing a point he had made in his arguments for firing Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the President declared that "we want to keep the conflict in Korea from spreading, if possible, because we are trying to stop aggression without starting a third world war." (He had contended in his MacArthur-firing statement that some of the Korean war strategy ascribed to MacArthur might bring Russia into the Asiatic conflict and start general war.)

How the U. S. and its associates would "strike back decisively at the center of the enemy's power" should Russia choose war Mr. Truman did not state precisely. But the terms of his military spending plan contained some broad hints.

$14.4 Billion For Planes

Among other things, he proposed an outlay of $14,400,000,000 for procurement of planes. These Air Force and naval planes, added to those already ordered or actually being delivered, are intended to give the U. S. the air power to reach into the heart of Russia while at the same time providing a defensive system against Soviet air attack on the U. S.

For the ground and naval forces which would press home such attack along the surface the President recommended $20,200,000,000 more in such things as ships, tanks, artillery, ammunition, guided missiles and the electronic gadgets used in locating and killing an enemy.

The Army would receive the largest chunk of the 1952 budget. The services' share of the budget would be this:

Army $20.8 billion; Navy $15.5; Air Force $19.8.

To this would be added $4.5 billion for military public works—construction of airfields, bases, buildings—and $500,000,000 for the operations of the Defense Department itself.

Iranian Senate Votes Seizure Of Oil Industry

Legislative Action On Bill Completed

TEHRAN, Iran, April 30 (AP)—Iran's Senate followed through meekly tonight with a unanimous vote (44-0) for nationalization of the country's oil wealth, which will be taken over immediately from the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Company.

The new Premier, Mohammed Mossadegh, had had no doubt the Senate would comply with demands of his small nationalist bloc that the properties of the $500,000,000 firm be transferred to government ownership.

Speaks Before Senate Vote

He spoke long before the Senate vote as if legislative action had been completed on the oil nationalization bill.

Mossadegh, who took over the Premier's office even before his appointment had been signed by the reluctant Shah, made a speech seeking to restore calm in Tehran and appealing for an orderly May Day celebration tomorrow.

In his five-minute speech he gave no hints of his program, but declared:

"By the will of God and the cooperation of both houses of parliament, our largest source of national wealth has been returned to the nation. All of us are sure that if this huge wealth is used correctly our nation can in the future live with utmost comfort and ease."

Critic Faces First Test

Widespread leftist demonstrations planned for tomorrow, the international labor day, may present the lifelong critic—now unexpectedly in a position of responsibility—with his first test.

Mossadegh declined to enforce a ban on mass demonstrations in parliament square that was called by the underground Communist Party. The ban had been ordered by the government of Premier Hussein Ala, who resigned Friday night. But Mossadegh urged that the demonstration be peaceful.

Vogeler On Final Leg Of Trip Home

LONDON, April 30 (AP)—Robert A. Vogeler, whisked from behind the iron curtain with State Department secrecy, took off with his family tonight on the last leg of a homebound flight to the United States.

The 39-year-old American businessman was still jittery from the 17-month ordeal which ended Saturday with his release from a prison in Red Hungary and his return to his home in Vienna.

Fearful of Communist vengeance in that city in the middle of the Soviet zone of Austria, Vogeler was secretly hustled to Tulln airport outside Vienna today in the automobile of the U. S. High Commissioner, Walter J. Donnelly, and put aboard a Pan American Airways plan.

He was protected during the 35-mile drive by the blue and white-starred diplomatic flag of the commissioner.

The airliner landed briefly at Munich and Frankfurt, Germany, where it was closely guarded by U. S. military police with submachine-guns. At Frankfurt the plane was taken over on charter by the State Department to catch the regular Stratocruiser to New York from London.

The plane was due in New York at 8:10 a. m. (EST) Tuesday.

Senate To Get Crime Probe Report Today

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—The Senate Crime Committee began sending to the printer late today the final draft of its report on its year-long investigation of the underworld.

Chairman Kefauver (D-Tenn) said the finished document is expected back from the printer in mid-morning tomorrow and will be presented to the Senate at noon.

Small Retail Food Price Drop Noted

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP) — Retail food prices declined slightly in the last two weeks of March, largely because of small drops in fresh fruit and vegetable prices, the Bureau of Labor Statistics estimated today.

For the second time since the wage-price freeze of January 25, there was a falling off in the retail food price index kept by the bureau. The index declined 0.3 per cent between March 15 and March 26—from 226.2 to 225.4. The period from 1935 to 1939 is regarded as 100.

The March 25 index was about 11 per cent above that of last June, before the Korean fighting began, and 14 per cent above a year ago.

Brehm Convicted Of Taking Illegal Contributions

Ohio Congressman Will Seek New Trial

A federal court jury of ten men and two women returned its verdict after deliberating about four hours and 20 minutes.

Acquitted On One Count

Another count alleging a $240 contribution from Mrs. Soliday had been dropped earlier in the trial.

Brehm, who is serving his fifth term in the House from the 11th Ohio District, faces a maximum possible sentence of 15 years in prison and a fine of $25,000. However, maximum penalties are seldom imposed in a multi-count conviction.

His attorney, Leo A. Rover, told reporters he will ask for a new trial and, failing in that motion, will appeal to higher courts.

Judge Burnita S. Matthews did not announce immediately when Brehm will be sentenced. A sentence ordinarily is not imposed until the motion for a new trial has been disposed of.

Shows No Emotion

The Congressman stood with both hands jammed in his coat pockets as Jury Foreman B. Richard Breslar, a restaurant operator, announced the verdict.

Asked for comment, he said: "I haven't a word to say."

Mrs. Brehm broke down and cried shortly after the verdict was announced. She buried her head in Rover's shoulder as he tried to comfort her. Brehm walked over patted his wife on the back and said, "it's all right, honey."

General's Lady Receives Plaudits Of Her Home Town

MURFREESBORO, Tenn., April 30 (AP)—This old Civil War town roared out a loud and lusty welcome today to Jean Faircloth MacArthur, the hometown girl who became the General's lady.

It was her day from the moment she stepped into the arms of eager friends and relatives. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, whose bride she became 14 years ago today, stood aside with son Arthur while she graciously and smilingly received the plaudits.

The MacArthurs flew down from New York in the Constellation Bataan for their brief half-day visit. They landed at nearby Sewart Air Force Base at 10:58 a. m. (CST) and went through a fast schedule before starting the return flight to New York.

This was the five-star General's first visit to his wife's former home. And, like any other husband brought home to see the folks, he behaved the part. While the spotlight—and a broiling southern sun—fell on Mrs. MacArthur, he stood in the background and spoke happily of the occasion as "a second honeymoon."

A motorcade brought the MacArthurs the 12 miles from the air base to Murfreesboro through long lines of merrymakers waving Confederate and American flags.

In Murfreesboro itself they found a county fair atmosphere. The crowd here, estimated at 50,000, was probably the biggest since 81,000 northern and southern troops—including MacArthur's father and Mrs. MacArthur's grandfather — fought the Civil War battle of Murfreesboro.

Enemy Troops Slacken Pace North Of Seoul

Chinese Hit Hard By Triple Allied Blows

TOKYO, Tuesday, May 1. (AP)—The Communist spring offensive appeared to have come to a dead stop in Korea today.

By the late forenoon an expected Red May Day push either had bogged down or had been contained by the Allied defense.

Fighting died down on all fronts. There were indications that the Reds were shifting their main force east of blackened Seoul, the Korean capital.

The Reds had been expected to attack the city frontally in a May Day assault. But during the night the 20,000 Communists just north of Seoul slackened their pace.

They had been hard hit by massed Allied guns; by warships shelling from 12 miles away; and by record-smashing flights of Far East Air Force planes.

Record 1,270 Sorties Flown

AP Correspondent John Randolph reported that Chinese forces closest to Seoul on Monday seemed to shrink back a little, avoiding contact whenever possible with aggressive Allied tank-infantry patrols.

High Allied officers did not regard this as any sign of a Chinese change of heart, Randolph said. They put it down simply to the Reds backing away from Seoul's devastating artillery barrage.

Three Allied tank columns probed northward from Seoul on Monday and tank-supported infantrymen fought light skirmishes with the Reds before retiring safely to U. N. perimeter lines. One force reported 1,000 Communists killed by artillery fire.

They brought back 14 ragged and hungry prisoners.

The Communist radio at Pyongyang said Monday night the Red forces were five to six miles north of Seoul.

There was no Allied confirmation of this enemy report.

Randolph concluded the Reds definitely would not be able to celebrate the May 1 labor festival—a red-letter day for world Communism—by marching past the gilded dome of Seoul's battered capitol.

2,000 Shells An Hour

The only parades in Seoul today were Allied soldiers moving to the front and big trucks hauling ammunition for the never quiet guns.

Massed artillery pounded Red troops in the hills north of Seoul at the rate of almost 2,000 shells an hour. On Sunday alone a total of 45,709 projectiles were fired into the Red positions.

The U. S. heavy cruiser Toledo and other Allied warships added to this barrage with off-shore bombardments from the west coast, north of Inchon.

Despite this concentrated fire, the Chinese were kept moving. Their heaviest activity was in the west, but there also were reports of increased buildups facing the center of Allied line and to the east.

Pilots spotted more than 3,000 Communist vehicles in a 20 miles stretch of highway north of Uijongbu, the ruined highway junction 14 air miles north of Seoul.

Lodge Says USSR Superior In Air

Washington, April 30 (AP)—Sen. Lodge (R-Mass) said today it is a "staggering fact" that air superiority as well as land superiority lies with the Soviet Union. He declared that "we court national disaster" unless this country increases its Air Force to a minimum of 150 groups.

In a major foreign policy speech, Lodge declared that the U. S. is ahead of Russia only in the quality of its long-range bombers and in the number of atomic bombs.

"On this single fact our security hangs by a delicate thread," he said. "The cold, brutal fact is x x x that the United States does not have air supremacy, air superiority or anything like it."

Lodge, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told the Senate that the administration's present target of 95 air groups is far below the safety level.

Congress, he said, "has always been willing to appropriate more for national defense that has been requested for it."

TAIPEH, Formosa, Tuesday, May 1 (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek today urged workers in Red China to revolt and promised "in the near future I shall come to your rescue and deliver you from your suffering."

The Chinese Nationalist leader's declaration was made in a May Day message.

He charged the Chinese Reds had "sent workers by thousands to Siberia to work as slave laborers for the Soviet imperialists" and "they have also sent laborers by the thousands to Korea, to serve as cannon fodder for the Soviet imperialists."

CHICAGO, April 30 (AP)—A draftee whose family smuggled him out of an Army camp because he said he was not receiving proper medical attention was described today as in serious condition.

The soldier, Pvt. Stanley Amborski, 21, was brought to Chicago by his family from Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., Sunday. The father, John Amborski, 45, a printing company inspector, said he had received two letters from Stanley complaining that he was ill and unable to get proper medical attention at the camp.

The camp commander, Brig. Gen. Samuel D. Sturgis, Jr., said records there showed the soldier had been treated by medical officers on four different days between April 12 and 27.

Amborski said the second letter from his son said: "Get me out Dad. I'm going to fall dead soon."

Upon their arrival home, Amborski called in the family physician who said the soldier was suffering from peritonitis. But at naval training hospital, his illness was diagnosed as pneumonia in both lungs.

Gen. Sturgis said "Private Amborski, of course, is absent without leave. His case is being thoroughly investigated and any action taken will depend upon the outcome of this investigation."

The elder Amborski, his wife, Stanley's wife, and the sick youth's brother and three sisters drove to Fort Leonard Wood Saturday. The father said his son appeared very ill. The family talked to a chaplain and a sergeant in Amborski's company, then went to a tourist camp where they planned to smuggle the soldier home Sunday.

They dressed him in civilian clothing in a patch of woods on the reservation, then drove him out of camp without any challenge from military policemen on guard at the gate.

Groups Branded Subversive Have Right To Hearing

Government Lashed By Supreme Court

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—The Supreme Court lashed out at the government today for branding organizations as Communist without a hearing. It threw a legal cloud over the government's listing of 159 organizations as subversive, until the charges are proved.

But, by a tie vote in another case, the court upheld the right of the government to fire, without a trial, an employe suspected of disloyalty.

Five-To-Three Vote

By a five-three vote, the justices ruled organizations listed as subversive by the Attorney General must be given the right to a hearing. Each of the five in the majority wrote a separate opinion.

Four of these stingingly accused the government of violating basic rights in denying such a hearing. Two of the four, Justices Douglas and Black, declared the entire government loyalty program is unconstitutional; the others didn't rule on that point.

Douglas said the issue is "one of the gravest of our generation" and that the government's action illustrated a trend in times of tension to "set in motion a subversive influence of our own design that destroys us from within."

"Tyrannical Practices"

Black described the government's loyalty program as "tyrannical practices" smacking of "a most evil type of censorship."

Three organizations listed as subversive appealed to the courts. They said they were peaceful, charitable or business groups and the government's action in branding them subversive, without a hearing was unconstitutional.

Two lower courts dismissed the appeal but the Supreme Court, by its five-three vote, ruled the groups are entitled to a hearing and ordered the district court here to give them one.

The organizations are the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee of New York, the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, Inc., Washington, and the International Workers Order, Inc., of New York.

GIs Reported Killed By Own Troops' Fire

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—Sen. Case (R-SD) relayed to Secretary of Defense Marshall today a report that American soldiers in Korea have been killed and wounded by artillery and mortar fire from their own troops.

The report came, Case said, from 15 soldiers who signed and sent to him a petition protesting the conditions under which they are fighting in Korea.

The soldiers said, Case related, that they were fired upon by their own troops on three occasions. On April 6, they reported, four of their fellow soldiers were killed and nine wounded. They did not say what casualties, if any, were inflicted the other two times.

Truman Declares $60 Billion Arms Fund Vital For Security

President Warns Russia Of What She May Expect If She Elects To Spread Conflict

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—President Truman told Congress today the nation needs a $60 billion military budget to continue arming for the general war Russia may thrust upon the world.

He said the $60,679,414,690 he estimated for the fiscal year beginning next July 1 was "essential to our national security" because:

"The outbreak of aggression, the threat of general war that overhangs the world, make it imperative to increase our defenses rapidly and efficiently."

The President put into his message a warning of what Russia may expect if she elects to spread the war beyond the confines of the Korean conflict. He said:

"If the Soviet Union chooses to unleash a general war, the free world must be in a position to stop the attack and strike back decisively and at once at the seats of Soviet power."

Russia Willing To Risk War

Mr. Truman said "the aggression in Korea showed the Soviet rulers were willing to push the world to the brink of a general war to get what they wanted."

Emphasizing a point he had made in his arguments for firing Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the President declared that "we want to keep the conflict in Korea from spreading, if possible, because we are trying to stop aggression without starting a third world war." (He had contended in his MacArthur-firing statement that some of the Korean war strategy ascribed to MacArthur might bring Russia into the Asiatic conflict and start general war.)

How the U. S. and its associates would "strike back decisively at the center of the enemy's power" should Russia choose war Mr. Truman did not state precisely. But the terms of his military spending plan contained some broad hints.

$14.4 Billion For Planes

Among other things, he proposed an outlay of $14,400,000,000 for procurement of planes. These Air Force and naval planes, added to those already ordered or actually being delivered, are intended to give the U. S. the air power to reach into the heart of Russia while at the same time providing a defensive system against Soviet air attack on the U. S.

For the ground and naval forces which would press home such attack along the surface the President recommended $20,200,000,000 more in such things as ships, tanks, artillery, ammunition, guided missiles and the electronic gadgets used in locating and killing an enemy.

The Army would receive the largest chunk of the 1952 budget. The services' share of the budget would be this:

Army $20.8 billion; Navy $15.5; Air Force $19.8.

To this would be added $4.5 billion for military public works—construction of airfields, bases, buildings—and $500,000,000 for the operations of the Defense Department itself.

Iranian Senate Votes Seizure Of Oil Industry

Legislative Action On Bill Completed

TEHRAN, Iran, April 30 (AP)—Iran's Senate followed through meekly tonight with a unanimous vote (44-0) for nationalization of the country's oil wealth, which will be taken over immediately from the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Company.

The new Premier, Mohammed Mossadegh, had had no doubt the Senate would comply with demands of his small nationalist bloc that the properties of the $500,000,000 firm be transferred to government ownership.

Speaks Before Senate Vote

He spoke long before the Senate vote as if legislative action had been completed on the oil nationalization bill.

Mossadegh, who took over the Premier's office even before his appointment had been signed by the reluctant Shah, made a speech seeking to restore calm in Tehran and appealing for an orderly May Day celebration tomorrow.

In his five-minute speech he gave no hints of his program, but declared:

"By the will of God and the cooperation of both houses of parliament, our largest source of national wealth has been returned to the nation. All of us are sure that if this huge wealth is used correctly our nation can in the future live with utmost comfort and ease."

Critic Faces First Test

Widespread leftist demonstrations planned for tomorrow, the international labor day, may present the lifelong critic—now unexpectedly in a position of responsibility—with his first test.

Mossadegh declined to enforce a ban on mass demonstrations in parliament square that was called by the underground Communist Party. The ban had been ordered by the government of Premier Hussein Ala, who resigned Friday night. But Mossadegh urged that the demonstration be peaceful.

Vogeler On Final Leg Of Trip Home

LONDON, April 30 (AP)—Robert A. Vogeler, whisked from behind the iron curtain with State Department secrecy, took off with his family tonight on the last leg of a homebound flight to the United States.

The 39-year-old American businessman was still jittery from the 17-month ordeal which ended Saturday with his release from a prison in Red Hungary and his return to his home in Vienna.

Fearful of Communist vengeance in that city in the middle of the Soviet zone of Austria, Vogeler was secretly hustled to Tulln airport outside Vienna today in the automobile of the U. S. High Commissioner, Walter J. Donnelly, and put aboard a Pan American Airways plan.

He was protected during the 35-mile drive by the blue and white-starred diplomatic flag of the commissioner.

The airliner landed briefly at Munich and Frankfurt, Germany, where it was closely guarded by U. S. military police with submachine-guns. At Frankfurt the plane was taken over on charter by the State Department to catch the regular Stratocruiser to New York from London.

The plane was due in New York at 8:10 a. m. (EST) Tuesday.

Senate To Get Crime Probe Report Today

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—The Senate Crime Committee began sending to the printer late today the final draft of its report on its year-long investigation of the underworld.

Chairman Kefauver (D-Tenn) said the finished document is expected back from the printer in mid-morning tomorrow and will be presented to the Senate at noon.

Small Retail Food Price Drop Noted

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—Retail food prices declined slightly in the last two weeks of March, largely because of small drops in fresh fruit and vegetable prices, the Bureau of Labor Statistics estimated today.

For the second time since the wage-price freeze of January 25, there was a falling off in the retail food price index kept by the bureau. The index declined 0.3 per cent between March 15 and March 26—from 226.2 to 225.4. The period from 1935 to 1939 is regarded as 100.

The March 25 index was about 11 per cent above that of last June, before the Korean fighting began, and 14 per cent above a year ago.

General's Lady Receives Plaudits Of Her Home Town

MURFREESBORO, Tenn., April 30 (AP)—This old Civil War town roared out a loud and lusty welcome today to Jean Faircloth MacArthur, the hometown girl who became the General's lady.

It was her day from the moment she stepped into the arms of eager friends and relatives. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, whose bride she became 14 years ago today, stood aside with son Arthur while she graciously and smilingly received the plaudits.

The MacArthurs flew down from New York in the Constellation Bataan for their brief half-day visit. They landed at nearby Sewart Air Force Base at 10:58 a. m. (CST) and went through a fast schedule before starting the return flight to New York.

This was the five-star General's first visit to his wife's former home. And, like any other husband brought home to see the folks, he behaved the part. While the spotlight—and a broiling southern sun—fell on Mrs. MacArthur, he stood in the background and spoke happily of the occasion as "a second honeymoon."

A motorcade brought the MacArthurs the 12 miles from the air base to Murfreesboro through long lines of merrymakers waving Confederate and American flags.

In Murfreesboro itself they found a county fair atmosphere. The crowd here, estimated at 50,000, was probably the biggest since 81,000 northern and southern troops—including MacArthur's father and Mrs. MacArthur's grandfather—fought the Civil War battle of Murfreesboro.

Brehm Convicted Of Taking Illegal Contributions

Ohio Congressman Will Seek New Trial

A federal court jury of ten men and two women returned its verdict after deliberating about four hours and 20 minutes.

Acquitted On One Count

Another count alleging a $240 contribution from Mrs. Soliday had been dropped earlier in the trial.

Brehm, who is serving his fifth term in the House from the 11th Ohio District, faces a maximum possible sentence of 15 years in prison and a fine of $25,000. However, maximum penalties are seldom imposed in a multi-count conviction.

His attorney, Leo A. Rover, told reporters he will ask for a new trial and, failing in that motion, will appeal to higher courts.

Judge Burnita S. Matthews did not announce immediately when Brehm will be sentenced. A sentence ordinarily is not imposed until the motion for a new trial has been disposed of.

Shows No Emotion

The Congressman stood with both hands jammed in his coat pockets as Jury Foreman B. Richard Breslar, a restaurant operator, announced the verdict.

Asked for comment, he said:

"I haven't a word to say."

Mrs. Brehm broke down and cried shortly after the verdict was announced. She buried her head in Rover's shoulder as he tried to comfort her. Brehm walked over patted his wife on the back and said, "it's all right, honey."

Enemy Troops Slacken Pace North Of Seoul

Chinese Hit Hard By Triple Allied Blows

TOKYO, Tuesday, May 1. (AP)—The Communist spring offensive appeared to have come to a dead stop in Korea today.

By the late forenoon an expected Red May Day push either had bogged down or had been contained by the Allied defense.

Fighting died down on all fronts. There were indications that the Reds were shifting their main force east of blackened Seoul, the Korean capital.

The Reds had been expected to attack the city frontally in a May Day assault. But during the night the 20,000 Communists just north of Seoul slackened their pace.

They had been hard hit by massed Allied guns; by warships shelling from 12 miles away; and by record-smashing flights of Far East Air Force planes.

Record 1,270 Sorties Flown

AP Correspondent John Randolph reported that Chinese forces closest to Seoul on Monday seemed to shrink back a little, avoiding contact whenever possible with aggressive Allied tank-infantry patrols.

High Allied officers did not regard this as any sign of a Chinese change of heart, Randolph said. They put it down simply to the Reds backing away from Seoul's devastating artillery barrage.

Three Allied tank columns probed northward from Seoul on Monday and tank-supported infantrymen fought light skirmishes with the Reds before retiring safely to U. N. perimeter lines. One force reported 1,000 Communists killed by artillery fire.

They brought back 14 ragged and hungry prisoners.

The Communist radic at Pyongyang said Monday night the Red forces were five to six miles north of Seoul.

There was no Allied confirmation of this enemy report.

Randolph concluded the Reds definitely would not be able to celebrate the May 1 labor festival—a red-letter day for world Communism—by marching past the gilded dome of Seoul's battered capitol.

2,000 Shells An Hour

The only parades in Seoul today were Allied soldiers moving to the front and big trucks hauling ammunition for the never quiet guns.

Massed artillery pounded Red troops in the hills north of Seoul at the rate of almost 2,000 shells an hour. On Sunday alone a total of 45,709 projectiles were fired into the Red positions.

The U. S. heavy cruiser Toledo and other Allied warships added to this barrage with off-shore bombardments from the west coast, north of Inchon.

Despite this concentrated fire, the Chinese were kept moving. Their heaviest activity was in the west, but there also were reports of increased buildups facing the center of Allied line and to the east.

Pilots spotted more than 3,000 Communist vehicles in a 20 miles stretch of highway north of Uijongbu, the ruined highway junction 14 air miles north of Seoul.

Lodge Says USSR Superior In Air

Washington, April 30 (AP)—Sen. Lodge (R-Mass) said today it is a "staggering fact" that air superiority as well as land superiority lies with the Soviet Union. He declared that "we court national disaster" unless this country increases its Air Force to a minimum of 150 groups.

In a major foreign policy speech, Lodge declared that the U. S. is ahead of Russia only in the quality of its long-range bombers and in the number of atomic bombs.

"On this single fact our security hangs by a delicate thread," he said. "The cold, brutal fact is x x x that the United States does not have air supremacy, air superiority or anything like it."

Lodge, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told the Senate that the administration's present target of 95 air groups is far below the safety level.

Congress, he said, "has always been willing to appropriate more for national defense that has been requested for it."

Russia Is Ruled By Fear, Truman Spokesman Says

LOS ANGELES, April 30 (AP) — President Truman's personal foreign policy spokesman said tonight that Russia is ruled by fear—"the Kremlin fears the people, the people fear the Kremlin."

W. Averell Harriman, Mr. Truman's special foreign affairs assistant, said Stalin once admitted to him that the Kremlin had been unable to gain the loyalty of the Russian people. He said the admission came during a conversation he had with Stalin while serving in Moscow as United States ambassador.

Harriman quoted Stalin as saying during the last war that the people were "'fighting for their motherland, not for us'." He added in an address prepared for delivery at the closing banquet of a regional conference of the American Association for the United Nations, Inc.:

"By 'us' he meant the Kremlin. Russia is ruled by fear. The Kremlin fears the people, and the people fear the Kremlin. Whenever we hear of purges it is an indication of internal tension. The unhappy people of the satellites crave only to be free from the iron hand."

Harriman recalled his first meeting with President Truman in 1945 when he came back from Russia after the death of President Roosevelt.

"He was already much concerned by the duplicity of the Kremlin and was determined to stand firm against the Kremlin schemes," Harriman said. "As a result, he has been prepared to take prompt and vigorous steps in dealing with the Kremlin threat. No president has in peacetime initiated so many unprecedented and farsighted measures and actions for our national security as has President Truman."

Harriman reiterated that in the Far East "President Truman will not engage in appeasement or reward aggression."

He said it wasn't this country's aim to bring on another world war, but to "limit the conflict if we possibly can and deal with it successfully in Korea" while building up military strength among the free nations.

Md. Restaurants Lag In Filing Price Charts

BALTIMORE, April 30 (AP)—Maryland restaurants and taverns are way behind in filing price charts with the Office of Price Stabilization, the district director said today.

Only about four per cent of the 6,500 establishments have filed their charts, Hugo R. Hoffman said today which was the deadline.

About 60 per cent of the state's 6,000 grocers have listed their store classifications as required by April 28.

$3.6 Million In British Goods Sent To China

LONDON, April 30 (AP)—Britain has exported goods worth £1,291,000 ($3,614,800) to Communist China during the past three months.

Sir Hartley Shawcross, president of the Board of Trade, gave this figure today when asked in the House of Commons what strategic materials this country is sending to China. He said there is "no generally accepted definition of 'strategic materials.' "

West Gets Loud Voice

MUNICH, Germany, April 30 (AP)—Radio Free Europe will inaugurate its big new transmitter beamed to Czechoslovakia tomorrow and is planning stations for four more iron curtain countries.

C. D. Jackson, president of the National Committee for a free Europe, told newsmen today that sending stations are being planned for Poland, Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria.

U. N. Official Optimistic

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP)—The chief of the United Nations' refugee agency predicted today that the current Red offensive in Korea "will fail," with peace resulting "within a couple of months."

The official, Donald Kingsley, added that he is so personally optimistic about the outcome of the fighting that he is "planning to begin operations in Korea after July 1."

"Lonely" Youth's Ad Gets Results

PORTLAND, Me., April 30 (AP)—A week ago a 19-year-old boy who'd been "all around" walked into the Press Herald editorial room and said he wanted to advertise for a wife—"someone who's lonely too."

Kenneth William Kerwin is no longer lonely. He announced today that he's a bridegroom-to-be.

Flashing a wide grin, Kerwin told a reporter he's already popped the question to one of 50 young women who wrote him after his story was published in the Press Herald and other Associated Press member newspapers.

Kerwin, a shipping clerk, said his bride will be Miss Gloria B. Trask, also 19, of Portland. The wedding is scheduled for May 14.

Kerwin, who lives alone in a furnished room, received Gloria's letter last Friday.

He says he became engaged this way:

"I got this letter from her, and I'd never known her but I found out I'd worked with her brothers x x x. I walked down to her place Saturday night, and we went out—took in a movie—and then on Sunday afternoon, we went for a walk.

"I went down there again this afternoon, and we're going to take our blood tests tonight.

"We'll be married May 14."

Republican Women Want State Positions

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 30 (AP)—The Federation of Women Republicans of Maryland today passed a resolution asking that its members be remembered by Gov. McKeldin when he fills vacancies in state positions.

The action was taken at a big spring rally held by the members—some 350 strong—in the State House.

Mrs. Fred C. Fisher, Pikesville, president of the state-wide group, thanked the members for "their strength of character and their loyalty to our party as they move forward steadily with ever-increasing numbers in our fight to free our people from bondage to government."

Tin Shortage May Cut Beer Output

PALM BEACH, Fla., April 30 (AP)—Beer production may have to be cut down if the tin supply situation gets any worse, a government official told the National Beer Wholesalers Association today.

"The tin outlook is not good," said Charles S. Sand, chief of the beverage section of the Office of Price Stabilization. "If it deteriorates further, we may be faced with curtailed production in the beer industry."

Moose Head "Proof" Proves Last Straw

ELIZABETH, N. J., April 30. (AP)—She forgave him when he slapped and kicked her.

She stuck with him when a psychiatrist told her he was an "egomaniac."

And she gave him another chance when he dragged her down a flight of stairs by the ankles.

But when he brought home a moose head to prove he had been on a hunting trip in Maine—when she said she knew he had been spending the time in Reno with another woman — that was too much.

That was the testimony in divorce court today of Mrs. Natalie Huberman, 28, of Hillside. Her husband, Dr. Victor Huberman, of Newark, did not contest the action.

Mrs. Huberman got the divorce.

Accurate Cancer Test Reported

LOS ANGELES, April 30 (AP)—A cancer test claimed to be 98 per cent accurate is near final development after 16 years of research, says Dr. Harry S. Penn of the University of California at Los Angeles.

Dr. Penn, in a report to the Los Angeles Times, announced that he and fellow researchers at UCLA have produced a synthetic extract which detects cancer when put in a test tube with a person's blood sample.

UCLA has been conducting the project in conjunction with the Veterans Administration. In a group of 4,500 patients at the Sawtelle veterans hospital, the test was reported negative for 99.5 per cent of normal persons and positive for 98.6 pre cent of those afflicted with cancer.

Dr. Penn and his associates declined to disclose at this time how their synthetic extract is compounded, but it is known that it is similar to the liver extract with which previous tests were conducted. Until recently the test required a reagent depending on the use of livers from persons who had just died of cancer.

The new substance, Dr. Penn reported, can be produced from an organic compound of which there is an unlimited supply, and may eventually result in reducing the extract cost of a single test to 25 cents.

Americans See, Hear Vogeler Via Television

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP)—The stumbling, hesitant voice of Robert Vogeler told Americans by way of television tonight to "realize that what happened to me can happen to them."

Vogeler's brief message was filmed in Vienna yesterday, flown here and processed for use on the National Broadcasting Company TV network tonight.

Vogeler, just out of a Hungarian prison after 17 months of confinement as a convicted spy, spoke slowly, with many long pauses, and finally—in the middle of a sentence—he stopped.

The announcer said Vogeler had been unable to continue and had been given time to compose himself.

Then he resumed his message, saying he thought his experience was "just one of a series of planned attacks on democracy—as we understand the word democracy."

Trouble Spots Brace For Possible May Day Clashes

LONDON, April 30 (AP)—Trouble spots around the world braced against possible clashes tomorrow when Communist and non-Communist workers hold their traditional May Day rallies and marches.

The theme for both sides was "peace." But at Seoul, U. N. forces denied with fierce artillery, rockets and jellied gas bombs a Communist bid to grab that South Korean capital as a May Day prize.

In divided Berlin, 1,000,000 Germans were expected to turn out for rival East-West celebrations—the Communists parading through the Soviet sector under Kremlin-inspired banners, and West Berliners gathering in the Tiergarten to hear fiery challenges against Communist domination.

Allied commanders in Berlin placed their troops on riot alert with armored cars and helicopters ready to avert disorders. West Berlin's 13,000 German police will guard the rally with clubs and fire hoses.

Russian sector police also have been marshalled to their full strength, and reserves have been called from the "people's police" of East Germany.

In Moscow—the place least likely to have any trouble—Russia will hold probably the grandest May Day show in Europe, flexing its muscles with a huge military parade through Red Square.

High Court Rejects Loyalty Oath Attack

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to reconsider an April 12 decision which upheld Maryland's requirement that candidates for state and city offices take a loyalty oath.

The unanimous decision rejected an attack made by Thelma Gerende on validity of the requirement. She wanted to run for the Baltimore City Council on the Progressive Party ticket.

Her attorneys in asking reconsideration of the decision, said the Board of Supervisors of Elections of Baltimore had refused to accept from Miss Gerende a loyalty oath in the form approved by the Supreme Court.

Attorney General Hall Hammond in a reply brief said that, "actually, the truth is exactly the opposite."

Russia Is Ruled By Fear, Truman Spokesman Says

LOS ANGELES, April 30 (AP) — President Truman's personal foreign policy spokesman said tonight that Russia is ruled by fear—"the Kremlin fears the people, the people fear the Kremlin."

W. Averell Harriman, Mr. Truman's special foreign affairs assistant, said Stalin once admitted to him that the Kremlin had been unable to gain the loyalty of the Russian people. He said the admission came during a conversation he had with Stalin while serving in Moscow as United States ambassador.

Harriman quoted Stalin as saying during the last war that the people were "'fighting for their motherland, not for us'." He added in an address prepared for delivery at the closing banquet of a regional conference of the American Association for the United Nations, Inc.:

"By 'us' he meant the Kremlin. Russia is ruled by fear. The Kremlin fears the people, and the people fear the Kremlin. Whenever we hear of purges it is an indication of internal tension. The unhappy people of the satellites crave only to be free from the iron hand."

Harriman recalled his first meeting with President Truman in 1945 when he came back from Russia after the death of President Roosevelt.

"He was already much concerned by the duplicity of the Kremlin and was determined to stand firm against the Kremlin schemes," Harriman said. "As a result, he has been prepared to take prompt and vigorous steps in dealing with the Kremlin threat. No president has in peacetime initiated so many unprecedented and farsighted measures and actions for our national security as has President Truman."

Harriman reiterated that in the Far East "President Truman will not engage in appeasement or reward aggression."

He said it wasn't this country's aim to bring on another world war, but to "limit the conflict if we possibly can and deal with it successfully in Korea" while building up military strength among the free nations.

Md. Restaurants Lag In Filing Price Charts

BALTIMORE, April 30 (AP)—Maryland restaurants and taverns are way behind in filing price charts with the Office of Price Stabilization, the district director said today.

Only about four per cent of the 6,500 establishments have filed their charts, Hugo R. Hoffman said today which was the deadline.

About 60 per cent of the state's 6,000 grocers have listed their store classifications as required by April 28.

$3.6 Million In British Goods Sent To China

LONDON, April 30 (AP)—Britain has exported goods worth £1,291,000 ($3,614,800) to Communist China during the past three months.

Sir Hartley Shawcross, president of the Board of Trade, gave this figure today when asked in the House of Commons what strategic materials this country is sending to China. He said there is "no generally accepted definition of 'strategic materials.'"

West Gets Loud Voice

MUNICH, Germany, April 30 (AP)—Radio Free Europe will inaugurate its big new transmitter beamed to Czechoslovakia tomorrow and is planning stations for four more iron curtain countries.

C. D. Jackson, president of the National Committee for a free Europe, told newsmen today that sending stations are being planned for Poland, Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria.

U. N. Official Optimistic

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP)—The chief of the United Nations' refugee agency predicted today that the current Red offensive in Korea "will fail," with peace resulting "within a couple of months."

The official, Donald Kingsley, added that he is so personally optimistic about the outcome of the fighting that he is "planning to begin operations in Korea after July 1."

"Lonely" Youth's Ad Gets Results

PORTLAND, Me., April 30 (AP)—A week ago a 19-year-old boy who'd been "all around" walked into the Press Herald editorial room and said he wanted to advertise for a wife—"someone who's lonely too."

Kenneth William Kerwin is no longer lonely. He announced today that he's a bridegroom-to-be.

Flashing a wide grin, Kerwin told a reporter he's already popped the question to one of 50 young women who wrote him after his story was published in the Press Herald and other Associated Press member newspapers.

Kerwin, a shipping clerk, said his bride will be Miss Gloria B. Trask, also 19, of Portland. The wedding is scheduled for May 14.

Kerwin, who lives alone in a furnished room, received Gloria's letter last Friday.

He says he became engaged this way:

"I got this letter from her, and I'd never known her but I found out I'd worked with her brothers x x x. I walked down to her place Saturday night, and we went out—took in a movie—and then on Sunday afternoon, we went for a walk.

"I went down there again this afternoon, and we're going to take our blood tests tonight.

Republican Women Want State Positions

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 30 (AP)—The Federation of Women Republicans of Maryland today passed a resolution asking that its members be remembered by Gov. McKeldin when he fills vacancies in state positions.

The action was taken at a big spring rally held by the members—some 350 strong—in the State House.

Mrs. Fred C. Fisher, Pikesville, president of the state-wide group, thanked the members for "their strength of character and their loyalty to our party as they move forward steadily with ever-increasing numbers in our fight to free our people from bondage to government."

Strike Postponed

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—A strike of 50,000 CIO shipyard workers, set for May 3, was called off for 30 days today to permit the new Wage Stabilization Board to consider their wage dispute.

Tin Shortage May Cut Beer Output

PALM BEACH, Fla., April 30 (AP)—Beer production may have to be cut down if the tin supply situation gets any worse, a government official told the National Beer Wholesalers Association today.

"The tin outlook is not good," said Charles S. Sand, chief of the beverage section of the Office of Price Stabilization. "If it deteriorates further, we may be faced with curtailed production in the beer industry."

Moose Head "Proof" Proves Last Straw

ELIZABETH, N. J., April 30. (AP)—She forgave him when he slapped and kicked her.

She stuck with him when a psychiatrist told her he was an "egomaniac."

And she gave him another chance when he dragged her down a flight of stairs by the ankles.

But when he brought home a moose head to prove he had been on a hunting trip in Maine—when she said she knew he had been spending the time in Reno with another woman — that was too much.

That was the testimony in divorce court today of Mrs. Natalie Huberman, 28, of Hillside. Her husband, Dr. Victor Huberman, of Newark, did not contest the action.

Mrs. Huberman got the divorce.

Accurate Cancer Test Reported

LOS ANGELES, April 30 (AP)—A cancer test claimed to be 98 per cent accurate is near final development after 16 years of research, says Dr. Harry S. Penn of the University of California at Los Angeles.

Dr. Penn, in a report to the Los Angeles Times, announced that he and fellow researchers at UCLA have produced a synthetic extract which detects cancer when put in a test tube with a person's blood sample.

UCLA has been conducting the project in conjunction with the Veterans Administration. In a group of 4,500 patients at the Sawtelle veterans hospital, the test was reported negative for 99.5 per cent of normal persons and positive for 98.6 pre cent of those afflicted with cancer.

Dr. Penn and his associates declined to disclose at this time how their synthetic extract is compounded, but it is known that it is similar to the liver extract with which previous tests were conducted. Until recently the test required a reagent depending on the use of livers from persons who had just died of cancer.

The new substance, Dr. Penn reported, can be produced from an organic compound of which there is an unlimited supply, and may eventually result in reducing the extract cost of a single test to 25 cents.

Americans See, Hear Vogeler Via Television

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP)—The stumbling, hesitant voice of Robert Vogeler told Americans by way of television tonight to "realize that what happened to me can happen to them."

Vogeler's brief message was filmed in Vienna yesterday, flown here and processed for use on the National Broadcasting Company TV network tonight.

Vogeler, just out of a Hungarian prison after 17 months of confinement as a convicted spy, spoke slowly, with many long pauses, and finally—in the middle of a sentence—he stopped.

The announcer said Vogeler had been unable to continue and had been given time to compose himself.

Then he resumed his message, saying he thought his experience was "just one of a series of planned attacks on democracy—as we understand the word democracy."

Trouble Spots Brace For Possible May Day Clashes

LONDON, April 30 (AP)—Trouble spots around the world braced against possible clashes tomorrow when Communist and non-Communist workers hold their traditional May Day rallies and marches.

The theme for both sides was "peace." But at Seoul, U. N. forces denied with fierce artillery, rockets and jellied gas bombs a Communist bid to grab that South Korean capital as a May Day prize.

In divided Berlin, 1,000,000 Germans were expected to turn out for rival East-West celebrations—the Communists parading through the Soviet sector under Kremlin-inspired banners, and West Berliners gathering in the Tiergarten to heat fiery challenges against Communist domination.

Allied commanders in Berlin placed their troops on riot alert with armored cars and helicopters ready to avert disorders. West Berlin's 13,000 German police will guard the rally with clubs and fire hoses.

Russian sector police also have been marshalled to their full strength, and reserves have been called from the "people's police" of East Germany.

In Moscow—the place least likely to have any trouble—Russia will hold probably the grandest May Day show in Europe, flexing its muscles with a huge military parade through Red Square.

High Court Rejects Loyalty Oath Attack

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to reconsider an April 12 decision which upheld Maryland's requirement that candidates for state and city offices take a loyalty oath.

The unanimous decision rejected an attack made by Thelma Gerende on validity of the requirement. She wanted to run for the Baltimore City Council on the Progressive Party ticket.

Her attorneys in asking reconsideration of the decision, said the Board of Supervisors of Elections of Baltimore had refused to accept from Miss Gerende a loyalty oath in the form approved by the Supreme Court.

Attorney General Hall Hammond in a reply brief said that, "actually, the truth is exactly the opposite."

Colorado Kids Building School With Gold Ore

By FRANK PITMAN

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo.—(AP)—School kids in the fabled mining camps of Cripple Creek and Victor are trying to build a new school with gold ore.

The glittering yellow metal lured thousands and thousands of prospectors to this area 75 years ago. The youngsters hope souvenirs of the same stuff will lure thousands and thousands of dollars here for the new buliding.

Postmaster Leslie Wilkinson evolved the scheme and everybody in the two adjoining towns of Cripple Creek and Victor has pitched in.

The few miners still here spend their spare time mining gold ore that is unprofitable for milling. Other townspeople and the kids bust up the ore into small specimens and prepare the souvenirs for mailing.

They send out the ore samples and a printed sketch about this fabulous mining camp to anyone who mails in a dollar.

When the towns of Victor and Cripple Creek had a population of 60,000 there were several schools. Then the gold veins petered out and the population drifted away. Now there are 1,200 people in the two towns and the two remaining schools accomodate 375 students.

The Cripple Creek school was built in 1896 and the Victor school in 1898. As one townsman explained: "Both are about to collapse from sheer age and fatigue."

School district tax revenues barely cover the cost of operation and maintenance. Facing that problem, Wilkinson and the other town leaders conceived the bold souvenir plan.

The school pupils mailed 32,500 postcards advertising their scheme to every state, Canada, Alaska, Peru, England and Hawaii. Newscaster Lowell Thomas, who cut his journalistic teeth in these mining camps, gave the plan a big boost with a broadcast from here last March.

So far, more than $5,000 has been sent in towards the goal of $300,000—building costs are high in these mountains.

Requests for the gold samples have come from every state. Many are from other school children. Some of the letters have a tragic note.

Like one from a 10-year-old Longmont, Colo., boy who said he is going blind. The boy, able to attend only two and a half months of school himself, said he was sending $1 from his allowance so others could have a good school.

An 80-year-old West Palm Beach, Fla., blind woman wrote she had lived in the mining camp in the early days and still had a warm spot in her heart for the town and its kids.

There's humor too. A New York City bank official wrote that during a business trip to Cripple Creek last summer he played a slot machine in the hotel lobby and hit a $5 jackpot after playing two quarters.

"Somehow I have been ashamed ever since," the banker wrote, "and the 20 quarters are still at home in my drawer. The net was $4.50 which I am more than delighted to turn over to the superintendent of schools."

A laundry and cleaning shop owner in Kingsport, Tenn., Stephen H. Batchelder, is one of the scheme's biggest boosters. He sent out circulars throughout his town urging residents to send their dollars to Cripple Creek for an ore sample.

Batchelder advertised that "in return, to show you how much we appreciate your carrying out our suggestion, we will clean a suit of clothes for you free—with a necktie thrown in. That ordinarily would cost you a dollar. You can, of course, keep the gold ore."

When you buy a colander make sure that if the holes are small, there are enough of them to allow the liquid to pass through freely. On the other hand don't buy a colander with holes that are too large os that foods like rice will slip through.

Aliens For The Army

Recruiting of aliens abroad for the United States Army begins today or soon after, according to an Army announcement. The process is confined for the time being to Germany although German nationals, like nationals of countries in the North Atlantic Security treaty, are ineligible. All candidates are to be carefully screened.

The program has been set up under the Lodge-Philbin Act of June 30, 1950. This act had limited to 2,500 the aliens to be recruited, although the number had been set at 10,000 in the bill as passed by the Senate in 1949. The new Selective Service-Military Training Act will raise the ceiling to 12,500 over the next four years, according to an agreement reached by the Senate and the House conferees on April 26.

Aliens recruited under the program enlist in the Army for five years. They must be between 18 and 35 years of age, be unmarried, have a working knowledge of English, be of "officer calibre." Sen. Lodge (R., Mass.) predicts that they will prove the "cream of the crop."

These alien recruits are to be sent to the United States for training. At the end of their five-year enlistment period they become eligible for U. S. citizenship. One reason for the delay in recruiting them was the difficulty of determining whether they might be barred from this country under provisions of the McCarran Subversive Control Act. Most of the recruits accepted are expected to be men of Slavic stock who are "stateless."

Another bill proposed by Lodge would establish a volunteer Freedom Corps of 250,000 aliens recruited abroad. These would not necessarily be of officer calibre, nor would they be integrated into units of the U.S. Army. A revised form of the proposal, with a smaller number of recruits authorized, is expected from the Massachusetts Senator in a few days.

A somewhat similar bill in the House, introduced by Rep. Flood (D., Pa.), provides for the enlistment of aliens "devoted to freedom and democratic principles and the cause of world peace." Those enlisted would be organized into national units, with nationals of North Atlantic Treaty signatories barred.

Sen. Lodge proposed in 1946 that 50,000 (later 25,000) men be recruited abroad to serve in the U.S. occupation forces. At that time the proposal elicited criticism that any such force would constitute an American "Foreign Legion" of mercenaries. Pointing out that recruits even in the Voluntary Freedom Corps could eventually become eligible for citizenship under the Lodge-Philbin Act, Sen. Lodge now replies:

> "The argument that it is pernicious and debilitating to hire mercenary adventurers as replacements for your own men, who would thus escape military service, is sound; and we should actively oppose such a proposal. But we should as actively seek, instead, the help of selected alien soldiers on the same voluntary basis which actuated the countless aliens who fought for our country during the War of the Revolution, the Mexican War, the Civil War, and thereafter."

The European pool of men of military age runs as high as 2,000,000, according to Lodge. He advocates also the enlistment of Chinese guerrillas and Chinese Nationalists.

U. S.-British Amity

Uncle Sam and John Bull are going through one of their recurrent periods of mutual mistrust. In resigning from the British Government last week, three former members of it charged us with leading Britain into a rearmament program that would lower British standards of living still further—unless we did something about sharing raw materials. And much of British public opinion seemed to agree with the allegation.

On this side of the water, the British are charged in some quarters with failing to hold up their end of the stick in the Korean War, even if they do have 120,000 men engaged in the hostilities in Malaya. And many supporters of General MacArthur have alleged that he really was dismissed because Great Britain would not go along with his policies in the Far East.

Oh, well, American-British relations always have their ups and downs. On the down side, to dip only into recent history, there have been the disagreement on recognition of Communist China—our hostility to their Palestine policy—their dismay at our brusque termination of Lend-Lease after the war—our protests when they ended war debt payments in 1934—their anger when we scuttled the World Economic Conference of 1933 — rivalry in cruiser strength in 1927 — their resentment when we rejected the League of Nations in 1918—our resentment when they lined up with France against President Wilson at the Paris Peace Conference.

Against these antagonisms must be placed the joint American-British opposition to Russian aggression—the cooperation on devaluation of the pound in September, 1949—the North Atlantic Security treaty and the Marshall Plan—the British loan agreement of 1945-46—the unity in drafting the UN Charter—the joint prosecution of World Wars II and I—the U.S. help to Britain between the outbreak of war in 1939 and the attack on Pearl Harbor—the naval limitation agreements of 1930 and 1922—the 1922 termination, at our insistence, of the British - Japanese treaty of alliance.

Young Arthur

Young Arthur MacArthur is enjoying an experience which comes to few Americans. He is having his first glimpse of his homeland at an age when he is able to appreciate its wonders and its glories and the amenities which make life in the United States pleasant and enviable.

Most of those who see it for the first time come as strangers in search of refuge. Young MacArthur came as the son of a fabulous hero, came as the member of a family which was to receive one of the most tumultous welcomes in American history.

There can be no kid in America who would not have traded places with him, at least for a week. Of course, having Douglas MacArthur must be a bit wearing on a small boy, for small boys are constitutionally fidgety under ceremonial and pageantry.

But it must be thrilling to a 13-year-old to see his father acclaimed by his countrymen as no man was acclaimed before him. And when so tumultous a homecoming included one's first glimpse of a big league baseball game, the circus, Manhattan Island and Washington, climaxing a swift flight half-way around the world, it would be easy to take.

But the boy who had changed places with Arthur could, after his magic week, return to his accustomed life, full of memories but happy to be back with the fellows on the block, back with his own pup and his own kid sister, his own mother and father. Arthur cannot escape after a week. He will have to go through more of the same for a long time.

The Health Of The Preschooler

CHILDREN are the greatest assets of the family and the nation and it is our responsibility to bring them to adulthood mentally and physically strong. This is something that cannot be left to the last minute; the welfare program must begin in the cradle and be carried through adolesence.

Most parents of infants adhere meticulously to monthly visits to the physician. But after the first year, medical care may be neglected unless the youngster is ill. Then, just before school enrollment there is a flurry of excitement getting the child into shape for his new life. Father and mother may forget that periodic checkups are just as essential to the toddler as to the preschooler. Any hearing, visual, or dental defect that may be present should be corrected as soon as possible. If a three-year-old's tonsils are infected and causing trouble, there is no need to put off tonsillectomy until just before he enters first grade. Such abnormalities should be taken care of as they arise! in this way, the school child is less likely to have his educational progress disturbed.

Good vision is necessary for reading but this does not mean that eye disorders are unimportant during the preschool years. Nearsightedness or farsightedness may exist, for example, and tests for these conditions may be made as early as the age of 1½ but they are difficult and not always reliable. However, suggestive symptom such as headache or eye pain should not be overlooked. Sties, cysts, and eyelid infections may occur which sometimes are traceable to infected tonsils or other foci. Irritated lids may have an allergic basis and dietary changes often bring relief.

It is true that visual tests now are routine in most schools. At least 80 per cent of learning comes through the sense of sight, which means that visual education plays a major role in most schools. Many poor readers have eye defects such as refractive errors or muscle imbalance. Nevertheless, not all children with impaired vision are poor readers and vice versa. Other factors to be considered are anemia, malnutrition, hearing loss, systemic diseases, and endocrine deficiencies. The nervous system also plays a role in mental retardation, neuroses, and emotional problems—all of which interfere with the ability to learn.

Some children have difficulty making their eyes work together as team. Owing to imbalance of the ocular muscles or eyestrain the optics are unable to fuse on a single image. This problem is not easy to solve and even specialists in reading cannot help every youngster with this defect. Cross-eye should be corrected by placing a patch over the good eye, orthoptics, or surgery.

By taking care of these details at an early age it will be possible to decrease the percentage of cases that require eye care on entering school. It is logical to assume that other benefits would accrue if visual defects are remedied a month or a year before the age of six.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Gen. Ridgway Promised Truman To Hold Against Communists; Ridgway Deserves Credit For Improved UN Forces; Congress Dawdles On Food For India

WASHINGTON — Before President Truman made his tough decision to fire General MacArthur, he asked General Matt Ridgway for a confidential opinion as to whether UN forces could hold against the expected big Communist offensive.

Truman took this precaution, first because it had been known for some time that the offensive was coming, second because he also knew what a catastrophic torrent of criticism would be heaped on his head if after relieving MacArthur, UN forces suffered a staggering defeat.

Gen. Ridgway cabled back that his forces could hold. He went further and stated that he could hold against any enemy attack for 60 days — even without reinforcements. The Pentagon, reporting this to the White House, said they had complete confidence in Ridgway, so Truman shot the works with MacArthur.

There are several important reasons for this confidence, all going to the tremendously improved fighting quality and command of American troops.

Last December a Chinese army only half as big as that facing us today, was thrown against the UN. It was not one million men as MacArthur announced. Yet that relatively small Chinese force threw the Eighth Army for a headlong retreat of more than 120 miles. Furthermore the Chinese army of last December was poorly equipped with small arms and almost no heavy artillery.

Today, twice as many Chinese are attacking, equipped with twice the firepower of last December. Meanwhile UN forces are only slightly bigger than as of last December.

Chief change between now and then, however, is in American fighting spirit and strategy, for which Lt. Gen. Matt Ridgway deserves most of the credit. Here is what he has done:

American Guerrillas

1. Previously, the mechanized American forces were roadbound and easily outflanked by the Chinese, who swarmed through the backwoods and rice paddies, usually keeping off the main highways. Ridgway has now moved his infantry off the roads, and trained them to fight on the Communists' own ground. Instead of relying on trucks and jeeps, Ridgway has hired South Korean bearers to haul supplies to GIs who are dug in off the highways. Ridgway also has used guerrilla-trained American Rangers to harass the enemy behind their lines.

2. Ridgway has moved cautiously, and patrolled every step of the way, instead of racing ahead pell-mell, as Lt. Gen. Edward Almond and the late Gen. Walton Walker did last November to see whose troops could reach the Yalu River first. Ridgway also keeps tight liaison between his front-line commands, in contrast with the Eighth Army and Tenth Corps last November which were forced to keep in touch with each other through Tokyo, a thousand miles away.

3. Ridgway has reorganized his command down to the company level. This got rid of incompetent officers and gave the men new confidence in their commanders.

4. Ridgway has also bolstered the South Korean troops, who fight ferociously against North Koreans but flee in panic from the Chinese. Ridgway gave the South Koreans a taste of victory over the Chinese by integrating South Korean and American units and throwing them into battle side by side. Ridgway also assigned South Korean soldiers to count the Chinese dead. This has helped, but not overcome the South Koreans' psychological fear of the Chinese.

Congressional Procrastination

Hours—even minutes—are vital to a starving person. Yet Congress dawdled months before agreeing to consider legislation to feed the hungry mouths of India. Behind this inaction is another story of how the American people rise to the occasion when their senators and representatives fail to act.

It was a growing floodtide of gifts to the Indian Embassy, from people in all parts of the United States that caused isolationists in Congress finally to consent to a vote on the Food-for-India Bill.

However, the isolationist bloc, led by GOP Rep. Clarence Brown of Ohio, put up a vigorous battle before the legislation was finally jarred loose from its dusty pigeonhole in the House Rules Committee.

Another Republican, also from Ohio, Rep. John Vorys, took just the contrary view. He personally appeared before the Rules Committee group to urge that the Indian aid measure be reported to the House floor, where members could vote for or against. Herbert Hoover also went on record with a strong endorsement of the bill.

But Congressman Brown argued: "This is another idea of Dean Acheson and the State Department crowd to scatter our assets to the four winds."

"If what you say is true, then Acheson is taking his cue from a great humanitarian in your own party," shot back Democratic Rep. Ray Madden of Indiana. Madden then read Herbert Hoover's plea to aid India as a "human necessity."

"You've never been a friend of Herbert Hoover," bristled Congressman Brown.

"Well, I'm going along with him on this," retorted Madden.

Acting Chairman Gene Cox, Georgia Democrat, who had been quietly abetting Brown's blockade of the India aid bill, also changed his tune; but for a different reason. Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas sent word to the Rules Committee that he wanted no more stalling on Food-for-India.

NOTE—Both the Senate and House are now set for a final vote on the wheat-for-India bill. The House bill provides for a loan of $190,000,000, while the Senate bill provides for $200,000,000 of food, of which half is a loan, half an outright gift. Herbert Hoover proposed that all the food be in the form of a gift.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Marx On Russia

I READ this in the British magazine "The Twentieth Century":

"On April 19, 1853, the London correspondent of the New York Tribune (now the Herald Tribune) had this to say about Russian expansion in Europe:

"'. . . Thanks to the ignorance, lethargy, inconsequence and cowardice of the occidental governments, Russia has in all essentials attained its aims, one after the other. . . . Since Peter the Great, the Russian frontier has advanced by seven hundred miles in the direction of Berlin, Dresden and Vienna; it has moved some five hundred miles closer to Constantinople, some six hundred and thirty miles closer to Stockholm, about a thousand miles closer to Teheran . . .'"

The writer of this quotation was none other than Karl Marx. He could not have known, in 1853, that his ideas would be seeded down in Russia in 1917 and that his principal disciples would regard that country as their motherland.

Earlier, Karl Marx had warned:

"... (Under certain circumstances) it would turn out that Russia's natural frontier runs from Danzig or Stettin to Trieste. And as sure as one annexation follows another, the conquest of Turkey by Russia would only be the prelude to the annexation of Hungary, Prussia, Galicia, and to the realization of that Slav empire of which certain fanatical pan-Slav philosophers are dreaming. . . . Once in possession of Turkey, Russia's power is increased by half and overtops that of all the rest of Europe combined. That would be an indescribable disaster. . . . The maintenance of Turkish independence, and the prevention of Russia's plans of annexation should the Ottoman empire dissolve after all, are matters of the highest importance. In this the interests of revolutionary democracy and those of England coincide . . ."

It is interesting to compare these statements with that of Dean Acheson dated February 23, 1951, to Mr. Clarence E. Moullette, in which he says:

"However, as it became clear that the rulers of the Soviet Union not only were not interested in cooperating with us, but were challenging the survival of our free institutions, and the independence of all nations, we have been obliged to build up our strength again, all of us."

Recently, in a conversation concerning Dean Acheson, I made the point that he lacks historical imagination, which is the essence of statesmanship. Such minds as Talleyrand and Disraeli could see ahead and yet they were restrained by profound knowledge of history.

Stalin, at Yalta, laid out a future for Europe and Asia beneficial to his country and his ideals of life, with the broadest strokes. Roosevelt, Hopkins and Hiss could only deal with the matters in hand. As important as such matters have seemed to be, they had to be fitted into the framework of our own tradition and history. This they did not do and, therefore, brought upon us our present miseries.

For, to paraphrase Karl Marx's statement above: Once in possession of China, Russia's power is tripled and overtops all the nations of the world combined.

Had the United States possessed one statesman in power in 1945, he would have appraised this situation clearly. There were many fine minds, out of power, who did, in 1945, appraise this situation correctly.

Dean Acheson is now virtually the president of the United States because foreign affairs prevail over every domestic question that faces the country. He develops the position in international relations and then every other question has to be made to conform to it.

For instance, we have practically fixed it as a policy to give Europe $5,000,000,000 a year. Since the end of World War II, we have been giving Europe that amount of money or credit. Although the British have given up Marshall Plan aid, they are to get military aid, which comes to the same thing. Therefore, our domestic budget has to include this amount, come what may.

Or, General Eisenhower is sent to Europe to assume responsibility, on behalf of the United States, for the success of the North Atlantic Alliance. To implement that, we are asked to create a standing army of 3,500,000 Americans and to have a 1951-52 budget of about $100,000,000,000. If we agree to Mr. Acheson's foreign program, the economy of our people must be adjusted to the government taking in taxes or bonds about one-third of the national product.

When a man possesses such power, his wisdom should be great; his sense of obligation national. Mr. Acheson is an advocate rather than a philosopher, and his affinities are British rather than American.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — America is getting to be a little like Russia in the handling of official propaganda.

Thus the Democratic National Committee has just sent out a tabloid newspaper to 50,000 party workers as the "official record" in the MacArthur episode with instructions to spread the party line throughout the country. It adds some approving editorials but not a word of the other side — neither the address of General MacArthur to Congress, his authorized denial from Tokyo, nor any of the other factual data bearing on the case.

These documents, says the Democratic national chairman in a signed article on the front page, "tell the true story" of the action of the President "in relieving General MacArthur of his command."

But do they?

Untruth Stated

Here is the text of that "document":

"On April 19, the following statement was issued at the Pentagon: In response to inquiries from the press concerning General MacArthur's reference to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, a Pentagon spokesman said the White House had authorized him to state that the action taken by the President in relieving General MacArthur was based upon the unanimous recommendations of the President's principal civilian and military advisers including the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The reasons for General MacArthur's relief have been stated previously by the President."

Now the truth is there was no meeting of the Joint Chiefs of Staff with the President to discuss the dismissal of General MacArthur or to discuss the taking of any action with reference to his command.

There is no "official record," therefore, and even no unofficial record of any "action" whatsoever taken by the Joint Chiefs of Staff in this matter either in conference with the President or anywhere else.

The Democratic National Committee which released its statement on April 27 had eight days in which to verify the truth or falsity of the above. Attention was called in this dispatch on April 23 to the untruth and the same dispatch was inserted in the Congressional Record by members of Congress.

This correspondent finds that he was slightly in error in his April 23 dispatch even in saying that there was an informal meeting between the President and the Joint Chiefs of Staff at which replacement of General MacArthur was discussed. No meeting of any kind with the President occurred.

What happened was that each member of the Joint Chiefs was asked for a personal opinion — but not by the President — and the views that came back informally were that a change in command was logical sometime. But no "recommendation" was made that the change be brought about either in the manner used by the President or in any other manner. Hence the "action" taken by the President was not "recommended" either unanimously or otherwise by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and it is untrue to say so. Some of its members did not know about the action taken by the President till they read it in the newspapers or heard it over the radio.

For the Democratic National Committee to spread the untruth that the Joint Chiefs of Staff favored the dismissal of MacArthur instead of a normal method of changing the Far Eastern command is to put the Joint Chiefs in the very position that Senator Taft of Ohio claims it is in now — namely, a political instrumentality of the White House.

Many people will agree that the differing positions of General MacArthur and the President on policy made a conference and perhaps even a separation from command inevitable. But no public purpose will be served now by letting the major political party's headquarters spread untruths about the episode or by making the issue itself a subject for propaganda for "party workers" to begin working on. To do so certainly seems inconsistent with the President's appeal at the Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner on April 14 to put the national interest above party politics. It merely encourages the Republican party to do some of the same things that the Democratic headquarters has done. This isn't the way to heal wounds and bring national unity.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH ALSOP

The British And The Bomb

WASHINGTON—

THE THREATENED rupture of the Anglo-American alliance dramatized by Gen. MacArthur's recall and Aneurin Bevan's resignation, has much deeper roots than most people realize. For the fact is that the British planners and military chiefs are more and more inclined to challenge the basic concept on which American strategy rests, and thus in a sense, to challenge also the basis of the Anglo-American alliance.

The heart of the matter is that American strategy is now squarely on atomic bombing of great population centers—and the British Isles themselves are fatally vulnerable to just this form of attack. This is certainly one reason why the British have already proposed, at least informally, that if war comes, American atomic bombs should not be used against Soviet or satellite cities, except in retaliation for Soviet attacks on American or allied cities.

The British are urging, that, unless the Soviets first use their atomic stockpile for population bombing, the American stockpile should be used only against communication lines, special isolated targets, and tactically against enemy troops in the field. This proposal is based on the assumption that even in war the Russians probably would not use their bombs against allied cities if they knew this would cause devastating retaliation against Russian cities.

Wishful Thinking

This may be wishful thinking, but in the terribly exposed position in which the British find themselves, wishful thinking is natural. The British also advance a second, and very powerful argument for their proposal. This is based on a point made by the great American expert on Russia, George Kennan, in a recent issue of "Foreign Affairs."

"We in the outside world," wrote Kennan, ". . .will never prevail in any struggle against the Soviet power unless the Russian people are our willing allies. That goes for peace, and it goes for war."

The British argue — and Kennan would doubtless agree — that the Russian people are not going to be "our willing allies" after thirty million or so Russians have been killed by our atomic bombs. They argue that mass population bombing, except in retaliation, would be as fatal an error as Hitler's savagery in Russia, cementing the people around the regime, and thus ending all hope of quick or decisive victory.

Unfortunately, there are very cogent reasons why the British proposal will almost certainly be rejected. For one thing, there is the nature of the bomb itself. In certain special circumstances, the atomic bomb can undoubtedly be used effectively as a tactical weapon. Yet the brutal fact is that the atomic bomb is inherently suited, not for use against isolated targets and troops in the field, but for use against the massed populations of great cities.

In Hiroshima and Nagasaki, the three primary effects of the bomb—blast, heat flash, and radiation—caused only a small fraction of the casualties. The great bulk of casualties are caused by the city itself, when blast collapses buildings on top of people, and when both blast and heat flash start terrible fires. The cruel-truth is that the atomic bomb is only a really revolutionary weapon when it is used in this way — to cause great cities to destroy their inhabitants.

Effects Indecisive

Used in any other way, the bomb is no longer a decisive weapon. Heavy industrial machinery is not essentially damaged by the blast of a modern bomb, even under a mile from ground zero, the point above which the bomb is exploded. A soldier in a slit trench would almost certainly live to fight another day only a mile from ground zero, and a tank would remain essentially intact well under half a mile from ground zero.

Even assuming that many hundreds of bombs were available for tactical use, or against isolated targets — and each bomb represents a very heavy investment — the effects could not be decisive. A weapon with a killing radius of not much more than a mile cannot stop a numerically superior army advancing across a fluid front of many hundreds of miles. Thus to accept the British proposal would be the equivalent of very sharply reducing the American atomic stockpile. And the American atomic stockpile is the central military asset of the West, and the only real existing deterrent to Soviet aggression.

The fact is that the follies of past disarmament have reduced this country and its allies to total reliance on a willingness to use th atomic bomb, in the most ruthles way, for the awful purpose for which it is inherently suited. Ye it should not surprise us that th British, and our other Europea allies, are not precisely eager join us in a crusade which wou see their countries either occupi or devastated. And if there is war soon, and General Eisenhow succeeds in his mission of build real strength in Europe, the t may indeed come when it will well to re-examine a strategic c cept based wholly on a wea likely by its very nature to de all our purposes.

Aliens For The Army

Recruiting of aliens abroad for the United States Army begins today or soon after, according to an Army announcement. The process is confined for the time being to Germany although German nationals, like nationals of countries in the North Atlantic Security treaty, are ineligible. All candidates are to be carefully screened.

The program has been set up under the Lodge-Philbin Act of June 30, 1950. This act had limited to 2,500 the aliens to be recruited, although the number had been set at 10,000 in the bill as passed by the Senate in 1949. The new Selective Service-Military Training Act will raise the ceiling to 12,500 over the next four years, according to an agreement reached by the Senate and the House conferees on April 26.

Aliens recruited under the program enlist in the Army for five years. They must be between 18 and 35 years of age, be unmarried, have a working knowledge of English, be of "officer calibre." Sen. Lodge (R., Mass.) predicts that they will prove the "cream of the crop."

These alien recruits are to be sent to the United States for training. At the end of their five-year enlistment period they become eligible for U. S. citizenship. One reason for the delay in recruiting them was the difficulty of determining whether they might be barred from this country under provisions of the McCarran Subversive Control Act. Most of the recruits accepted are expected to be men of Slavic stock who are "stateless."

Another bill proposed by Lodge would establish a volunteer Freedom Corps of 250,000 aliens recruited abroad. These would not necessarily be of officer calibre, nor would they be integrated into units of the U.S. Army. A revised form of the proposal, with a smaller number of recruits authorized, is expected from the Massachusetts Senator in a few days.

A somewhat similar bill in the House, introduced by Rep. Flood (D., Pa.), provides for the enlistment of aliens "devoted to freedom and democratic principles and the cause of world peace." Those enlisted would be organized into national units, with nationals of North Atlantic Treaty signatories barred.

Sen. Lodge proposed in 1946 that 50,000 (later 25,000) men be recruited abroad to serve in the U.S. occupation forces. At that time the proposal elicited criticism that any such force would constitute an American "Foreign Legion" of mercenaries. Pointing out that recruits even in the Voluntary Freedom Corps could eventually become eligible for citizenship under the Lodge-Philbin Act, Sen. Lodge now replies:

> "The argument that it is pernicious and debilitating to hire mercenary adventurers as replacements for your own men, who would thus escape military service, is sound; and we should actively oppose such a proposal. But we should as actively seek, instead, the help of selected alien soldiers on the same voluntary basis which actuated the countless aliens who fought for our country during the War of the Revolution, the Mexican War, the Civil War, and thereafter."

The European pool of men of military age runs as high as 2,000,000, according to Lodge. He advocates also the enlistment of Chinese guerrillas and Chinese Nationalists.

U. S.-British Amity

Uncle Sam and John Bull are going through one of their recurrent periods of mutual mistrust. In resigning from the British Government last week, three former members of it charged us with leading Britain into a rearmament program that would lower British standards of living still further—unless we did something about sharing raw materials. And much of British public opinion seemed to agree with the allegation.

On this side of the water, the British are charged in some quarters with failing to hold up their end of the stick in the Korean War, even if they do have 120,000 men engaged in the hostilities in Malaya. And many supporters of General MacArthur have alleged that he really was dismissed because Great Britain would not go along with his policies in the Far East.

Oh, well, American-British relations always have their ups and downs. On the down side, to dip only into recent history, there have been the disagreement on recognition of Communist China—our hostility to their Palestine policy—their dismay at our brusque termination of Lend-Lease after the war—our protests when they ended war debt payments in 1934—their anger when we scuttled the World Economic Conference of 1933—rivalry in cruiser strength in 1927—their resentment when we rejected the League of Nations in 1918—our resentment when they lined up with France against President Wilson at the Paris Peace Conference.

Against these antagonisms must be placed the joint American-British opposition to Russian aggression—the cooperation on devaluation of the pound in September, 1949—the North Atlantic Security treaty and the Marshall Plan—the British loan agreement of 1945-46—the unity in drafting the UN Charter—the joint prosecution of World Wars II and I—the U.S. help to Britain between the outbreak of war in 1939 and the attack on Pearl Harbor—the naval limitation agreements of 1930 and 1922—the 1922 termination, at our insistence, of the British-Japanese treaty of alliance.

Young Arthur MacArthur is enjoying an experience which comes to few Americans. He is having his first glimpse of his homeland at an age when he is able to appreciate its wonders and its glories and the amenities which make life in the United States pleasant and enviable.

Most of those who see it for the first time come as strangers in search of refuge. Young MacArthur came as the son of a fabulous hero, came as the member of a family which was to receive one of the most tumultous welcomes in American history.

And when so tumultous a homecoming included one's first glimpse of a big league baseball game, the circus, Manhattan Island and Washington, climaxing a swift flight half-way around the world, it would be easy to take.

But the boy who had changed places with Arthur could, after his magic week, return to his accustomed life, full of memories but happy to be back with the fellows on the block, back with his own pup and his own kid sister, his own mother and father. Arthur cannot escape after a week. He will have to go through more of the same for a long time.

The Health Of The Preschooler

CHILDREN are the greatest assets of the family and the nation and it is our responsibility to bring them to adulthood mentally and physically strong. This is something that cannot be left to the last minute; the welfare program must begin in the cradle and be carried through adolesence.

Most parents of infants adhere meticulously to monthly visits to the physician. But after the first year, medical care may be neglected unless the youngster is ill. Then, just before school enrollment there is a flurry of excitement getting the child into shape for his new life. Father and mother may forget that periodic checkups are just as essential to the toddler as to the preschooler. Any hearing, visual, or dental defect that may be present should be corrected as soon as possible. If a three-year-old's tonsils are infected and causing trouble, there is no need to put off tonsillectomy until just before he enters first grade. Such abnormalities should be taken care of as they arise! in this way, the school child is less likely to have his educational progress disturbed.

Good vision is necessary for reading but this does not mean that eye disorders are unimportant during the preschool years. Nearsightedness or farsightedness may exist, for example, and tests for these conditions may be made as early as the age of 1½ but they are difficult and not always reliable. However, suggestive symptom such as headache or eye pain should not be overlooked. Sties, cysts, and eyelid infections may occur which sometimes are traceable to infected tonsils or other foci. Irritated lids may have an allergic basis and dietary changes often bring relief.

It is true that visual tests now are routine in most schools. At least 80 per cent of learning comes through the sense of sight, which means that visual education plays a major role in most schools. Many poor readers have eye defects such as refractive errors or muscle imbalance. Nevertheless, not all children with impaired vision are poor readers and vice versa. Other factors to be considered are anemia, malnutrition, hearing loss, systemic diseases, and endocrine deficiencies. The nervous system also plays a role in mental retardation, neuroses, and emotional problems—all of which interfere with the ability to learn.

Some children have difficulty making their eyes work together as team. Owing to imbalance of the ocular muscles or eyestrain the optics are unable to fuse on a single image. This problem is not easy to solve and even specialists in reading cannot help every youngster with this defect. Cross-eye should be corrected by placing a patch over the good eye, orthoptics, or surgery.

By taking care of these details at an early age it will be possible to decrease the percentage of cases that require eye care on entering school. It is logical to assume that other benefits would accrue if visual defects are remedied a month or a year before the age of six.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Gen. Ridgway Promised Truman To Hold Against Communists; Ridgway Deserves Credit For Improved UN Forces; Congress Dawdles On Food For India

WASHINGTON — Before President Truman made his tough decision to fire General MacArthur, he asked General Matt Ridgway for a confidential opinion as to whether UN forces could hold against the expected big Communist offensive.

Truman took this precaution, first because it had been known for some time that the offensive was coming, second because he also knew what a catastrophic torrent of criticism would be heaped on his head if after relieving MacArthur, UN forces suffered a staggering defeat.

Gen. Ridgway cabled back that his forces could hold. He went further and stated that he could hold against any enemy attack for 60 days — even without reinforcements. The Pentagon, reporting this to the White House, said they had complete confidence in Ridgway, so Truman shot the works with MacArthur.

There are several important reasons for this confidence, all going to the tremendously improved fighting quality and command of American troops.

Last December a Chinese army only half as big as that facing us today, was thrown against the UN. It was not one million men as MacArthur announced. Yet that relatively small Chinese force threw the Eighth Army for a headlong retreat of more than 120 miles. Furthermore the Chinese army of last December was poorly equipped with small arms and almost no heavy artillery.

Today, twice as many Chinese are attacking, equipped with twice the firepower of last December. Meanwhile UN forces are only slightly bigger than as of last December.

Chief change between now and then, however, is in American fighting spirit and strategy, for which Lt. Gen. Matt Ridgway deserves most of the credit. Here is what he has done:

American Guerrillas

1. Previously, the mechanized American forces were roadbound and easily outflanked by the Chinese, who swarmed through the backwoods and rice paddies, usually keeping off the main highways. Ridgway has now moved his infantry off the roads, and trained them to fight on the Communists' own ground. Instead of relying on trucks and jeeps, Ridgway has hired South Korean bearers to haul supplies to GIs who are dug in off the highways. Ridgway also has used guerrilla-trained American Rangers to harass the enemy behind their lines.

2. Ridgway has moved cautiously, and patrolled every step of the way, instead of racing ahead pell-mell, as Lt. Gen. Edward Almond and the late Gen. Walton Walker did last November to see whose troops could reach the Yalu River first. Ridgway also keeps tight liaison between his front-line commands, in contrast with the Eighth Army and Tenth Corps last November which were forced to keep in touch with each other through Tokyo, a thousand miles away.

3. Ridgway has reorganized his command down to the company level. This got rid of incompetent officers and gave the men new confidence in their commanders.

4. Ridgway has also bolstered the South Korean troops, who fight ferociously against North Koreans but flee in panic from the Chinese. Ridgway gave the South Koreans a taste of victory over the Chinese by integrating South Korean and American units and throwing them into battle side by side. Ridgway also assigned South Korean soldiers to count the Chinese dead. This has helped, but not overcome the South Koreans' psychological fear of the Chinese.

Congressional Procrastination

Hours—even minutes—are vital to a starving person. Yet Congress dawdled months before agreeing to consider legislation to feed the hungry mouths of India. Behind this inaction is another story of how the American people rise to the occasion when their senators and representatives fail to act.

It was a growing floodtide of gifts to the Indian Embassy, from people in all parts of the United States that caused isolationists in Congress finally to consent to a vote on the Food-for-India Bill.

However, the isolationist bloc, led by GOP Rep. Clarence Brown of Ohio, put up a vigorous battle before the legislation was finally jarred loose from its dusty pigeonhole in the House Rules Committee.

Another Republican, also from Ohio, Rep. John Vorys, took just the contrary view. He personally appeared before the Rules Committee group to urge that the Indian aid measure be reported to the House floor, where members could vote for or against. Herbert Hoover also went on record with a strong endorsement of the bill.

But Congressman Brown argued: "This is another idea of Dean Acheson and the State Department crowd to scatter our assets to the four winds."

"If what you say is true, then Acheson is taking his cue from a great humanitarian in your own party," shot back Democratic Rep. Ray Madden of Indiana. Madden then read Herbert Hoover's plea to aid India as a "human necessity."

"You've never been a friend of Herbert Hoover," bristled Congressman Brown.

"Well, I'm going along with him on this" retorted Madden.

Acting Chairman Gene Cox, Georgia Democrat, who had been quietly abetting Brown's blockade of the India aid bill, also changed his tune; but for a different reason. Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas sent word to the Rules Committee that he wanted no more stalling on Food-for-India.

NOTE—Both the Senate and House are now set for a final vote on the wheat-for-India bill. The House bill provides for a loan of $190,000,000, while the Senate bill provides for $200,000,000 of food, of which half is a loan, half an outright gift. Herbert Hoover proposed that all the food be in the form of a gift.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Marx On Russia

I READ this in the British magazine "The Twentieth Century":

"On April 19, 1853, the London correspondent of the New York Tribune (now the Herald Tribune) had this to say about Russian expansion in Europe:

" '. . . Thanks to the ignorance, lethargy, inconsequence and cowardice of the occidental governments, Russia has in all essentials attained its aims, one after the other. . . . Since Peter the Great, the Russian frontier has advanced by seven hundred miles in the direction of Berlin, Dresden and Vienna; it has moved some five hundred miles closer to Constantinople, some six hundred and thirty miles closer to Stockholm, about a thousand miles closer to Teheran . . .' "

The writer of this quotation was none other than Karl Marx. He could not have known, in 1853, that his ideas would be seeded down in Russia in 1917 and that his principal disciples would regard that country as their motherland.

Earlier, Karl Marx had warned:

" . . . (Under certain circumstances) it would turn out that Russia's natural frontier runs from Danzig or Stettin to Trieste. And as sure as one annexation follows another, the conquest of Turkey by Russia would only be the prelude to the annexation of Hungary, Prussia, Galicia, and to the realization of that Slav empire of which certain fanatical pan-Slav philosophers are dreaming. . . . Once in possession of Turkey, Russia's power is increased by half and overtops that of all the rest of Europe combined. That would be an indescribable disaster. . . . The maintenance of Turkish independence, and the prevention of Russia's plans of annexation should the Ottoman empire dissolve after all, are matters of the highest importance. In this the interests of revolutionary democracy and those of England coincide . . ."

It is interesting to compare these statements with that of Dean Acheson dated February 23, 1951, to Mr. Clarence E. Moullette, in which he says:

"However, as it became clear that the rulers of the Soviet Union not only were not interested in cooperating with us, but were challenging the survival of our free institutions, and the independence of all nations, we have been obliged to build up our strength again, all of us."

Recently, in a conversation concerning Dean Acheson, I made the point that he lacks historical imagination, which is the essence of statesmanship. Such minds as Talleyrand and Disraeli could see ahead and yet they were restrained by profound knowledge of history.

Stalin, at Yalta, laid out a future for Europe and Asia beneficial to his country and his ideals of life, with the broadest strokes. Roosevelt, Hopkins and Hiss could only deal with the matters in hand. As important as such matters have seemed to be, they had to be fitted into the framework of our own tradition and history. This they did not do and, therefore, brought upon us our present miseries.

For, to paraphrase Karl Marx's statement above: Once in possession of China, Russia's power is tripled and overtops all the nations of the world combined.

Had the United States possessed one statesman in power in 1945, he would have appraised this situation clearly. There were many fine minds, out of power, who did, in 1945, appraise this situation correctly.

Dean Acheson is now virtually the president of the United States because foreign affairs prevail over every domestic question that faces the country. He develops the position in international relations and then every other question has to be made to conform to it.

For instance, we have practically fixed it as a policy to give Europe $5,000,000,000 a year. Since the end of World War II, we have been giving Europe that amount of money or credit. Although the British have given up Marshall Plan aid, they are to get military aid, which comes to the same thing. Therefore, our domestic budget has to include this amount, come what may.

Or, General Eisenhower is sent to Europe to assume responsibility, on behalf of the United States, for the success of the North Atlantic Alliance. To implement that, we are asked to create a standing army of 3,500,000 Americans and to have a 1951-52 budget of about $100,000,000,000. If we agree to Mr. Acheson's foreign program, the economy of our people must be adjusted to the government taking in taxes or bonds about one-third of the national product.

When a man possesses such power, his wisdom should be great; his sense of obligation national. Mr. Acheson is an advocate rather than a philosopher, and his affinities are British rather than American.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — America is getting to be a little like Russia in the handling of official propaganda.

Thus the Democratic National Committee has just sent out a tabloid newspaper to 50,000 party workers as the "official record" in the MacArthur episode with instructions to spread the party line throughout the country. It adds some approving editorials but not a word of the other side — neither the address of General MacArthur to Congress, his authorized denial from Tokyo, nor any of the other factual data bearing on the case.

These documents, says the Democratic national chairman in a signed article on the front page, "tell the true story" of the action of the President "in relieving General MacArthur of his command."

But do they?

Untruth Stated

Here is the text of that "document":

"On April 19, the following statement was issued at the Pentagon: In response to inquiries from the press concerning General MacArthur's reference to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, a Pentagon spokesman said the White House had authorized him to state that the action taken by the President in relieving General MacArthur was based upon the unanimous recommendations of the President's principal civilian and military advisers including the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The reasons for General MacArthur's relief have been stated previously by the President."

Now the truth is there was no meeting of the Joint Chiefs of Staff with the President to discuss the dismissal of General MacArthur or to discuss the taking of any action with reference to his command.

There is no "official record," therefore, and even no unofficial record of any "action" whatsoever taken by the Joint Chiefs of Staff in this matter either in conference with the President or anywhere else.

The Democratic National Committee which released its statement on April 27 had eight days in which to verify the truth or falsity of the above. Attention was called in this dispatch on April 23 to the untruth and the same dispatch was inserted in the Congressional Record by members of Congress.

This correspondent finds that he was slightly in error in his April 23 dispatch even in saying that there was an informal meeting between the President and the Joint Chiefs of Staff at which replacement of General MacArthur was discussed. No meeting of any kind with the President occurred.

What happened was that each member of the Joint Chiefs was asked for a personal opinion — but not by the President — and the views that came back informally were that a change in command was logical sometime. But no "recommendation" was made that the change be brought about either in the manner used by the President or in any other manner. Hence the "action" taken by the President was not "recommended" either unanimously or otherwise by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and it is untrue to say so. Some of its members did not know about the action taken by the President till they read it in the newspapers or heard it over the radio.

For the Democratic National Committee to spread the untruth that the Joint Chiefs of Staff favored the dismissal of MacArthur instead of a normal method of changing the Far Eastern command is to put the Joint Chiefs in the very position that Senator Taft of Ohio claims it is in now — namely, a political instrumentality of the White House.

Many people will agree that the differing positions of General MacArthur and the President on policy made a conference and perhaps even a separation from command inevitable. But no public purpose will be served now by letting the major political party's headquarters spread untruths about the episode or by making the issue itself a subject for propaganda for "party workers" to begin working on. To do so certainly seems inconsistent with the President's appeal at the Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner on April 14 to put the national interest above party politics. It merely encourages the Republican party to do some of the same things that the Democratic headquarters has done. This isn't the way to heal wounds and bring national unity.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH ALSOP

The British And The Bomb

WASHINGTON—

THE THREATENED rupture of the Anglo-American alliance dramatized by Gen. MacArthur's recall and Aneurin Bevan's resignation, has much deeper roots than most people realize. For the fact is that the British planners and military chiefs are more and more inclined to challenge the basic concept on which American strategy rests, and thus in a sense, to challenge also the basis of the Anglo-American alliance.

The heart of the matter is that American strategy is now squarely on atomic bombing of great population centers—and the British Isles themselves are fatally vulnerable to just this form of attack. This is certainly one reason why the British have already proposed, at least informally, that if war comes, American atomic bombs should not be used against Soviet or satellite cities, except in retaliation for Soviet attacks on American or allied cities.

The British are urging, that, unless the Soviets first use their atomic stockpile for population bombing, the American stockpile should be used only against communication lines, special isolated targets, and tactically against enemy troops in the field. This proposal is based on the assumption that even in war the Russians probably would not use their bombs against allied cities if they knew this would cause devastating retaliation against Russian cities.

Wishful Thinking

This may be wishful thinking, but in the terribly exposed position in which the British find themselves, wishful thinking is natural. The British also advance a second, and very powerful argument for their proposal. This is based on a point made by the great American expert on Russia, George Kennan, in a recent issue of "Foreign Affairs."

"We in the outside world," wrote Kennan, ". . .will never prevail in any struggle against the Soviet power unless the Russian people are our willing allies. That goes for peace, and it goes for war."

The British argue — and Kennan would doubtless agree — that the Russian people are not going to be "our willing allies" after thirty million or so Russians have been killed by our atomic bombs. They argue that mass population bombing, except in retaliation, would be as fatal an error as Hitler's savagery in Russia, cementing the people around the regime, and thus ending all hope of quick or decisive victory.

Unfortunately, there are very cogent reasons why the British proposal will almost certainly be rejected. For one thing, there is the nature of the bomb itself. In certain special circumstances, the atomic bomb can undoubtedly be used effectively as a tactical weapon. Yet the brutal fact is that the atomic bomb is inherently suited, not for use against isolated targets and troops in the field, but for use against the massed populations of great cities.

In Hiroshima and Nagasaki, the three primary effects of the bomb—blast, heat flash, and radiation—caused only a small fraction of the casualties. The great bulk of casualties are caused by the city itself, when blast collapses buildings on top of people, and when both blast and heat flash start terrible fires. The cruel-truth is that the atomic bomb is only a really revolutionary weapon when it is used in this way — to cause great cities to destroy their inhabitants.

Effects Indecisive

Used in any other way, the bomb is no longer a decisive weapon. Heavy industrial machinery is not essentially damaged by the blast of a modern bomb, even under a mile from ground zero, the point above which the bomb is exploded. A soldier in a slit trench would almost certainly live to fight another day only a mile from ground zero, and a tank would remain essentially intact well under half a mile from ground zero.

Even assuming that many hundreds of bombs were available for tactical use, or against isolated targets — and each bomb represents a very heavy investment — the effects could not be decisive. A weapon with a killing radius of not much more than a mile cannot stop a numerically superior army advancing across a fluid front of many hundreds of miles. Thus to accept the British proposal would be the equivalent of very sharply reducing the American atomic stockpile. And the American atomic stockpile is the central military asset of the West, and the only real existing deterrent to Soviet aggression.

The fact is that the follies of past disarmament have reduced this country and its allies to total reliance on a willingness to use th atomic bomb, in the most ruthle way, for the awful purpose for which it is inherently suited. Ye it should not surprise us that th British, and our other Europea allies, are not precisely eager [illegible] join us in a crusade which wou see their countries either occup or devastated. And if there is [illegible] war soon, and General Eisenhow succeeds in his mission of build real strength in Europe, the t may indeed come when it will [illegible] well to re-examine a strategic c cept based wholly on a wea likely by its very nature to de all our purposes.

Aliens For The Army

Recruiting of aliens abroad for the United States Army begins today or soon after, according to an Army announcement. The process is confined for the time being to Germany although German nationals, like nationals of countries in the North Atlantic Security treaty, are ineligible. All candidates are to be carefully screened.

The program has been set up under the Lodge-Philbin Act of June 30, 1950. This act had limited to 2,500 the aliens to be recruited, although the number had been set at 10,000 in the bill as passed by the Senate in 1949. The new Selective Service-Military Training Act will raise the ceiling to 12,500 over the next four years, according to an agreement reached by the Senate and the House conferees on April 26.

Aliens recruited under the program enlist in the Army for five years. They must be between 18 and 35 years of age, be unmarried, have a working knowledge of English, be of "officer calibre." Sen. Lodge (R., Mass.) predicts that they will prove the "cream of the crop."

These alien recruits are to be sent to the United States for training. At the end of their five-year enlistment period they become eligible for U. S. citizenship. One reason for the delay in recruiting them was the difficulty of determining whether they might be barred from this country under provisions of the McCarran Subversive Control Act. Most of the recruits accepted are expected to be men of Slavic stock who are "stateless."

Another bill proposed by Lodge would establish a volunteer Freedom Corps of 250,000 aliens recruited abroad. These would not necessarily be of officer calibre, nor would they be integrated into units of the U.S. Army. A revised form of the proposal, with a smaller number of recruits authorized, is expected from the Massachusetts Senator in a few days.

A somewhat similar bill in the House, introduced by Rep. Flood (D., Pa.), provides for the enlistment of aliens "devoted to freedom and democratic principles and the cause of world peace." Those enlisted would be organized into national units, with nationals of North Atlantic Treaty signatories barred.

Sen. Lodge proposed in 1946 that 50,000 (later 25,000) men be recruited abroad to serve in the U.S. occupation forces. At that time the proposal elicited criticism that any such force would constitute an American "Foreign Legion" of mercenaries. Pointing out that recruits even in the Voluntary Freedom Corps could eventually become eligible for citizenship under the Lodge-Philbin Act, Sen. Lodge now replies:

> "The argument that it is pernicious and debilitating to hire mercenary adventurers as replacements for your own men, who would thus escape military service, is sound; and we should actively oppose such a proposal. But we should as actively seek, instead, the help of selected alien soldiers on the same voluntary basis which actuated the countless aliens who fought for our country during the War of the Revolution, the Mexican War, the Civil War, and thereafter."

The European pool of men of military age runs as high as 2,000,000, according to Lodge. He advocates also the enlistment of Chinese guerrillas and Chinese Nationalists.

U. S.-British Amity

Uncle Sam and John Bull are going through one of their recurrent periods of mutual mistrust. In resigning from the British Government last week, three former members of it charged us with leading Britain into a rearmament program that would lower British standards of living still further—unless we did something about sharing raw materials. And much of British public opinion seemed to agree with the allegation.

On this side of the water, the British are charged in some quarters with failing to hold up their end of the stick in the Korean War, even if they do have 120,000 men engaged in the hostilities in Malaya. And many supporters of General MacArthur have alleged that he really was dismissed because Great Britain would not go along with his policies in the Far East.

Oh, well, American-British relations always have their ups and downs. On the down side, to dip only into recent history, there have been the disagreement on recognition of Communist China—our hostility to their Palestine policy—their dismay at our brusque termination of Lend-Lease after the war—our protests when they ended war debt payments in 1934—their anger when we scuttled the World Economic Conference of 1933—rivalry in cruiser strength in 1927—their resentment when we rejected the League of Nations in 1918—our resentment when they lined up with France against President Wilson at the Paris Peace Conference.

Against these antagonisms must be placed the joint American-British opposition to Russian aggression—the cooperation on devaluation of the pound in September, 1949—the North Atlantic Security treaty and the Marshall Plan—the British loan agreement of 1945-46—the unity in drafting the UN Charter—the joint prosecution of World Wars II and I—the U.S. help to Britain between the outbreak of war in 1939 and the attack on Pearl Harbor—the naval limitation agreements of 1930 and 1922—the 1922 termination, at our insistence, of the British-Japanese treaty of alliance.

Young Arthur

Young Arthur MacArthur is enjoying an experience which comes to few Americans. He is having his first glimpse of his homeland at an age when he is able to appreciate its wonders and its glories and the amenities which make life in the United States pleasant and enviable.

Most of those who see it for the first time come as strangers in search of refuge. Young MacArthur came as the son of a fabulous hero, came as the member of a family which was to receive one of the most tumultous welcomes in American history.

There can be no kid in America who would not have traded places with him, at least for a week. Of course, having Douglas MacArthur must be a bit wearing on a small boy, for small boys are constitutionally fidgety under ceremonial and pageantry.

But it must be thrilling to a 13-year-old to see his father acclaimed by his countrymen as no man was acclaimed before him. And when so tumultous a homecoming included one's first glimpse of a big league baseball game, the circus, Manhattan Island and Washington, climaxing a swift flight half-way around the world, it would be easy to take.

But the boy who had changed places with Arthur could, after his magic week, return to his accustomed life, full of memories but happy to be back with the fellows on the block, back with his own pup and his own kid sister, his own mother and father. Arthur cannot escape after a week. He will have to go through more of the same for a long time.

The Health Of The Preschooler

CHILDREN are the greatest assets of the family and the nation and it is our responsibility to bring them to adulthood mentally and physically strong. This is something that cannot be left to the last minute; the welfare program must begin in the cradle and be carried through adolesence.

Most parents of infants adhere meticulously to monthly visits to the physician. But after the first year, medical care may be neglected unless the youngster is ill. Then, just before school enrollment there is a flurry of excitement getting the child into shape for his new life. Father and mother may forget that periodic checkups are just as essential to the toddler as to the preschooler. Any hearing, visual, or dental defect that may be present should be corrected as soon as possible. If a three-year-old's tonsils are infected and causing trouble, there is no need to put off tonsillectomy until just before he enters first grade. Such abnormalities should be taken care of as they arise! in this way, the school child is less likely to have his educational progress disturbed.

Good vision is necessary for reading but this does not mean that eye disorders are unimportant during the preschool years. Nearsightedness or farsightedness may exist, for example, and tests for these conditions may be made as early as the age of 1½ but they are difficult and not always reliable. However, suggestive symptom such as headache or eye pain should not be overlooked. Sties, cysts, and eyelid infections may occur which sometimes are traceable to infected tonsils or other foci. Irritated lids may have an allergic basis and dietary changes often bring relief.

It is true that visual tests now are routine in most schools. At least 80 per cent of learning comes through the sense of sight, which means that visual education plays a major role in most schools. Many poor readers have eye defects such as refractive errors or muscle imbalance. Nevertheless, not all children with impaired vision are poor readers and vice versa. Other factors to be considered are anemia, malnutrition, hearing loss, systemic diseases, and endocrine deficiencies. The nervous system also plays a role in mental retardation, neuroses, and emotional problems—all of which interfere with the ability to learn.

Some children have difficulty making their eyes work together as team. Owing to imbalance of the ocular muscles or eyestrain the optics are unable to fuse on a single image. This problem is not easy to solve and even specialists in reading cannot help every youngster with this defect. Cross-eye should be corrected by placing a patch over the good eye, orthoptics, or surgery.

By taking care of these details at an early age it will be possible to decrease the percentage of cases that require eye care on entering school. It is logical to assume that other benefits would accrue if visual defects are remedied a month or a year before the age of six.

Gen. Ridgway Promised Truman To Hold Against Communists; Ridgway Deserves Credit For Improved UN Forces; Congress Dawdles On Food For India

WASHINGTON — Before President Truman made his tough decision to fire General MacArthur, he asked General Matt Ridgway for a confidential opinion as to whether UN forces could hold against the expected big Communist offensive.

Truman took this precaution, first because it had been known for some time that the offensive was coming, second because he also knew what a catastrophic torrent of criticism would be heaped on his head if after relieving MacArthur, UN forces suffered a staggering defeat.

Gen. Ridgway cabled back that his forces could hold. He went further and stated that he could hold against any enemy attack for 60 days — even without reinforcements. The Pentagon, reporting this to the White House, said they had complete confidence in Ridgway, so Truman shot the works with MacArthur.

There are several important reasons for this confidence, all going to the tremendously improved fighting quality and command of American troops.

Last December a Chinese army only half as big as that facing us today, was thrown against the UN. It was not one million men as MacArthur announced. Yet that relatively small Chinese force threw the Eighth Army for a headlong retreat of more than 120 miles. Furthermore the Chinese army of last December was poorly equipped with small arms and almost no heavy artillery.

Today, twice as many Chinese are attacking, equipped with twice the firepower of last December. Meanwhile UN forces are only slightly bigger than as of last December.

Chief change between now and then, however, is in American fighting spirit and strategy, for which Lt. Gen. Matt Ridgway deserves most of the credit. Here is what he has done:

American Guerrillas

1. Previously, the mechanized American forces were roadbound and easily outflanked by the Chinese, who swarmed through the backwoods and rice paddies, usually keeping off the main highways. Ridgway has now moved his infantry off the roads, and trained them to fight on the Communists' own ground. Instead of relying on trucks and jeeps, Ridgway has hired South Korean bearers to haul supplies to GIs who are dug in off the highways. Ridgway also has used guerrilla-trained American Rangers to harass the enemy behind their lines.

2. Ridgway has moved cautiously, and patrolled every step of the way, instead of racing ahead pell-mell, as Lt. Gen. Edward Almond and the late Gen. Walton Walker did last November to see whose troops could reach the Yalu River first. Ridgway also keeps tight liaison between his front-line commands, in contrast with the Eighth Army and Tenth Corps last November which were forced to keep in touch with each other through Tokyo, a thousand miles away.

3. Ridgway has reorganized his command down to the company level. This got rid of incompetent officers and gave the men new confidence in their commanders.

4. Ridgway has also bolstered the South Korean troops, who fight ferociously against North Koreans but flee in panic from the Chinese. Ridgway gave the South Koreans a taste of victory over the Chinese by integrating South Korean and American units and throwing them into battle side by side. Ridgway also assigned South Korean soldiers to count the Chinese dead. This has helped, but not overcome the South Koreans' psychological fear of the Chinese.

Congressional Procrastination

Hours—even minutes—are vital to a starving person. Yet Congress dawdled months before agreeing to consider legislation to feed the hungry mouths of India. Behind this inaction is another story of how the American people rise to the occasion when their senators and representatives fail to act.

It was a growing floodtide of gifts to the Indian Embassy, from people in all parts of the United States that caused isolationists in Congress finally to consent to a vote on the Food-for-India Bill.

However, the isolationist bloc, led by GOP Rep. Clarence Brown of Ohio, put up a vigorous battle before the legislation was finally jarred loose from its dusty pigeonhole in the House Rules Committee.

Another Republican, also from Ohio, Rep. John Vorys, took just the contrary view. He personally appeared before the Rules Committee group to urge that the Indian aid measure be reported to the House floor, where members could vote for or against. Herbert Hoover also went on record with a strong endorsement of the bill.

But Congressman Brown argued: "This is another idea of Dean Acheson and the State Department crowd to scatter our assets to the four winds."

"If what you say is true, then Acheson is taking his cue from a great humanitarian in your own party," shot back Democratic Rep. Ray Madden of Indiana. Madden then read Herbert Hoover's plea to aid India as a "human necessity."

"You've never been a friend of Herbert Hoover," bristled Congressman Brown.

"Well, I'm going along with him on this," retorted Madden.

Acting Chairman Gene Cox, Georgia Democrat, who had been quietly abetting Brown's blockade of the India aid bill, also changed his tune; but for a different reason. Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas sent word to the Rules Committee that he wanted no more stalling on Food-for-India.

NOTE—Both the Senate and House are now set for a final vote on the wheat-for-India bill. The House bill provides for a loan of $190,000,000, while the Senate bill provides for $200,000,000 of food, of which half is a loan, half an outright gift. Herbert Hoover proposed that all the food be in the form of a gift.

Marx On Russia

I READ this in the British magazine "The Twentieth Century": "On April 19, 1853, the London correspondent of the New York Tribune (now the Herald Tribune) had this to say about Russian expansion in Europe:

"'. . . Thanks to the ignorance, lethargy, inconsequence and cowardice of the occidental governments, Russia has in all essentials attained its aims, one after the other. . . . Since Peter the Great, the Russian frontier has advanced by seven hundred miles in the direction of Berlin, Dresden and Vienna; it has moved some five hundred miles closer to Constantinople, some six hundred and thirty miles closer to Stockholm, about a thousand miles closer to Teheran . . .'"

The writer of this quotation was none other than Karl Marx. He could not have known, in 1853, that his ideas would be seeded down in Russia in 1917 and that his principal disciples would regard that country as their motherland.

Earlier, Karl Marx had warned:

> ". . . (Under certain circumstances) it would turn out that Russia's natural frontier runs from Danzig or Stettin to Trieste. And as sure as one annexation follows another, the conquest of Turkey by Russia would only be the prelude to the annexation of Hungary, Prussia, Galicia, and to the realization of that Slav empire of which certain fanatical pan-Slav philosophers are dreaming. . . . Once in possession of Turkey, Russia's power is increased by half and overtops that of all the rest of Europe combined. That would be an indescribable disaster. . . . The maintenance of Turkish independence, and the prevention of Russia's plans of annexation should the Ottoman empire dissolve after all, are matters of the highest importance. In this the interests of revolutionary democracy and those of England coincide . . ."

It is interesting to compare these statements with that of Dean Acheson dated February 23, 1951, to Mr. Clarence E. Moullette, in which he says:

"However, as it became clear that the rulers of the Soviet Union not only were not interested in cooperating with us, but were challenging the survival of our free institutions, and the independence of all nations, we have been obliged to build up our strength again, all of us."

Recently, in a conversation concerning Dean Acheson, I made the point that he lacks historical imagination, which is the essence of statesmanship. Such minds as Talleyrand and Disraeli could see ahead and yet they were restrained by profound knowledge of history.

> Stalin, at Yalta, laid out a future for Europe and Asia beneficial to his country and his ideals of life, with the broadest strokes. Roosevelt, Hopkins and Hiss could only deal with the matters in hand. As important as such matters have seemed to be, they had to be fitted into the framework of our own tradition and history. This they did not do and, therefore, brought upon us our present miseries.

For, to paraphrase Karl Marx's statement above: Once in possession of China, Russia's power is tripled and overtops all the nations of the world combined.

Had the United States possessed one statesman in power in 1945, he would have appraised this situation clearly. There were many fine minds, out of power, who did, in 1945, appraise this situation correctly.

Dean Acheson is now virtually the president of the United States because foreign affairs prevail over every domestic question that faces the country. He develops the position in international relations and then every other question has to be made to conform to it.

For instance, we have practically fixed it as a policy to give Europe $5,000,000,000 a year. Since the end of World War II, we have been giving Europe that amount of money or credit. Although the British have given up Marshall Plan aid, they are to get military aid, which comes to the same thing. Therefore, our domestic budget has to include this amount, come what may.

> Or, General Eisenhower is sent to Europe to assume responsibility, on behalf of the United States, for the success of the North Atlantic Alliance. To implement that, we are asked to create a standing army of 3,500,000 Americans and to have a 1951-52 budget of about $100,000,000,000. If we agree to Mr. Acheson's foreign program, the economy of our people must be adjusted to the government taking in taxes or bonds about one-third of the national product.

When a man possesses such power, his wisdom should be great; his sense of obligation national. Mr. Acheson is an advocate rather than a philosopher, and his affinities are British rather than American.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — America is getting to be a little like Russia in the handling of official propaganda.

Thus the Democratic National Committee has just sent out a tabloid newspaper to 50,000 party workers as the "official record" in the MacArthur episode with instructions to spread the party line throughout the country. It adds some approving editorials but not a word of the other side — neither the address of General MacArthur to Congress, his authorized denial from Tokyo, nor any of the other factual data bearing on the case.

These documents, says the Democratic national chairman in a signed article on the front page, "tell the true story" of the action of the President "in relieving General MacArthur of his command."

But do they?

Untruth Stated

Here is the text of that "document":

"On April 19, the following statement was issued at the Pentagon: In response to inquiries from the press concerning General MacArthur's reference to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, a Pentagon spokesman said the White House had authorized him to state that the action taken by the President in relieving General MacArthur was based upon the unanimous recommendations of the President's principal civilian and military advisers including the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The reasons for General MacArthur's relief have been stated previously by the President."

Now the truth is there was no meeting of the Joint Chiefs of Staff with the President to discuss the dismissal of General MacArthur or to discuss the taking of any action with reference to his command.

There is no "official record," therefore, and even no unofficial record of any "action" whatsoever taken by the Joint Chiefs of Staff in this matter either in conference with the President or anywhere else.

The Democratic National Committee which released its statement on April 27 had eight days in which to verify the truth or falsity of the above. Attention was called in this dispatch on April 23 to the untruth and the same dispatch was inserted in the Congressional Record by members of Congress.

This correspondent finds that he was slightly in error in his April 23 dispatch even in saying that there was an informal meeting between the President and the Joint Chiefs of Staff at which replacement of General MacArthur was discussed. No meeting of any kind with the President occurred.

What happened was that each member of the Joint Chiefs was asked for a personal opinion — but not by the President — and the views that came back informally were that a change in command was logical sometime. But no "recommendation" was made that the change be brought about either in the manner used by the President or in any other manner. Hence the "action" taken by the President was not "recommended" either unanimously or otherwise by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and it is untrue to say so. Some of its members did not know about the action taken by the President till they read it in the newspapers or heard it over the radio.

For the Democratic National Committee to spread the untruth that the Joint Chiefs of Staff favored the dismissal of MacArthur instead of a normal method of changing the Far Eastern command is to put the Joint Chiefs in the very position that Senator Taft of Ohio claims it is in now — namely, a political instrumentality of the White House.

Many people will agree that the differing positions of General MacArthur and the President on policy made a conference and perhaps even a separation from command inevitable. But no public purpose will be served now by letting the major political party's headquarters spread untruths about the episode or by making the issue itself a subject for propaganda for "party workers" to begin working on. To do so certainly seems inconsistent with the President's appeal at the Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner on April 14 to put the national interest above party politics. It merely encourages the Republican party to do some of the same things that the Democratic headquarters has done. This isn't the way to heal wounds and bring national unity.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH ALSOP

The British And The Bomb

WASHINGTON—

THE THREATENED rupture of the Anglo-American alliance dramatized by Gen. MacArthur's recall and Aneurin Bevan's resignation, has much deeper roots than most people realize. For the fact is that the British planners and military chiefs are more and more inclined to challenge the basic concept on which American strategy rests, and thus in a sense, to challenge also the basis of the Anglo-American alliance.

The heart of the matter is that American strategy is now squarely on atomic bombing of great population centers—and the British Isles themselves are fatally vulnerable to just this form of attack. This is certainly one reason why the British have already proposed, at least informally, that if war comes, American atomic bombs should not be used against Soviet or satellite cities, except in retaliation for Soviet attacks on American or allied cities.

The British are urging, that, unless the Soviets first use their atomic stockpile for population bombing, the American stockpile should be used only against communication lines, special isolated targets, and tactically against enemy troops in the field. This proposal is based on the assumption that even in war the Russians probably would not use their bombs against allied cities if they knew this would cause devastating retaliation against Russian cities.

Wishful Thinking

This may be wishful thinking, but in the terribly exposed position in which the British find themselves, wishful thinking is natural. The British also advance a second, and very powerful argument for their proposal. This is based on a point made by the great American expert on Russia, George Kennan, in a recent issue of "Foreign Affairs."

"We in the outside world," wrote Kennan, ". . .will never prevail in any struggle against the Soviet power unless the Russian people are our willing allies. That goes for peace, and it goes for war."

The British argue — and Kennan would doubtless agree — that the Russian people are not going to be "our willing allies" after thirty million or so Russians have been killed by our atomic bombs. They argue that mass population bombing, except in retaliation, would be as fatal an error as Hitler's savagery in Russia, cementing the people around the regime, and thus ending all hope of quick or decisive victory.

Unfortunately, there are very cogent reasons why the British proposal will almost certainly be rejected. For one thing, there is the nature of the bomb itself. In certain special circumstances, the atomic bomb can undoubtedly be used effectively as a tactical weapon. Yet the brutal fact is that the atomic bomb is inherently suited, not for use against isolated targets and troops in the field, but for use against the massed populations of great cities.

In Hiroshima and Nagasaki, the three primary effects of the bomb—blast, heat flash, and radiation—caused only a small fraction of the casualties. The great bulk of casualties are caused by the city itself, when blast collapses buildings on top of people, and when both blast and heat flash start terrible fires. The cruel truth is that the atomic bomb is only a really revolutionary weapon when it is used in this way — to cause great cities to destroy their inhabitants.

Effects Indecisive

Used in any other way, the bomb is no longer a decisive weapon. Heavy industrial machinery is not essentially damaged by the blast of a modern bomb, even under a mile from ground zero, the point above which the bomb is exploded. A soldier in a slit trench would almost certainly live to fight another day only a mile from ground zero, and a tank would remain essentially intact well under half a mile from ground zero.

Even assuming that many hundreds of bombs were available for tactical use, or against isolated targets — and each bomb represents a very heavy investment — the effects could not be decisive. A weapon with a killing radius of not much more than a mile cannot stop a numerically superior army advancing across a fluid front of many hundreds of miles. Thus to accept the British proposal would be the equivalent of very sharply reducing the American atomic stockpile. And the American atomic stockpile is the central military asset of the West, and the only real existing deterrent to Soviet aggression.

The fact is that the follies of past disarmament have reduced this country and its allies to total reliance on a willingness to use the atomic bomb, in the most ruthless way, for the awful purpose for which it is inherently suited. Yet it should not surprise us that the British, and our other European allies, are not precisely eager to join us in a crusade which would see their countries either occupied or devastated. And if there is no war soon, and General Eisenhower succeeds in his mission of building real strength in Europe, the time may indeed come when it will be well to re-examine a strategic concept based wholly on a weapon likely by its very nature to defeat all our purposes.

Aliens For The Army

Recruiting of aliens abroad for the United States Army begins today or soon after, according to an Army announcement. The process is confined for the time being to Germany although German nationals, like nationals of countries in the North Atlantic Security treaty, are ineligible. All candidates are to be carefully screened.

The program has been set up under the Lodge-Philbin Act of June 30, 1950. This act had limited to 2,500 the aliens to be recruited, although the number had been set at 10,000 in the bill as passed by the Senate in 1949. The new Selective Service-Military Training Act will raise the ceiling to 12,500 over the next four years, according to an agreement reached by the Senate and the House conferees on April 26.

Aliens recruited under the program enlist in the Army for five years. They must be between 18 and 35 years of age, be unmarried, have a working knowledge of English, be of "officer calibre." Sen. Lodge (R., Mass.) predicts that they will prove the "cream of the crop."

These alien recruits are to be sent to the United States for training. At the end of their five-year enlistment period they become eligible for U. S. citizenship. One reason for the delay in recruiting them was the difficulty of determining whether they might be barred from this country under provisions of the McCarran Subversive Control Act. Most of the recruits accepted are expected to be men of Slavic stock who are "stateless."

Another bill proposed by Lodge would establish a volunteer Freedom Corps of 250,000 aliens recruited abroad. These would not necessarily be of officer calibre, nor would they be integrated into units of the U.S. Army. A revised form of the proposal, with a smaller number of recruits authorized, is expected from the Massachusetts Senator in a few days.

A somewhat similar bill in the House, introduced by Rep. Flood (D., Pa.), provides for the enlistment of aliens "devoted to freedom and democratic principles and the cause of world peace." Those enlisted would be organized into national units, with nationals of North Atlantic Treaty signatories barred.

Sen. Lodge proposed in 1946 that 50,000 (later 25,000) men be recruited abroad to serve in the U.S. occupation forces. At that time the proposal elicited criticism that any such force would constitute an American "Foreign Legion" of mercenaries. Pointing out that recruits even in the Voluntary Freedom Corps could eventually become eligible for citizenship under the Lodge-Philbin Act, Sen. Lodge now replies:

> "The argument that it is pernicious and debilitating to hire mercenary adventurers as replacements for your own men, who would thus escape military service, is sound; and we should actively oppose such a proposal. But we should as actively seek, instead, the help of selected alien soldiers on the same voluntary basis which actuated the countless aliens who fought for our country during the War of the Revolution, the Mexican War, the Civil War, and thereafter."

The European pool of men of military age runs as high as 2,000,000, according to Lodge. He advocates also the enlistment of Chinese guerrillas and Chinese Nationalists.

U. S.-British Amity

Uncle Sam and John Bull are going through one of their recurrent periods of mutual mistrust. In resigning from the British Government last week, three former members of it charged us with leading Britain into a rearmament program that would lower British standards of living still further—unless we did something about sharing raw materials. And much of British public opinion seemed to agree with the allegation.

On this side of the water, the British are charged in some quarters with failing to hold up their end of the stick in the Korean War, even if they do have 120,000 men engaged in the hostilities in Malaya. And many supporters of General MacArthur have alleged that he really was dismissed because Great Britain would not go along with his policies in the Far East.

Oh, well, American-British relations always have their ups and downs. On the down side, to dip only into recent history, there have been the disagreement on recognition of Communist China—our hostility to their Palestine policy—their dismay at our brusque termination of Lend-Lease after the war—our protests when they ended war debt payments in 1934—their anger when we scuttled the World Economic Conference of 1933 — rivalry in cruiser strength in 1927 — their resentment when we rejected the League of Nations in 1918—our resentment when they lined up with France against President Wilson at the Paris Peace Conference.

Against these antagonisms must be placed the joint American-British opposition to Russian aggression—the cooperation on devaluation of the pound in September, 1949—the North Atlantic Security treaty and the Marshall Plan—the British loan agreement of 1945-46—the unity in drafting the UN Charter—the joint prosecution of World Wars II and I—the U.S. help to Britain between the outbreak of war in 1939 and the attack on Pearl Harbor—the naval limitation agreements of 1930 and 1922—the 1922 termination, at our insistence, of the British - Japanese treaty of alliance.

Young Arthur

Young Arthur MacArthur is enjoying an experience which comes to few Americans. He is having his first glimpse of his homeland at an age when he is able to appreciate its wonders and its glories and the amenities which make life in the United States pleasant and enviable.

Most of those who see it for the first time come as strangers in search of refuge. Young MacArthur came as the son of a fabulous hero, came as the member of a family which was to receive one of the most tumultous welcomes in American history.

There can be no kid in America who would not have traded places with him, at least for a week. Of course, having Douglas MacArthur must be a bit wearing on a small boy, for small boys are constitutionally fidgety under ceremonial and pageantry.

But it must be thrilling to a 13-year-old to see his father acclaimed by his countrymen as no man was acclaimed before him. And when so tumultous a homecoming included one's first glimpse of a big league baseball game, the circus, Manhattan Island and Washington, climaxing a swift flight half-way around the world, it would be easy to take.

But the boy who had changed places with Arthur could, after his magic week, return to his accustomed life, full of memories but happy to be back with the fellows on the block, back with his own pup and his own kid sister, his own mother and father. Arthur cannot escape after a week. He will have to go through more of the same for a long time.

The Health Of The Preschooler

CHILDREN are the greatest assets of the family and the nation and it is our responsibility to bring them to adulthood mentally and physically strong. This is something that cannot be left to the last minute; the welfare program must begin in the cradle and be carried through adolesence.

Most parents of infants adhere meticulously to monthly visits to the physician. But after the first year, medical care may be neglected unless the youngster is ill. Then, just before school enrollment there is a flurry of excitement getting the child into shape for his new life. Father and mother may forget that periodic checkups are just as essential to the toddler as to the preschooler. Any hearing, visual, or dental defect that may be present should be corrected as soon as possible. If a three-year-old's tonsils are infected and causing trouble, there is no need to put off tonsillectomy until just before he enters first grade. Such abnormalities should be taken care of as they arise! In this way, the school child is less likely to have his educational progress disturbed.

Good vision is necessary for reading but this does not mean that eye disorders are unimportant during the preschool years. Nearsightedness or farsightedness may exist, for example, and tests for these conditions may be made as early as the age of 1½ but they are difficult and not always reliable. However, suggestive symptom such as headache or eye pain should not be overlooked. Sties, cysts, and eyelid infections may occur which sometimes are traceable to infected tonsils or other foci. Irritated lids may have an allergic basis and dietary changes often bring relief.

It is true that visual tests now are routine in most schools. At least 80 per cent of learning comes through the sense of sight, which means that visual education plays a major role in most schools. Many poor readers have eye defects such as refractive errors or muscle imbalance. Nevertheless, not all children with impaired vision are poor readers and vice versa. Other factors to be considered are anemia, malnutrition, hearing loss, systemic diseases, and endocrine deficiencies. The nervous system also plays a role in mental retardation, neuroses, and emotional problems—all of which interfere with the ability to learn.

Some children have difficulty making their eyes work together as team. Owing to imbalance of the ocular muscles or eyestrain the optics are unable to fuse on a single image. This problem is not easy to solve and even specialists in reading cannot help every youngster with this defect. Cross-eye should be corrected by placing a patch over the good eye, orthoptics, or surgery.

By taking care of these details at an early age it will be possible to decrease the percentage of cases that require eye care on entering school. It is logical to assume that other benefits would accrue if visual defects are remedied a month or a year before the age of six.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Gen. Ridgway Promised Truman To Hold Against Communists; Ridgway Deserves Credit For Improved UN Forces; Congress Dawdles On Food For India

WASHINGTON — Before President Truman made his tough decision to fire General MacArthur, he asked General Matt Ridgway for a confidential opinion as to whether UN forces could hold against the expected big Communist offensive.

Truman took this precaution, first because it had been known for some time that the offensive was coming, second because he also knew what a catastrophic torrent of criticism would be heaped on his head if after relieving MacArthur, UN forces suffered a staggering defeat.

Gen. Ridgway cabled back that his forces could hold. He went further and stated that he could hold against any enemy attack for 60 days — even without reinforcements. The Pentagon, reporting this to the White House, said they had complete confidence in Ridgway, so Truman shot the works with MacArthur.

There are several important reasons for this confidence, all going to the tremendously improved fighting quality and command of American troops.

Last December a Chinese army only half as big as that facing us today, was thrown against the UN. It was not one million men as MacArthur announced. Yet that relatively small Chinese force threw the Eighth Army for a headlong retreat of more than 120 miles. Furthermore the Chinese army of last December was poorly equipped with small arms and almost no heavy artillery.

Today, twice as many Chinese are attacking, equipped with twice the firepower of last December. Meanwhile UN forces are only slightly bigger than as of last December.

Chief change between now and then, however, is in American fighting spirit and strategy, for which Lt. Gen. Matt Ridgway deserves most of the credit. Here is what he has done:

American Guerrillas

1. Previously, the mechanized American forces were roadbound and easily outflanked by the Chinese, who swarmed through the backwoods and rice paddies, usually keeping off the main highways. Ridgway has now moved his infantry off the roads, and trained them to fight on the Communists' own ground. Instead of relying on trucks and jeeps, Ridgway has hired South Korean bearers to haul supplies to GIs who are dug in off the highways. Ridgway also has used guerrilla-trained American Rangers to harass the enemy behind their lines.

2. Ridgway has moved cautiously, and patrolled every step of the way, instead of racing ahead pell-mell, as Lt. Gen. Edward Almond and the late Gen. Walton Walker did last November to see whose troops could reach the Yalu River first. Ridgway also keeps tight liaison between his front-line commands, in contrast with the Eighth Army and Tenth Corps last November which were forced to keep in touch with each other through Tokyo, a thousand miles away.

3. Ridgway has reorganized his command down to the company level. This got rid of incompetent officers and gave the men new confidence in their commanders.

4. Ridgway has also bolstered the South Korean troops, who fight ferociously against North Koreans but flee in panic from the Chinese. Ridgway gave the South Koreans a taste of victory over the Chinese by integrating South Korean and American units and throwing them into battle side by side. Ridgway also assigned South Korean soldiers to count the Chinese dead. This has helped, but not overcome the South Koreans' psychological fear of the Chinese.

Congressional Procrastination

Hours—even minutes—are vital to a starving person. Yet Congress dawdled months before agreeing to consider legislation to feed the hungry mouths of India. Behind this inaction is another story of how the American people rise to the occasion when their senators and representatives fail to act.

It was a growing floodtide of gifts to the Indian Embassy, from people in all parts of the United States that caused isolationists in Congress finally to consent to a vote on the Food-for-India Bill.

However, the isolationist bloc, led by GOP Rep. Clarence Brown of Ohio, put up a vigorous battle before the legislation was finally jarred loose from its dusty pigeonhole in the House Rules Committee.

Another Republican, also from Ohio, Rep. John Vorys, took just the contrary view. He personally appeared before the Rules Committee group to urge that the Indian aid measure be reported to the House floor, where members could vote for or against. Herbert Hoover also went on record with a strong endorsement of the bill.

But Congressman Brown argued: "This is another idea of Dean Acheson and the State Department crowd to scatter our assets to the four winds."

"If what you say is true, then Acheson is taking his cue from a great humanitarian in your own party," shot back Democratic Rep. Ray Madden of Indiana. Madden then read Herbert Hoover's plea to aid India as a "human necessity."

"Well, I'm going along with him on this," retorted Madden.

Acting Chairman Gene Cox, Georgia Democrat, who had been quietly abetting Brown's blockade of the India aid bill, also changed his tune; but for a different reason. Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas sent word to the Rules Committee that he wanted no more stalling on Food-for-India.

NOTE—Both the Senate and House are now set for a final vote on the wheat-for-India bill. The House bill provides for a loan of $190,000,000, while the Senate bill provides for $200,000,000 of food, of which half is a loan, half an outright gift. Herbert Hoover proposed that all the food be in the form of a gift.

These Days

Marx On Russia

I READ this in the British magazine "The Twentieth Century": "On April 19, 1853, the London correspondent of the New York Tribune (now the Herald Tribune) had this to say about Russian expansion in Europe:

"'. . . Thanks to the ignorance, lethargy, inconsequence and cowardice of the occidental governments, Russia has in all essentials attained its aims, one after the other. . . . Since Peter the Great, the Russian frontier has advanced by seven hundred miles in the direction of Berlin, Dresden and Vienna; it has moved some five hundred miles closer to Constantinople, some six hundred and thirty miles closer to Stockholm, about a thousand miles closer to Teheran . . .'"

The writer of this quotation was none other than Karl Marx. He could not have known, in 1853, that his ideas would be seeded down in Russia in 1917 and that his principal disciples would regard that country as their motherland.

Earlier, Karl Marx had warned:

". . . (Under certain circumstances) it would turn out that Russia's natural frontier runs from Danzig or Stettin to Trieste. And as sure as one annexation follows another, the conquest of Turkey by Russia would only be the prelude to the annexation of Hungary, Prussia, Galicia, and to the realization of that Slav empire of which certain fanatical pan-Slav philosophers are dreaming. . . . Once in possession of Turkey, Russia's power is increased by half and overtops that of all the rest of Europe combined. That would be an indescribable disaster. . . . The maintenance of Turkish independence, and the prevention of Russia's plans of annexation should the Ottoman empire dissolve after all, are matters of the highest importance. In this the interests of revolutionary democracy and those of England coincide . . ."

It is interesting to compare these statements with that of Dean Acheson dated February 23, 1951, to Mr. Clarence E. Moullette, in which he says:

"However, as it became clear that the rulers of the Soviet Union not only were not interested in cooperating with us, but were challenging the survival of our free institutions, and the independence of all nations, we have been obliged to build up our strength again, all of us."

Recently, in a conversation concerning Dean Acheson, I made the point that he lacks historical imagination, which is the essence of statesmanship. Such minds as Talleyrand and Disraeli could see ahead and yet they were restrained by profound knowledge of history.

Stalin, at Yalta, laid out a future for Europe and Asia beneficial to his country and his ideals of life, with the broadest strokes. Roosevelt, Hopkins and Hiss could only deal with the matters in hand. As important as such matters have seemed to be, they had to be fitted into the framework of our own tradition and history. This they did not do and, therefore, brought upon us our present miseries.

Had the United States possessed one statesman in power in 1945, he would have appraised this situation clearly. There were many fine minds, out of power, who did, in 1945, appraise this situation correctly.

Dean Acheson is now virtually the president of the United States because foreign affairs prevail over every domestic question that faces the country. He develops the position in international relations and then every other question has to be made to conform to it.

For instance, we have practically fixed it as a policy to give Europe $5,000,000,000 a year. Since the end of World War II, we have been giving Europe that amount of money or credit. Although the British have given up Marshall Plan aid, they are to get military aid, which comes to the same thing. Therefore, our domestic budget has to include this amount, come what may.

Or, General Eisenhower is sent to Europe to assume responsibility, on behalf of the United States, for the success of the North Atlantic Alliance. To implement that, we are asked to create a standing army of 3,500,000 Americans and to have a 1951-52 budget of about $160,000,000,000. If we agree to Mr. Acheson's foreign program, the economy of our people must be adjusted to the government taking in taxes or bonds about one-third of the national product.

When a man possesses such power, his wisdom should be great; his sense of obligation national. Mr. Acheson is an advocate rather than a philosopher, and his affinities are British rather than American.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — America is getting to be a little like Russia in the handling of official propaganda.

Thus the Democratic National Committee has just sent out a tabloid newspaper to 50,000 party workers as the "official record" in the MacArthur episode with instructions to spread the party line throughout the country. It adds some approving editorials but not a word of the other side — neither the address of General MacArthur to Congress, his authorized denial from Tokyo, nor any of the other factual data bearing on the case.

These documents, says the Democratic national chairman in a signed article on the front page, "tell the true story" of the action of the President "in relieving General MacArthur of his command."

But do they?

Untruth Stated

Here is the text of that "document":

"On April 19, the following statement was issued at the Pentagon: In response to inquiries from the press concerning General MacArthur's reference to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, a Pentagon spokesman said the White House had authorized him to state that the action taken by the President in relieving General MacArthur was based upon the unanimous recommendations of the President's principal civilian and military advisers including the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The reasons for General MacArthur's relief have been stated previously by the President."

Now the truth is there was no meeting of the Joint Chiefs of Staff with the President to discuss the dismissal of General MacArthur or to discuss the taking of any action with reference to his command.

There is no "official record," therefore, and even no unofficial record of any "action" whatsoever taken by the Joint Chiefs of Staff in this matter either in conference with the President or anywhere else.

The Democratic National Committee which released its statement on April 27 had eight days in which to verify the truth or falsity of the above. Attention was called in this dispatch on April 23 to the untruth and the same dispatch was inserted in the Congressional Record by members of Congress.

This correspondent finds that he was slightly in error in his April 23 dispatch even in saying that there was an informal meeting between the President and the Joint Chiefs of Staff at which replacement of General MacArthur was discussed. No meeting of any kind with the President occurred.

What happened was that each member of the Joint Chiefs was asked for a personal opinion — but not by the President — and the views that came back informally were that a change in command was logical sometime. But no "recommendation" was made that the change be brought about either in the manner used by the President or in any other manner. Hence the "action" taken by the President was not "recommended" either unanimously or otherwise by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and it is untrue to say so. Some of its members did not know about the action taken by the President till they read it in the newspapers or heard it over the radio.

For the Democratic National Committee to spread the untruth that the Joint Chiefs of Staff favored the dismissal of MacArthur instead of a normal method of changing the Far Eastern command is to put the Joint Chiefs in the very position that Senator Taft of Ohio claims it is in now — namely, a political instrumentality of the White House.

Many people will agree that the differing positions of General MacArthur and the President on policy made a conference and perhaps even a separation from command inevitable. But no public purpose will be served now by letting the major political party's headquarters spread untruths about the episode or by making the issue itself a subject for propaganda for "party workers" to begin working on. To do so certainly seems inconsistent with the President's appeal at the Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner on April 14 to put the national interest above party politics. It merely encourages the Republican party to do some of the same things that the Democratic headquarters has done. This isn't the way to heal wounds and bring national unity.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH ALSOP

The British And The Bomb

WASHINGTON—

THE THREATENED rupture of the Anglo-American alliance dramatized by Gen. MacArthur's recall and Aneurin Bevan's resignation, has much deeper roots than most people realize. For the fact is that the British planners and military chiefs are more and more inclined to challenge the basic concept on which American strategy rests, and thus in a sense, to challenge also the basis of the Anglo-American alliance.

The heart of the matter is that American strategy is now squarely on atomic bombing of great population centers—and the British Isles themselves are fatally vulnerable to just this form of attack. This is certainly one reason why the British have already proposed, at least informally, that if war comes, American atomic bombs should not be used against Soviet or satellite cities, except in retaliation for Soviet attacks on American or allied cities.

The British are urging, that, unless the Soviets first use their atomic stockpile for population bombing, the American stockpile should be used only against communication lines, special isolated targets, and tactically against enemy troops in the field. This proposal is based on the assumption that even in war the Russians probably would not use their bombs against allied cities if they knew this would cause devastating retaliation against Russian cities.

Wishful Thinking

This may be wishful thinking, but in the terribly exposed position in which the British find themselves, wishful thinking is natural. The British also advance a second, and very powerful argument for their proposal. This is based on a point made by the great American expert on Russia, George Kennan, in a recent issue of "Foreign Affairs."

"We in the outside world," wrote Kennan, ". . .will never prevail in any struggle against the Soviet power unless the Russian people are our willing allies. That goes for peace, and it goes for war."

The British argue — and Kennan would doubtless agree — that the Russian people are not going to be "our willing allies" after thirty million or so Russians have been killed by our atomic bombs. They argue that mass population bombing, except in retaliation, would be as fatal an error as Hitler's savagery in Russia, cementing the people around the regime, and thus ending all hope of quick or decisive victory.

Unfortunately, there are very cogent reasons why the British proposal will almost certainly be rejected. For one thing, there is the nature of the bomb itself. In certain special circumstances, the atomic bomb can undoubtedly be used effectively as a tactical weapon. Yet the brutal fact is that the atomic bomb is inherently suited, not for use against isolated targets and troops in the field, but for use against the massed populations of great cities.

In Hiroshima and Nagasaki, the three primary effects of the bomb—blast, heat flash, and radiation—caused only a small fraction of the casualties. The great bulk of casualties are caused by the city itself, when blast collapses buildings on top of people, and when both blast and heat flash start terrible fires. The cruel truth is that the atomic bomb is only a really revolutionary weapon when it is used in this way — to cause great cities to destroy their inhabitants.

Effects Indecisive

Used in any other way, the bomb is no longer a decisive weapon. Heavy industrial machinery is not essentially damaged by the blast of a modern bomb, even under a mile from ground zero, the point above which the bomb is exploded. A soldier in a slit trench would almost certainly live to fight another day only a mile from ground zero, and a tank would remain essentially intact well under half a mile from ground zero.

Even assuming that many hundreds of bombs were available for tactical use, or against isolated targets — and each bomb represents a very heavy investment — the effects could not be decisive. A weapon with a killing radius of not much more than a mile cannot stop a numerically superior army advancing across a fluid front of many hundreds of miles. Thus to accept the British proposal would be the equivalent of very sharply reducing the American atomic stockpile. And the American atomic stockpile is the central military asset of the West, and the only real existing deterrent to Soviet aggression.

The fact is that the follies of past disarmament have reduced this country and its allies to total reliance on a willingness to use the atomic bomb, in the most ruthless way, for the awful purpose for which it is inherently suited. Yet it should not surprise us that the British, and our other European allies, are not precisely eager to join us in a crusade which would see their countries either occupied or devastated. And if there is no war soon, and General Eisenhower succeeds in his mission of building real strength in Europe, the time may indeed come when it will be well to re-examine a strategic concept based wholly on a weapon likely by its very nature to defeat all our purposes.

McKeldin Signs State Property Assessment Bill

Approves School Board Changes

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 30—(AP)—Governor McKeldin spurned the State Tax Commission today and approved a new system of assessing Maryland property once every three years.

The measure, a compromise to one of the General Assembly's most protracted battles, was among 70 the governor signed into law.

It had been attacked heatedly by Chairman Joseph H. A. Rogan of the tax commission, and Albert W. Ward, its executive secretary.

Effective in 1954, the law provides for reassessment of property annually in one of three districts in Baltimore City and each county. It will replace the present five-year rotational plan, by which the city and counties are split into five districts for property valuations.

Called An Improvement

McKeldin called the new system an improvement.

"If you can't get a full loaf, it's best to take what you can get," he commented.

He referred to recommendations of Maryland's Tax Survey Commission, which had urged new assessments every year. That proposal was ditched as a result of protests by nearly every board of county commissioners in the state.

McKeldin also signed one of the few survey commission bills to get through the legislature. That bore minor scratches, but will make enough changes in the income tax regulations to save taxpayers an estimated $250,000 a year.

It takes effect on money earned this year and due to be reported next April 15.

Then taxpayers will be charged two per cent, instead of five, on the first $500 of investment income. Anyone will be able to apply the standard 10 per cent deduction, up to $500, for charitable contributions, heavy medical expenses and other outlays.

The new law also makes a number exempts the first $1,500 of the pay divorced couples and investors. It of changes affecting pensioners, of servicemen in war zones.

Authorize Bond Issue

McKeldin signed another of the session's construction bills, this one authorizing a $500,000 bond issue for buildings at St. Mary's Seminary Junior College. It raised to $22,050,000 the new debt Maryland can run up for capital improvements and civil defense.

He signed a legislative council measure regulating land installment contracts to protect buyers in long-term agreements. It gives the purchaser and equity in property he buys on time.

Baltimore and the counties may finish the present five-year assessment cycle. But in 1954, unless intervening legislatures decide otherwise, they will have to adopt the new system with some provisions.

Other bills signed by the Governor included:

HB-149—by Cook—increasing the pay of the Mayor of Lonaconing from $100 to $200 annually, and raising the compensation of councilman from $2 for each council meeting attended to $5.

HB-773—by Garrett delegation—relating to the expenses of the county commissioners road board.

SB-209—by Kimble—Reconstituting the Liquor Board of Allegany County as the Board of License Commissioners.

SB-249—by Kimble — specifying that the Allegany County School Board shall be composed of five persons appointed by the Governor and that at least two shall be women and at least two shall be members of the political party that polled second highest number of votes in the most recent gubernatorial election.

SB-487—by Kimble — providing that assistant state auditors in the service last November 1 be blanketed under the merit system.

the City Charter, by condemnation.

The railroad agrees that portions of Thomas Street to be relocated will be paved by the railroad at its own expense in accordance with city specifications.

The railroad will also construct a concrete sidewalk on the east side of the relocated portions of the street, and a concrete curb at the west line of the street.

All sewer and water lines in the affected area will be replaced by the railroad.

Little Discussion

Discussion on the proposed agreement was slight, in view of the delay to permit full council action.

Mayor Post queried railroad officials on the effect of the relocation upon employment in the Cumberland terminal. Holden assured the city only "a real improvement" would justify the cost of the project.

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long expressed approval of the project but asked consideration for residents involved in the project. He pointed out that the plan may require the city to condemn some of the affected property if an agreement is not reached, and asked fair treatment for the people involved.

Mary Patricia Stitcher Is Bride Of W. E. Deangler

Father Kilkenny Performs Ceremony

Miss Mary Patricia Stitcher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Henry Stitcher, 508 Dilley Street, became the bride of William Earl Deangler, Baltimore, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Deangler, Saturday.

The wedding ceremony was solemnized at 2 o'clock, in St. Patrick's Catholic Church, with Very Rev. Lawrence J. Kilkenny, pastor, officiating. Bouquets of white snapdragons and candelabra of lighted tapers decorated the altar. The program of nuptial music and traditional wedding marches were played by Sister Aquinette.

Mr. and Mrs. George Silberzahn, Baltimore, brother-in-law and sister of the bride, were the attendants.

The bride was attired in a white organdy, ballerena length dress, fashioned with high neckline and full skirt. With it she wore long mitts and a fingertip length veil held by a scalloped organdy Juliette cap. She carrier a white prayer book with orchid marker and shower.

Her matron of honor wore a dress similar to hers but of blue organdy. Her headdress was a matching blue organdy scalloped Juliett cap and veil and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Mrs. Stitcher chose a cocoa colored costume for her daughter's wedding. With it she wore a corsage of pink rose buds.

The bride is a graduate of Fort Hill High School, class of 1945 and is employed as a supervisor of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company.

The bridegroom is a graduate of a Baltimore public high school and is a veteran of approximately five years service in the Army during World War II. He is employed by the Crown Cork and Seal Company, Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. Stitcher entertained in honor of their daughter and her bridal party, with a reception at their home, following the ceremony. The bridal motif was carried out in the decorations and repeated in the three tiered wedding cake, adorned with a miniature bride and bridegroom.

Upon their return Mr. Deangler and his bride will reside in an apartment on Hudson Street, Baltimore.

Electronic Machine Soon May Detect Cancer Cells

By FRANK CAREY

CLEVELAND — (AP) — A kind of electronic "adding machine" which may permit automatic detection of cancer cells is being developed.

It may even ring a bell or buzz a buzzer when such a cell is detected.

The American Association for Cancer Research heard a description of the device today.

If it is perfected as envisioned, Dr. Robert C. Mellors said it will offer opportunities for the "mass screening" of the entire population of the country. Such screening would separate many non-cancerous people from those suspected of having major forms of the disease.

Essentially, the device would work this way:

Tissue cells under examination would activate electronic devices in the machine in such a way that numbers would automatically appear on a dial — just like figures on an adding machine. Numbers at various levels would be characteristic of different types of cells, so the operator of the machine could quickly estimate whether a particular cell was normal or possibly cancerous. And, it would be easy to incorporate certain sound-making instruments to alert the operator.

The instrument is designed to save time for the cancer diagnostician rather than to be a diagnostic tool in itself, Dr. Mellors declared. Any final diagnosis of cancer would be the province of a cancer specialist, he explained.

But the Sloan-Kettering Institute of New York researcher asserted that there are relatively few experts trained to examine the type of material the machine would study — and thus, the machine, by "weeding out the negatives" would conceivably give the experts more opportunity to concentrate on "suspicious cases."

If it works out as planned, he said, a single machine could examine tissue specimens of 24,000 people a year—a project far beyond the power of any single man working at a microscope.

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

A DREAM wedding has never been known to emerge from anything except the most detailed planning, far in advance. If you are a girl with stars in your eyes and a solitaire on your finger, the moment your wedding date is decided, come down to earth long enough to gather your family in confidence.

At this meeting, determine the type of wedding that will best express your heart's desire, your fiance's preference, your mother's dreams and your father's checkbook. You will have earned your diplomatic spurs by the time you have resolved all considerations — and that you must.

Conference Decisions

Then, and right then, make a specific plan of organization, noting all the duties to be performed by you and the members of your family with the starting and completion dates set down beside each assignment. The only thing you need not write down is your personal plan for diffusing all duties with your most gracious manner and joyful mien.

A minimum list of duties for a large, formal wedding must include reservations for the place of ceremony (if away from home) for the wedding and rehearsal hours. Add to this a reminder to inquire into what arrangements must be made for a canopy, a carpet, lighting, and decorations, and to note the seating capacity and any particular rules or customs to be observed.

Invitations should be discussed and lists obtained from both families in time for engraving, addressing and mailing at least three weeks before the wedding.

Attendants must be selected and informed immediately that they are to be your chosen companions on the bridal path.

Gaining Time To Dream

Make an early date with your favorite bridal consultant to select your finery and trousseau, the costumes of your maids and to settle on what the ushers are to wear. The same consultant will be helpful in selecting gifts for your attendants.

The caterer and florist must be chosen and checked early and often. Music for the ceremony and reception requires early scheduling. A photographer must be engaged and cars lined up for the wedding party. And above all make a time schedule for yourself for gift listing, thank-you notes and the inevitable emergency.

With these basics attended to, you'll find plenty of moments to dream on your pink cloud—between appointments!

Liquor Licenses For Two Frostburg Clubs Held Up

The Allegany County Liquor Control Board yesterday decided to withhold issuance of liquor licenses of Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion, and John R. Fairgrieve Post No. 2462, Veterans of Foreign Wars, both of Frostburg, until May 31.

The board, in its order yesterday stated that in view of the fact that officers of the two veterans organizations entered guilty pleas in Circuit Court two weeks ago to charges of violating gambling laws by maintaining slot machines in their buildings, the applications for the renewal of the licenses will be withheld until May 31.

In effect the withholding of the liquor licenses amounts to a 30-day suspension as the two clubs will not be able to sell beer, wine or liquor for the period between tomorrow, May 1, the starting date of the new licenses, and May 31.

The veterans organizations were fined $500 each by Associate Judge George Henderson on April 16 after they had entered guilty pleas.

The Liquor Board also held up issuance of a beer license to John T. Shrewbridge, who operates an establishment at Fairgo, until May 22.

Shrewbridge had been accused of selling beer to minors at his place. The complaining witness was Mrs. Agatha Bishop, who lives near the tavern and grocery operated by Shrewbridge. She said several of her children had purchased beer at the tavern for older people.

The beer, wine and liquor license of the Orioles Club at Wills Mountain Inn was granted yesterday by the board. Issuance of the permit had been help up pending an investigation of the club as to whether or not it was a bona fide organization.

Resident Given Permit To Open Restaurant

The building engineer yesterday approved application of Herbert Wilson, 322 Paca Street, to open a restaurant at 60 North Mechanic Street.

The new business will be located at the site formerly occupied by Karp Brothers, restaurant and bar equipment firm. Harry Little is owner of the building.

A report on building for April shows 20 permits were granted for new construction and six for additions and remodeling, a total of 26. Estimated expenditure for new construction was $68,600 and for additions and improvements, $8,775, or a total of $77,375.

This figure is under those reported for March and April a year ago. During March there were 20 permits granted with an expenditure of $104, 150. In April, 1950, there were 34 permits and a total estimated expenditure of $108,250.

Last month seven applications were made for occupancy permits. Five were granted, one denied, and another is awaiting action of the building engineer.

Liquor Board Case Against McNeill Refuted At Hearing

The case against Leo McNeill, operator of a tavern at Klondike, blew up yesterday at a meeting of the Allegany County Liquor Control Board when seven witnesses all testified in favor of the accused.

The witnesses, summoned by the sheriff's office on orders of the Liquor Board, all stated in testimony that McNeill ran a law abiding establishment and that the charges made in an anonymous letter, sent to the attorney general of Maryland, were untrue.

McNeill was granted his beer license by the board after it heard the testimony.

As the seven residents of the little community located off the Georges Creek Boulevard near Midland left the board office they were visibly angry and bitter about the matter. They stated they did not authorize the use of their names on the letter and had no idea who sent the missive. Six of the witnesses were women.

Charges in the letter were to the effect that McNeill sold to minors, sold beer on Sundays and also sold whisky without a license. It was also charged that he conducted chicken fights at his establishment.

All of these charges were refuted by the seven witneses yesterday.

Local Truck Concern Sold To Baltimore Co.

One of this city's largest trucking concerns, the Cumberland Motor Express, has been sold to a Baltimore firm of investment brokers, according to Frederick A. Puderbaugh, attorney for the trucking company.

Puderbaugh said negotiations for the sale of the local company were completed yesterday with Phillip S. Sterling, of the firm of Sterling, Morris and Bousman, Baltimore. He said he could not release the purchase price paid by the Baltimoreans.

The local company has been in operation since 1935 and included in purchase are 50 pieces of equipment, mostly tractor-trailers, a terminal at Hagerstown and a parking lot and garage in this city.

All Over AMERICA PEOPLE ENDORSE HADACOL

HADACOL Relieves The Cause of Stomach Distress, Aches and Pains, Weak, Run-Down Conditions, Poor Appetite and Nervousness When Due to a Deficiency of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron

R. A. Drumright, 313 Main St., Nashville, Tenn., says this about today's great HADACOL: "I feel I should write you and tell you what HADACOL has done for me. I was run-down and not able to work and had no ambition. All I wanted to do was sleep. I took HADACOL and went to work and am feeling fine and have a good appetite, and sleep good. I can recommend HADACOL to anyone in a run-down condition. I am 68 years old and have taken six bottles."

Mrs. Ardena Longaker, Rt. 5, Meadowbrook Rd., North Kansas City, Mo.: "I am a minister's wife and am 39 years old. Two years ago I had an operation and just had a hard time getting back my energy. I was run-down, lost weight, was listless, and had no appetite at all. I'm on my fifth bottle now and am amazed at the results. I want to eat all the time now. Most of all, I'm glad to say, I've gained several pounds. HADACOL is so economical I believe almost anyone can afford it, and I do recommend it to my friends."

Frank W. Woche, 531 Apache, Houston, Texas: "I was so run-down and my son-in-law suggested I take HADACOL. I had lost lots of weight and was tired all the time. After the first small bottle I started feeling better right away. I have now taken four more large bottles and wouldn't be without HADACOL. HADACOL has done so much for me. It's wonderful and all of my friends saw how bad I was looking and now tell me how much better I look. I can't say enough for HADACOL."

Mrs. LaRue Busbee, Saunemin, Illinois: "My son Gary is four years old, and will be five in July. His grandfather, Mr. J. W. Simmons who lives with us, was taking HADACOL and it helped him. We had been having so much trouble getting Gary to eat. It seemed as if it would take the entire family to coax him [illegible] at. After we started giving him HADACOL his appetite picked up right away. He will eat three hearty meals a day, gets up in the morning all set for a big breakfast. HADACOL has certainly helped Gary's appetite."

Mrs. J. E. Roberts, 1516 Lincoln, Little Rock, Ark.: "I am a mother with five children and with all my housework I was so run-down and just couldn't seem to eat at all. I heard about HADACOL and decided to try it, to see if it would help me. I could tell from the first bottle that it was helping me. I started eating right away—my appetite picked up a lot. After that I took three more bottles of HADACOL, and really believe that HADACOL is a good product, and it has certainly helped me."

Mrs. Letha Fitzpatrick, 401 E. Elm St., Scottsville, Ky.: "I couldn't sleep. I didn't have any appetite and wasn't able to do anything. Then I heard and read about HADACOL and what it had done for others. I decided to give it a trial. I have taken several bottles and I can truthfully say it has really helped me. I feel so much better. I have a lot more strength. I can eat now and I'm gaining weight. I do my work, work in my flowers, also in the garden. Now I'm putting up my fruit and vegetables. I can't thank HADACOL enough for what it's done for me."

Mrs. Thomas Fanning, Francisco, Ala., says about her daughter, Norine: "I just want to say a few words about HADACOL. I can't praise it enough for what it has done for my little seven-year-old girl. She was weak and pale, and did not eat very much. So, I decided to try HADACOL. Now, she eats more and has a better color and has gained weight. My friends and neighbors all are talking about her looking so much better. I can't say enough for it. I recommend it to my friends and neighbors or anybody. I will know from now on what to get when any of my family needs help."

Mrs. Anne Franks, 434 West Seven St., Newport, Ky.: "As a constant user of HADACOL—and am on my fourth bottle—would not hesitate to acclaim it the best. I was so run-down I could hardly do my work. And that is important as I do a man's job in a shoe factory. I felt that I did not have enough energy to lift my hands. I felt so let-down everything annoyed me. But since I've taken my first bottle, I've been helped so much that now I'm up and ready and anxious to get my work done and am not tired, but am able to do my housework. I cannot praise HADACOL and its makers enough."

Mrs. Margaret Gordon, 113 Forrest St., Clover, S. Car.: "I didn't have the energy to do anything, and I couldn't sleep at night. I had gas pains all the time. So many friends told me how it had helped them, so I decided to try HADACOL. I have taken three bottles, and am on my fourth bottle. I can't express my gladness for all that it has done for me. Now, I can sleep well at night, and I work. I praise HADACOL very much. I will not do without HADACOL anymore. It has done wonders for me. I can eat anything I wish now, and it doesn't hurt me any more. I am 26 years of age."

Miss Ometha White, 1709 Bush Ave., Alexandria, La.: "I am 25 years old and have lived in Alexandria all my life. I am employed by a canning company. A year ago I was nervous and run-down. I lost my appetite and couldn't sleep. A friend told me about HADACOL and I decided to try it. I have been taking one bottle a week for a year and I can report wonderful results. I am gaining weight, my nerves are OK . . . I have a good appetite and I can sleep nights again. One bottle a week did it and I recommend HADACOL to all who have my ailments."

Mrs. Joe Bukowski, 921 Sanborn St., Ottumwa, Iowa: "Before I started taking HADACOL it was nearly impossible for me to do my housework. . . . I was weak, nervous, didn't sleep well, and lacked an appetite. But thanks to regular use of HADACOL, I now do all my housework, sleep well, and have a good appetite. I don't have that tired-out feeling. I'm really 100 per cent better since taking HADACOL."

Mrs. Walter Shields, Hornsbyville, Va., says about her young son: "I have a little boy who had stomach distress every time he went riding in a car. Nothing did him any good. I heard about HADACOL and have given him two bottles. He doesn't suffer from his stomach any more."

Mrs. Anna M. Dehlendorf, 631 E. Pope St., St. Louis 15, Mo.: "I have been taking HADACOL for six months, and feel fine again. I was rundown. I am 60 years old, and do housework, laundry by the day for different parties, and I also do baby sitting in the evening. Before I started taking HADACOL, I was underweight—I only weighed 97 pounds. Now my weight is 135 pounds. I eat good, sleep good, and feel good."

Marcus Dee Starkey, 1866 Farrow St., Kansas City, Kansas: "Before taking HADACOL, I suffered such stomach distress after each meal I could hardly work. My wife bought me a bottle of HADACOL, and I will bless the day she did this for me. I took this wonderful discovery and after one week I was actually surprised at the results. I have now taken four of the large bottles, and that isn't all, I will continue taking it."

Mrs. Lula Nelsoni, 1702 E. 63rd Street, Huntington Park, Los Angeles, California: "I was run-down, couldn't sleep at night, had aches and pains and with seven children to care for I couldn't get my work done. After three bottles of HADACOL I felt so much better I could do more work than ever before. I've been taking HADACOL ever since and feel so good. I now give it to my children and it has helped them, too."

Motorist Who Killed Child Faces Four Vehicle Charges

The State's Attorneys' office announced early yesterday afternoon that no manslaughter charge will be filed against Charles Whitehead, Jr., Midlothian, whose car struck and killed a two-year-old girl Saturday.

Authorities said the decision was reached after the victim's father, Frank Willetts, also of Midlothian, requested Whitehead be freed in the death of his daughter, Ellen Jewel.

However, White will be prosecuted Thursday at 10 a. m. in Trial Court on four motor vehicle charges of driving without a license, having inadequate brakes and no title, and displaying a registration plate not issued for such a vehicle.

State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher completed the death probe after questioning a number of witnesses this morning. Statements were taken.

Whitehead told authorities he had stopped at the service station and pulled away without seeing the girl. He jumped from the car when he felt the impact, picked up the child and carried her to the parents.

The father stopped a passing car and she was rushed to Miners Hospital, Frostburg. The child was dead upon arrival. Death resulted from an inter-cranial hemorrhage caused by a basal fracture of the skull.

Police Continue Probe In Theft Of Tires

Police are investigating the theft of 17 tires valued at $1,300 from the Charlton Brothers Transportation Company warehouse on Bowen Street during the past two weeks.

Detective Thomas J. See said a quantity of candy was included in the loot.

Ten automobile tires worth $300 were taken from the building last Friday night. The theft was reported Saturday by Fred "Bud" Rosenbaum, manager.

Police records show seven dual track tires for trucks vanished April 16. They were valued at $1,000.

An attempted breaking and entering was reported Sunday at Fisher and Robinette's Tavern, 493 Baltimore Avenue. A wouldbe intruder broke glass in a side door near the lock, but was unable to gain admittance.

Detective See said a double lock prevented the burglary. Persons living over the tavern heard the sound of glass being broken at 4 a. m.

Train Derailed Near Glencoe

Traffic on the B. and O. Railroad between Cumberland and Connellsville, Pa., was delayed by the derailment of 14 loaded freight cars Sunday on the main line at a point near Glencoe, Pa.

A steam locomotive pulling the string of cars was descending a grade at Foley's when the first 14 cars behind the engine left the tracks. No one was injured in the pileup, but both east and westbound tracks were torn up for some distance.

The derailment occurred about 1:15 p. m. Sunday and wrecking crews worked until 1:45 a. m. yesterday to clear up one track. The other track was cleared yesterday morning at 6:55.

Both passenger and freight trains between here and Connellsville were rerouted over the Western Maryland Railway between Glencoe and Cumberland.

Authorities said the decision was reached after the victim's father, Frank Willetts, also of Midlothian, requested Whitehead be freed in the death of his daughter, Ellen Jewel.

However, White will be prosecuted Thursday at 10 a. m. in Trial Court on four motor vehicle charges of driving without a license, having inadequate brakes and no title, and displaying a registration plate not issued for such a vehicle.

State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher completed the death probe after questioning a number of witnesses this morning. Statements were taken.

Whitehead told authorities he had stopped at the service station and pulled away without seeing the girl. He jumped from the car when he felt the impact, picked up the child and carried her to the parents.

The father stopped a passing car and she was rushed to Miners Hospital, Frostburg. The child was dead upon arrival. Death resulted from an inter-cranial hemorrhage caused by a basal fracture of the skull.

The survey was instigated in July, 1950, at the request of the Steering Committee for Economic Development and was made by the U. S. Department of Commerce jointly with the U. S. Department of Labor and in conjunction with state agencies. It was conducted under the overall supervision of Dr. John R. Steelman, assistant to President Truman.

Purpose of tomorrow's meeting is to review the report.

Police Continue Probe In Theft Of Tires

Police are investigating the theft of 17 tires valued at $1,300 from the Charlton Brothers Transportation Company warehouse on Bowen Street during the past two weeks.

Detective Thomas J. See said a quantity of candy was included in the loot.

Ten automobile tires worth $300 were taken from the building last Friday night. The theft was reported Saturday by Fred "Bud" Rosenbaum, manager.

Police records show seven dual track tires for trucks vanished April 16. They were valued at $1,000.

An attempted breaking and entering was reported Sunday at Fisher and Robinette's Tavern, 493 Baltimore Avenue. A wouldbe intruder broke glass in a side door near the lock, but was unable to gain admittance.

Detective See said a double lock prevented the burglary. Persons living over the tavern heard the sound of glass being broken at 4 a. m.

Train Derailed Near Glencoe

Traffic on the B. and O. Railroad between Cumberland and Connellsville, Pa., was delayed by the derailment of 14 loaded freight cars Sunday on the main line at a point near Glencoe, Pa.

A steam locomotive pulling the string of cars was descending a grade at Foley's when the first 14 cars behind the engine left the tracks. No one was injured in the pileup, but both east and westbound tracks were torn up for some distance.

The derailment occurred about 1:15 p. m. Sunday and wrecking crews worked until 1:45 a. m. yesterday to clear up one track. The other track was cleared yesterday morning at 6:55.

Both passenger and freight trains between here and Connellsville were rerouted over the Western Maryland Railway between Glencoe and Cumberland.

Properties Sold

Thomas Lloyd sold property on the south side of Spring Street in Frostburg to Hartley L. Wigfield and Kathaleene F. Wigfield for about $7,000, according to a deed filed yesterday in the office of the clerk of circuit court.

Also recorded was the sale by William C. Marshall and Doris M. Marshall for about $6,000 to Nora P. Bowman of property at Bowman's Addition, a half mile northeast of Cumberland.

Plans for the Mapleside community's participation in the "Fun Fair" to be held May 10, 11 and 12 at the Penn Avenue field by the South End Businessmen's Association will be discussed at a meeting at 7:30 p. m. today at the home of Mrs. Blanche Lueck, 36 New Hampshire Avenue.

LASALLE BOWLING LEAGUE CHAMPS—Capturing both halves of the split season schedule, Captain Jack Vocke's Steelers won the 1950-51 championship of the LaSalle High School Bowling League. Minoso Is Guy Chisox Wanted, Richards Says

Negro To Play 3rd Base For Chicago

CHICAGO, April 30 (AP)—The Chicago White Sox today had their first negro regular, fleet Orestes Minoso of the Cleveland Indians, and freshman Manager Paul Richards had a pennant gleam in his eye.

"Nuts to fourth place," snorted Richards after the ramified Sox-Indian-Athletics deal brought Minoso and the A's Paul Lehner to the Pale Hose. (Some experts earlier gave the Sox a chance to cop fourth.)

"Minoso is the kind of player you need to win pennants. He's the guy we wanted. He'll show them something."

To get Minoso, 27, and outfielder Lehner, 30, the Sox gave the A's outfielders Gus Zernial, 25, who set a sox record of 29 homers last season, and Dave Philley, 29.

Minoso To Play Third

Minoso, who filled in for the injured Luke Easter at first for Cleveland, will be used by the Sox at third base. That was the position he played mainly for San Diego of the Pacific Coast League last season when the native of Matanzas, Cuba, batted .339, drove across 115 runs and scored 130.

Lehner, who hit .309 in 114 games for the A's last season, will take over Zernial's left field spot. Both newcomers are expected to be on hand tomorrow when the New York Yankees arrive for a 2-game set.

Today's three-way deal was reported engineered mainly by General Manager Frank Lane of the White Sox. Lane smiled at queries on the subject, but commented: "you would think so if you looked at my phone bill. During the past three days, I have been on the phone 18 out of 24 hours."

The Sox had two negro players in spring training, first sacker Bob Boyd and catcher Sam Hairston, but both were optioned to Sacramento.

Coach Doc Cramer, who spent considerable time trying to groom Zernial during spring training, commented that "either we made a terrific deal, or not worse than a standoff."

Zernial, on the other hand, goes back to Jimmy Dykes, who has been a one-man cheering gang for big Gus ever since he managed him with Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League.

The Sox have two first-line third basemen now in Floyd Baker and Hank Majeski. But until either outbids Minosa for the job, or Richards sees fit to shift versatile Minoso elsewhere, third base will belong to the Cuban who Hank Greenberg of the Indians says may become "one of the really good players of our time."

12 College Cage Stars Are Indicted

Eleven Took Bribes Totalling $40,750

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP) — A dozen of the nation's top college basketball stars were indicted today along with an ex-convict accused of fixing Madison Square Garden games.

All the players or former players are from schools in New York City —New York University, Long Island University and City College of New York.

The charges cover the recently ended 1950-51 season, during which 11 of the cage stars are alleged to have pocketed bribes totalling $40,750 from ex-convict Salvatore T. Sollazzo.

The collegians are among 16 who have been arrested since February in the biggest scandal ever to hit college sports. One previously was indicted and three others are awaiting grand jury action.

CCNY Barred From Garden

A few hours after the indictments were returned, the board of higher education barred City College from any further games in Madison Square Garden.

The board has no control over LIU and NYU.

The board's committee on intercollegiate basketball said CCNY was aware of the pressure on players by gamblers and tried to warn the players. But the committee added in a statement:

"City College authorities and we ourselves as members of the board share in the responsibility for having allowed the students to be exposed for so long to conditions they were not strong enough to resist."

A Manhattan grand jury indicted the players on a number of counts, making them liable, if convicted, to prison sentences averaging 23 years and fines up to $40,000 each.

Ten of the players pleaded innocent before General Sessions Judge Saul S. Streit and remained free on bail. No trial date was set.

Adolph Bigos of LIU, and Eddie Gard, a former LIU star, will plead to the charges later.

Gard is accused of acting as a go-between for bribes passed to players in behalf of Sollazzo. The ex-player also is accused in another indictment of taking bribes himself.

Sollazzo faces a maximum 148 years and $290,000 in fines if convicted. Today's indictment against him replaces an earlier one that covered less ground.

Sollazzo Refused Bail

Sollazzo pleaded innocent to the new indictment but again was refused bail. He has been held since the scandal broke nearly three months ago.

Besides Sollazzo, four other alleged fixers have been arrested.

Involved in the indictments are four stars of CCNY's dream team of last year, which won a "Cinderella" title by taking a double collegiate championship for the first time in history.

Hairston Stops Pender In 3rd

Deaf Mute Scores Spectacular Kayo

After Pender rose, Hairston cut loose with a two fisted barrage to the head and Brooklyn boy sank for another nine count. He was groggy when he tried to resume and the deliberate Hairston measured him with a right to the jaw that floored him for the full count.

During the brief action, Hairston impressed the 9,225 spectators with his skillful infighting. Pender, making his 28th professional start, battled uphill in courageous fashion from the opening bell until he was punched out of action.

Minoso Is Guy Chisox Wanted, Richards Says

Negro To Play 3rd Base For Chicago

CHICAGO, April 30 (AP)—The Chicago White Sox today had their first negro regular, fleet Orestes Minoso of the Cleveland Indians, and freshman Manager Paul Richards had a pennant gleam in his eye.

"Nuts to fourth place," snorted Richards after the ramified Sox-Indian-Athletics deal brought Minoso and the A's Paul Lehner to the Pale Hose. (Some experts earlier gave the Sox a chance to cop fourth.)

"Minoso is the kind of player you need to win pennants. He's the guy we wanted. He'll show them something."

To get Minoso, 27, and outfielder Lehner, 30, the Sox gave the A's outfielders Gus Zernial, 25, who set a sox record of 29 homers last season, and Dave Philley, 29.

Minoso To Play Third

Minoso, who filled in for the injured Luke Easter at first for Cleveland, will be used by the Sox at third base. That was the position he played mainly for San Diego of the Pacific Coast League last season when the native of Matanzas, Cuba, batted .339, drove across 115 runs and scored 130.

Lehner, who hit .309 in 114 games for the A's last season, will take over Zernial's left field spot. Both newcomers are expected to be on hand tomorrow when the New York Yankees arrive for a 2-game set.

Today's three-way deal was reported engineered mainly by General Manager Frank Lane of the White Sox. Lane smiled at queries on the subject, but commented: "you would think so if you looked at my phone bill. During the past three days, I have been on the phone 18 out of 24 hours."

The Sox had two negro players in spring training, first sacker Bob Boyd and catcher Sam Hairston, but both were optioned to Sacramento.

Coach Doc Cramer, who spent considerable time trying to groom Zernial during spring training, commented that "either we made a terrific deal, or not worse than a standoff."

Zernial, on the other hand, goes back to Jimmy Dykes, who has been a one-man cheering gang for big Gus ever since he managed him with Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League.

The Sox have two first-line third basemen now in Floyd Baker and Hank Majeski. But until either outbids Minosa for the job, or Richards sees fit to shift versatile Minoso elsewhere, third base will belong to the Cuban who Hank Greenberg of the Indians says may become "one of the really good players of our time."

Eleven Took Bribes Totalling $40,750

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP) — A dozen of the nation's top college basketball stars were indicted today along with an ex-convict accused of fixing Madison Square Garden games.

All the players or former players are from schools in New York City—New York University, Long Island University and City College of New York.

The charges cover the recently ended 1950-51 season, during which 11 of the cage stars are alleged to have pocketed bribes totalling $40,750 from ex-convict Salvatore T Sollazzo.

The collegians are among 16 who have been arrested since February in the biggest scandal ever to hit college sports. One previously was indicted and three others are awaiting grand jury action.

CCNY Barred From Garden

A few hours after the indictments were returned, the board of higher education barred City College from any further games in Madison Square Garden.

The board has no control over LIU and NYU.

The board's committee on intercollegiate basketball said CCNY was aware of the pressure on players by gamblers and tried to warn the players. But the committee added in a statement:

"City College authorities and we ourselves as members of the board share in the responsibility for having allowed the students to be exposed for so long to conditions they were not strong enough to resist."

A Manhattan grand jury indicted the players on a number of counts, making them liable, if convicted, to prison sentences averaging 23 years and fines up to $40,000 each.

Ten of the players pleaded innocent before General Sessions Judge Saul S. Streit and remained free on bail. No trial date was set.

Adolph Bigos of LIU, and Eddie Gard, a former LIU star, will plead to the charges later.

Gard is accused of acting as a go-between for bribes passed to players in behalf of Sollazzo. The ex-player also is accused in another indictment of taking bribes himself.

Sollazzo faces a maximum 148 years and $290,000 in fines if convicted. Today's indictment against him replaces an earlier one that covered less ground.

Sollazzo Refused Bail

Sollazzo pleaded innocent to the new indictment but again was refused bail. He has been held since the scandal broke nearly three months ago.

Besides Sollazzo, four other alleged fixers have been arrested.

Involved in the indictments are four stars of CCNY's dream team of last year, which won a "Cinderella" title by taking a double collegiate championship for the first time in history.

Deaf Mute Scores Spectacular Kayo

After Pender rose, Hairston cut loose with a two fisted barrage to the head and Brooklyn boy sank for another nine count. He was groggy when he tried to resume and the deliberate Hairston measured him with a right to the jaw that floored him for the full count.

During the brief action, Hairston impressed the 9,225 spectators with his skillful infighting. Pender, making his 28th professional start, battled uphill in courageous fashion from the opening bell until he was punched out of action.

Derby Trial Set For Today, 14 Colts Expected To Start

By GAYLE TALBOT

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 30 (AP)—Fourteen colts were nominated today to run in tomorrow's Derby Trial at Churchill Downs, and it is just possible that the mile race will do something toward unscrambling the Derby picture, which badly needs unscrambling.

Five of those named for the trial—Battle Morn, Fanfare, King Clover, Bernwood and Pur Sang—are expected to run in the big race on Saturday. If one of the other nine should win the $10,000 first prize tomorrow, or even finish with a good rush, it is more than likely his owner will give him a shot at the wreath of roses.

The Trial is, of course, far from conclusive, as it is a quarter-mile shorter than the Derby itself. For instance a horse named Black George won it last year, and he finished 14th and last in the Derby four days later.

But the Trial can tell a smart trainer plenty. Two years ago Ben Jones of Calumet didn't suspect he had a Derby winner until he saw Ponder close strongly behind Olympia in the Trial. Middleground also finished second in last year's Trial and then went on to take the big pot.

Bearing top weight of 118 pounds tomorrow will be Spring Brook Farm's Pur Sang. Weights for the Trial are based on the amount of money a colt has won. Battle Morn and Kings Hope each will tote 115, Abe Sting 112, and the remainder 110 or under.

Battle Morn, ridden by Eddie Arcaro, likely will be the favorite at post time, 5 p. m. (EST), but Fanfare will attract a lot of dollars in the mutuels because of the high respect in which his trainer, Ben Jones, is held in Kentucky.

The biggest news around the Downs today was contributed by a non-starter in the Trial—C. V. Whitnew's Mameluke — when he ripped off the full derby distance of a mile and a quarter in 2:04 3-5, faster than the winner's time in many a derby. Whilaway's record is 2:01 2-5, which gives an idea.

Mameluke, which won the first division of the Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland last week by three lengths, ran his amazing effort handily, as the clockers term it. His trainer, Syl Veitch, was slightly perturbed about it.

"I'm afraid he may have worked too fast," he said. "But he did it easily and came out of it with no sign of lameness, so I guess I can't complain too much."

The Downs track is exceptionally fast this spring. The back stretch wasr esurfaced during the winter, and the ground near the rail became hard-packed by snow and ice.

Greentree Stable's Big Stretch did in the Derby distance today in 2:05 3-5. He will not go in Saturday's race unless the track is perfect. His stablemate, Hall Of Fame, worked a mile in 1:40. Repetoire, unbeaten in four stakes this year, loafed the Derby route in 2:14 3-5.

The belief now is that at least 18 will go in the Derby, maybe 20.

Brann Leaves Estate Valued At Two Million

FREDERICK, Md., April 30 (AP)—William L. Brann, in a will directing disposition of an estate estimated to value more than $2,000,000, recommended continuance of his horse breeding and racing operations.

Brann died early this month in Florida.

His will, dated Sept. 30, 1950, was probated today. Harry D. Radcliff, registrar of wills, declined to estimate the estate's value but bonds filed with it indicated it was in excess of $2,000,000. That would be the largest ever filed in Frederick.

Brann owned the Glade Valley Breeding Farm at nearby Walkersville. Foaled there was Challedon, winner of the 1939 Preakness and the "horse of the year" in 1939 and 1940.

"In my opinion," Brann wrote in his will, "the conservation of the value of real assets depends in a large part on uninterrupted continuance" of the breeding farm and the racing stable.

Derby Trial Set For Today, 14 Colts Expected To Start

By GAYLE TALBOT

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 30 (AP)—Fourteen colts were nominated today to run in tomorrow's Derby Trial at Churchill Downs, and it is just possible that the mile race will do something toward unscrambling the Derby picture, which badly needs unscrambling.

Five of those named for the trial—Battle Morn, Fanfare, King Clover, Bernwood and Pur Sang—are expected to run in the big race on Saturday. If one of the other nine should win the $10,000 first prize tomorrow, or even finish with a good rush, it is more than likely his owner will give him a shot at the wreath of roses.

The Trial is, of course, far from conclusive, as it is a quarter-mile shorter than the Derby itself. For instance a horse named Black George won it last year, and he finished 14th and last in the Derby four days later.

But the Trial can tell a smart trainer plenty. Two years ago Ben Jones of Calumet didn't suspect he had a Derby winner until he saw Ponder close strongly behind Olympia in the Trial. Middleground also finished second in last year's Trial and then went on to take the big pot.

Bearing top weight of 118 pounds tomorrow will be Spring Brook Farm's Pur Sang. Weights for the Trial are based on the amount of money a colt has won. Battle Morn and Kings Hope each will tote 115, Abe Sting 112, and the remainder 110 or under.

Battle Morn, ridden by Eddie Arcaro, likely will be the favorite at post time, 5 p. m. (EST), but Fanfare will attract a lot of dollars in the mutuels because of the high respect in which his trainer, Ben Jones, is held in Kentucky.

The biggest news around the Downs today was contributed by a non-starter in the Trial—C. V. Whitnew's Mameluke — when he ripped off the full derby distance of a mile and a quarter in 2:04 3-5, faster than the winner's time in many a derby. Whilaway's record is 2:01 2-5, which gives an idea.

Mameluke, which won the first division of the Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland last week by three lengths, ran his amazing effort handily, as the clockers term it. His trainer, Syl Veitch, was slightly perturbed about it.

"I'm afraid he may have worked too fast," he said. "But he did it easily and came out of it with no sign of lameness, so I guess I can't complain too much."

The Downs track is exceptionally fast this spring. The back stretch wasr esurfaced during the winter, and the ground near the rail became hard-packed by snow and ice.

Greentree Stable's Big Stretch did in the Derby distance today in 2:05 3-5. He will not go in Saturday's race unless the track is perfect. His stablemate, Hall Of Fame, worked a mile in 1:40. Repetoire, unbeaten in four stakes this year, loafed the Derby route in 2:14 3-5.

The belief now is that at least 18 will go in the Derby, maybe 20.

Brann Leaves Estate Valued At Two Million

FREDERICK, Md., April 30 (AP)—William L. Brann, in a will directing disposition of an estate estimated to value more than $2,000,000, recommended continuance of his horse breeding and racing operations.

Brann died early this month in Florida.

His will, dated Sept. 30, 1950, was probated today. Harry D. Radcliff, registrar of wills, declined to estimate the estate's value but bonds filed with it indicated it was in excess of $2,000,000. That would be the largest ever filed in Frederick.

Brann owned the Glade Valley Breeding Farm at nearby Walkersville. Foaled there was Challedon, winner of the 1939 Preakness and the "horse of the year" in 1939 and 1940.

"In my opinion," Brann wrote in his will, "the conservation of the value of real assets depends in a large part on uninterrupted continuance" of the breeding farm and the racing stable.

Lou Brissie

Indians Get Brissie, Chisox Minoso, Lehner, A's Obtain Four Men

CLEVELAND, April 30 (AP)—Cleveland captured pitcher Lou Brissie from Philadelphia today in a major three-club, seven-player deal that also involved the Chicago White Sox.

Beating the other contenders to the much-sought lefthander, the Indians gave up rookie infielder Orestes Minoso, relief pitcher Sam Zoldak and third string catcher Ray Murray. But Brissie could "make" their southpaw-poor staff.

Here's the way the deal works:

Cleveland—gets Brissie from Philadelphia.

Chicago—gets Minoso from Cleveland outfielder Paul Lehner from Philadelphia.

Players Worth $300,000

The value of the seven players was conservatively estimated at well over $300,000. Zernial, potentially a terrific power hitter, was sought by Philadelphia ever since Jimmy Dykes, his old boss, became manager.

"It's the kind of a deal a club makes when it's going all-out for the pennant," said Hank Greenberg, Cleveland general manager.

"We gave up a lot of power but we think we made a good deal," said Frank Lane, Chicago general manager. "Paul Richards (Sox manager) has been wild about Minoso ever since he caused him so much trouble in the Pacific Coast League."

"I think we made a good one," said Art Ehlers, A's general manager. We're going to keep moving players." The A's have lost 10 straight.

Brissie, it seems, had the only objection.

Manager Al Lopez plans to fill in with either Harry Simpson, a rookie up from SanDiego, or Allie Clark tomorrow when the Tribe opens a series against Boston. Clark will go if Boston uses a southpaw pitcher.

Frank Lane, Chicago general manager, admitted he'd given up a "lot of power" when he lost Zernial. But he added that Manager Paul Richards has been "wild about Minoso ever since he caused him so much trouble last year in the Pacific Coast League." Minoso batted .339 for San Diego while Richards was managing Seattle.

By getting Zernial the A's will be able to field two long-ball hitters for the first time in 20 years. Until now they've gotten along with Sam Chapman as their hitter.

Lane predicted that Zernial may hit "30 to 35 home runs for Philadelphia." The Sox manager noted Zernial would also have a shorter outfield to protect when playing at home for the A's. He batted .280 last year.

Brissie, who had to beg doctors during the Italian war campaign not to cut off his wounded left leg, won seven and lost 19 last year for the A's. Although he plays with a plate in his leg, he throws a fireball. In 1948, he won 14 and lost 10. In 1949, he won 16 and lost 11.

Art Ehlers, the A's general manager, said Brissie "wasn't helping us, but you never know. Maybe a change of scenery will do him some good. Lou has plenty of natural ability."

Cornell, Navy Enter Dixie Cage Tourney

RALEIGH, N. C., April 30 (AP)—Cornell and Navy today accepted invitations to play in the third annual Dixie basketball classic here next Dec. 27-28-29.

North Carolina State College Athletic Director Roy B. Clogston said the acceptance of Cornell and Navy completes the field of four intersectional teams. Southern California and Columbia accepted last week.

Duke, N. C. State, North Carolina and Wake Forest round out the eight-team field for the fast-growing tournament. N. C. State is defending champion.

SPORTS GRILL

by Pat Robinson

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, April 30 (INS)—Hot off the grill today we have . . . veteran Jack Campbell . . . nation's leading handicapper . . . who still insists the Derby finish will read . . . Big Stretch, Battle Morn, and Timely Reward . . . but no guarantees go with the forecast . . .

And Broadway Sam wants to know if Jack will rue the day he didn't pick Ruhe . . . Sam gets his inspirations for those terrible puns from the purple and yellow shirts he wears . . .

Joe Louis and Omelio Agramonte . . . the Cuban canvas-kisser . . . do it all over again in Detroit Wednesday night . . and if Joe doesn't stop him this time he can kiss any outdoor shot this summer good-bye . . .

For that very reason the Broadway bums in the fight racket fear there may be a Weismuller touch to this one . . .

And Cappy Wells . . . the old west pointer . . . says anybody who thinks baseball has lost interest for American kids should have his noggin examined . . .

Cappy points out there will be more than 600 little leagues . . . leagues, we repeat, not teams . . . in this country this season . . . for kids not more than 13 years old . . . and they are all in uniform . . .

Last year there were only 337 litle leagues and Cappy estimates within the next few years there will be more, than 13,000,000 of such kids playing ball . . . should get another Stan Musial out of that collection . . .

Willie Turnesa . . . playing captain of the U. S. Walker Cup team . . . declares the smaller heavier British golf ball is absolutely essential for those wind-swept English courses . . .

"Playing those courses," explains Willie, "is like trying to hit to left field in a high wind in baseball and finding the ball curving into the grandstand or winding up away over in center field . . ."

Casey Stengel doesn't know which pains him most . . . his own kidneys . . . the wildness of Tommy Byrne . . . or the early season batting slumps of Joe DiMaggio and Johnny Mize . . .

Other teams asking Leo Durocher . . . "now that you've got your kind of a team, Leo, what are you going to do with it . . ." to which Leo replies. . . "))!!XX$$&&&and!!!!"

Yankee troubles aren't causing Bucky Harris to shed tears . . . some of the other clubs think Bucky has a good chance to land his Senators in the first division . . . one thing is sure they will be well managed . . .

Seven Major Leaguers Valued At $300,000 Involved In Deal

ORESTES MINOSO

Gus Zernial

Lou Brissie

CLEVELAND, April 30 (AP)—Cleveland captured pitcher Lou Brissie from Philadelphia today in a major three-club, seven-player deal that also involved the Chicago White Sox.

Beating the other contenders to the much-sought lefthander, the Indians gave up rookie infielder Orestes Minoso, relief pitcher Sam Zoldak and third string catcher Ray Murray. But Brissie could "make" their southpaw-poor staff.

Here's the way the deal works:

Cleveland—gets Brissie from Philadelphia.

Chicago—gets Minoso from Cleveland outfielder Paul Lehner from Philadelphia.

Players Worth $300,000

The value of the seven players was conservatively estimated at well over $300,000. Zernial, potentially a terrific power hitter, was sought by Philadelphia ever since Jimmy Dykes, his old boss, became manager.

"It's the kind of a deal a club makes when it's going all-out for the pennant," said Hank Greenberg, Cleveland general manager.

"We gave up a lot of power but we think we made a good deal," said Frank Lane, Chicago general manager. "Paul Richards (Sox manager) has been wild about Minoso ever since he caused him so much trouble in the Pacific Coast League."

"I think we made a good one," said Art Ehlers, A's general manager. We're going to keep moving players." The A's have lost 10 straight.

Brissie, it seems, had the only objection.

Manager Al Lopez plans to fill in with either Harry Simpson, a rookie up from SanDiego, or Allie Clark tomorrow when the Tribe opens a series against Boston. Clark will go if Boston uses a southpaw pitcher.

Frank Lane, Chicago general manager, admitted he'd given up a "lot of power" when he lost Zernial. But he added that Manager Paul Richards has been "wild about Minoso ever since he caused him so much trouble last year in the Pacific Coast League." Minoso batted .339 for San Diego while Richards was managing Seattle.

By getting Zernial the A's will be able to field two long-ball hitters for the first time in 20 years. Until now they've gotten along with Sam Chapman as their hitter.

Lane predicted that Zernial may hit "30 to 35 home runs for Philadelphia." The Sox manager noted Zernial would also have a shorter outfield to protect when playing at home for the A's. He batted .280 last year.

Brissie, who had to beg doctors during the Italian war campaign not to cut off his wounded left leg, won seven and lost 19 last year for the A's. Although he plays with a plate in his leg, he throws a fireball. In 1948, he won 14 and lost 10. In 1949, he won 16 and lost 11.

Art Ehlers, the A's general manager, said Brissie "wasn't helping us, but you never know. Maybe a change of scenery will do him some good. Lou has plenty of natural ability."

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, April 30—(INS)—No matter what happens in the lives of Shelley Winters and Farley Granger they'll be separated next January. Sam Goldwyn is sending Farley, Joan Evans and Director Mark Robson to Samoa to film "South Of Samoa," based on one of Somerset Maugham's short stories "Mackintosh."

Perhaps the greatest of the South Sea epics was made by Sam in "Hurricane." I can't think of any South Sea picture that has ever duplicated its beauty, interest and excitement. That was the one that brought Dorothy Lamour and Jon Hall to fame.

Sam never got to the Samoan island during the "Hurricane" days, but is not going to miss the opportunity this time. After he finishes "Hans Christian Anderson," with Moira Shearer and Danny Kaye, he will take off for the tropical isles and watch his picture being made.

Jack Benny has finally made up his mind to play himself in "Somebody Loves Me"—or should I say that his pal, Bill Perlberg, producer of the Blossom Seeley story made up his mind for him?

Bill and Jack are good friends and it was the Perlberg house in Palm Springs that the Bennys recently purchased. Mary Benny is so crazy about living in it, she's threatening to give up her radio and TV career to live there nine months out of the year.

This is Jack's first film fling since "The Horn Blows At Midnight," in 1945. After all the jokes he has cracked about it, I bet "Horn" would clean up if reissued.

I know one thing Virginia Van Upp told me and that is that the first story Rita Hayworth does has to be great. "That's why we are all taking care at Columbia to be sure we are on the right track," she said.

"My heart goes into any story I write for Rita." Virginia went on. "She is not only a star, but, as you know, she has my personal love as well as my professional admiration."

At the moment, Harry Cohn is considering three stories—one a musical, with a story, the other a smart up-to-the-minute comedy, and the other a romantic comedy-drama.

Rita, herself, is delighted that Virginia Van Upp, of whom she is very fond, is writing a story for her.

Robert Merrill is bringing his brother, Gilbert, Mrs. Gilbert and their baby girl to spend a month with him. But he has to wait for a little while—the baby was only born Tuesday.

June and Stu Erwin arrived in town Saturday to do 20 of the TV series, "Trouble With Father," at the Hal Roach Studio. Wonderful that June and Stu have had this great success.

The last thing Spencer Tracy and Benny Thau did before they took off for Europe was to take a look at Spence's picture, "The People vs. O'Hara." Dore Schary told them there were no retakes so the boys departed.

Robert Preston gets a chance to return to his first love, the stage, on June 4, when he replaces Jose Ferrer in "Twentieth Century." Bob goes to New York early this month to prepare for rehearsals.

The Jack Skirballs have adopted a baby.

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

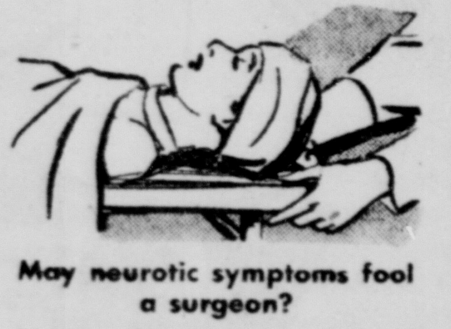
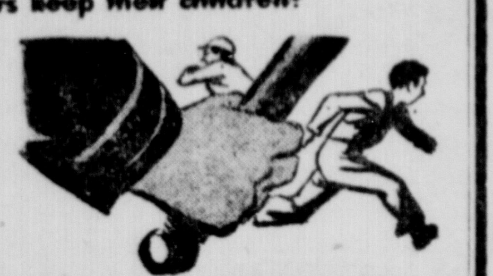
Answer: Social workers say that this is not always the wisest or even the kindest thing to do. Few unmarried mothers can work to support a baby without having to neglect him at the time when he needs intimate and loving care most. Then, too, as the child grows older, he will feel the lack of normal family life and—unjust as it may be—will probably have to suffer some degree of social ostracism. Giving him to be adopted is by no means the "easy way out" for a mother with normal emotions, but it may be the truest expression of selfless devotion.



May neurotic symptoms fool a surgeon?

Answer: Yes, and frequently they fool the patient also. There are people who have what a British surgeon calls "the Munchausen syndrome." They deliberately fake symptoms so as to have operations performed on them. More numerous are the men and women who, with the same end in view, unconsciously develop symptoms which they themselves believe to be real but which have no organic basis. You will see occasional neurotics who have had a dozen or more operations, none of which was necessary but which satisfied a morbid need to suffer.



Can youthful "gangs" be abolished?

Answer: There is little use in trying to do this, says Howard Jones in Mental Health (London). Young delinquents as a rule are ultra-social rather than anti-social and try to make up for the unsatisfactoriness of their family ties by intense devotion to a group of other children of their own type. It will be better for leaders of youth to work with the gangs (as has been done successfully in New York and elsewhere) so as to steer the group spirit into more useful channels. It has also proved worthwhile to organize the parents into groups dealing with local problems—they, too, need to "belong."

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, April 30—(INS)—No matter what happens in the lives of Shelley Winters and Farley Granger they'll be separated next January. Sam Goldwyn is sending Farley, Joan Evans and Director Mark Robson to Samoa to film "South Of Samoa," based on one of Somerset Maugham's short stories "Mackintosh."

Perhaps the greatest of the South Sea epics was made by Sam in "Hurricane." I can't think of any South Sea picture that has ever duplicated its beauty, interest and excitement. That was the one that brought Dorothy Lamour and Jon Hall to fame.

Sam never got to the Samoan island during the "Hurricane" days, but is not going to miss the opportunity this time. After he finishes "Hans Christian Anderson," with Moira Shearer and Danny Kaye, he will take off for the tropical isles and watch his picture being made.

Jack Benny has finally made up his mind to play himself in "Somebody Loves Me"—or should I say that his pal, Bill Perlberg, producer of the Blossom Seeley story made up his mind for him?

Bill and Jack are good friends and it was the Perlberg house in Palm Springs that the Bennys recently purchased. Mary Benny is so crazy about living in it, she's threatening to give up her radio and TV career to live there nine months out of the year.

This is Jack's first film fling since "The Horn Blows At Midnight," in 1945. After all the jokes he has cracked about it, I bet "Horn" would clean up if reissued.

I know one thing Virginia Van Upp told me and that is that the first story Rita Hayworth does has to be great. "That's why we are all taking care at Columbia to be sure we are on the right track," she said. "My heart goes into any story I write for Rita," Virginia went on. "She is not only a star, but, as you know, she has my personal love as well as my professional admiration."

At the moment, Harry Cohn is considering three stories—one a musical, with a story, the other a smart up-to-the-minute comedy, and the other a romantic comedy-drama.

Rita, herself, is delighted that Virginia Van Upp, of whom she is very fond, is writing a story for her.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Robert Merrill is bringing his brother, Gilbert, Mrs. Gilbert and their baby girl to spend a month with him. But he has to wait for a little while—the baby was only born Tuesday.

June and Stu Erwin arrived in town Saturday to do 20 of the TV series, "Trouble With Father," at the Hal Roach Studio. Wonderful that June and Stu have had this great success.

The last thing Spencer Tracy and Benny Thau did before they took off for Europe was to take a look at Spence's picture, "The People vs. O'Hara." Dore Schary told them there were no retakes so the boys departed.

Robert Preston gets a chance to return to his first love, the stage, on June 4, when he replaces Jose Ferrer in "Twentieth Century." Bob goes to New York early this month to prepare for rehearsals.

The Jack Skirballs have adopted a baby.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

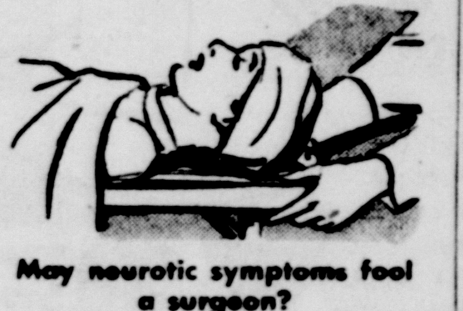
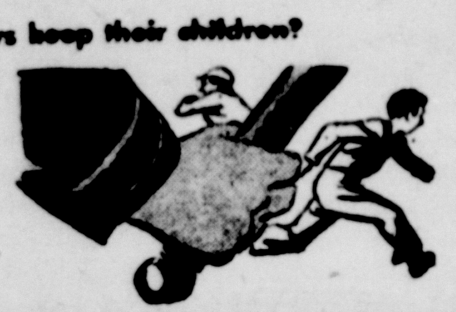
Answer: Social workers say that this is not always the wisest or even the kindest thing to do. Few unmarried mothers can work to support a baby without having to neglect him at the time when he needs intimate and loving care most. Then, too, as the child grows older, he will feel the lack of normal family life and—unjust as it may be—will probably have to suffer some degree of social ostracism. Giving him to be adopted is by no means the "easy way out" for a mother with normal emotions, but it may be the truest expression of selfless devotion.



May neurotic symptoms fool a surgeon?

Answer: Yes, and frequently they fool the patient also. There are people who have what a British surgeon calls "the Munchausen syndrome." They deliberately fake symptoms so as to have operations performed on them. More numerous are the men and women who, with the same end in view, unconsciously develop symptoms which they themselves believe to be real but which have no organic basis. You will see occasional neurotics who have had a dozen or more operations, none of which was necessary but which satisfied a morbid need to suffer.



Can youthful "gangs" be abolished?

Answer: There is little use in trying to do this, says Howard Jones in Mental Health (London). Young delinquents as a rule are ultra-social rather than anti-social and try to make up for the unsatisfactoriness of their family ties by intense devotion to a group of other children of their own type. It will be better for leaders of youth to work with the gangs (as has been done successfully in New York and elsewhere) so as to steer the group spirit into more useful channels. It has also proved worthwhile to organize the parents into groups dealing with local problems—they, too, need to "belong."

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS)

AMONG the Americans being held by the Reds on brutally trumped-up charges, and with little immediate hope of release along the lines of Robert Vogeler, are some missionary friends I wrote about a year or so ago in a book named "The Maryknoll Story."

Mark Tennien, of Pittsford, Vt., for one, a jeep-driving priest who largely created what became known as "the miracle of Blue Cloud County." With the weapons of good works Tennien invaded the mountainous country west and north of Canton and Hong Kong and, with others from Maryknoll, brought about an epochal mass conversion in an openly hostile land.

His opening wedge was a box of atabrine with which he dosed 200 Blue Cloud villagers and saved them from malaria. He moved on to the city of Shumkai, first missionary in history to visit there, and ran into a blank wall. But the break for which he prayed eventually came.

One day as he jeeped along a dizzy mountain road he looked down a deep ravine to see the wreckage of a truck, and the bodies of six Chinese tossed about it. Tennien and Maryknoll Brother Francis climbed down, found the Mandarin of Shumkai, saved his life, and thereafter had him as their devoted champion. Conversions were of deluge proportions as a result of what Tennien could feel was a routine act of Samaritanism.

Entire towns yielded to Tennien's word. Ancestor shrines, joss-stick bowls and all the other trappings of the deeply rooted religion of that area were voluntarily disposed of as Tennien moved from home to home, sprinkling everything in sight with what the Chinese called "chase-devil water."

Tennien's superior in that area, Bishop Frederick Donaghy, also was jailed when the devils who do not readily yield to holy water swept down from the north. The Bishop's indifference to their threats must have been magnificent. He made a habit for years of inviting known bandits to his shack, to brave their guns, share his humbled grub and strong tobacco.

Jailed also has been Russ Sprinkle, a priest who looks like Crosby did in "Going My Way." His crime was that he brought a little intrinsic American kindness and care to the Pingnam district's 487 villages and nearly half a million inhabitants. One man aligned against appalling forces of famine, illiteracy, and godlessness.

Father Bob Kennelly of Norwalk, Conn., is another Maryknoller recently seized. The man had saved countless thousands of abandoned Chinese children during his years of work in Kongmoon and had become a beloved figure in the area.

Kennelly bought a Hong Kong horse to use in his travels through Kongmoon early in his career there. The size of the animal stunned the Chinese inlanders, and a familiar warning from mother to naughty child became, "If you do that again, I'll call the foreign-devil priest and he'll come charging over the hills on that great red foreign-devil animal, and then you'll be sorry!"

Later Kennelly picked up a motorcycle, causing fresh wonder. The Chinese called it a "put-put ch'e," and said, completely bewildered, "The man is not consumed by the fire within it."

One of Kennelly's great contributions to his orphans, as they grew to marriageable age, was his one-man matrimonial bureau. He scraped up a $100 bill somewhere and wore it thin, lending it to eligible bachelors long enough for them to present it back to Kennelly in handsome "payment" of an orphan bride. Thus the girl saved "face," and the man showed that he could deal with large sums of money without corruption.

Bishop Francis Ford, first applicant when Maryknoll was formed in 1912, was taken into custody by the Chinese Reds at Kaying. Bishop Patrick J. Byrne, a witty modern version of St. Francis Xavier, was grabbed in Seoul by the North Koreans— just as the Japs had jailed him in the other war. Nothing has been heard from the good-natured man of God who used to tell a twinkling-eyed story about "a young Korean priest who met a band of Chinese bandits, to whom he remained strongly attached for several months by reason of a wire through his ear."

Good men, these and so many others, Catholic and non-Catholic, who have had heavy hands laid upon them for pursuing the paths of justice and charity and godliness. God save them.

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS)

AMONG the Americans being held by the Reds on brutally trumped-up charges, and with little immediate hope of release along the lines of Robert Vogeler, are some missionary friends I wrote about a year or so ago in a book named "The Maryknoll Story."

Mark Tennien, of Pittsford, Vt., for one, a jeep-driving priest who largely created what became known as "the miracle of Blue Cloud County." With the weapons of good works Tennien invaded the mountainous country west and north of Canton and Hong Kong and, with others from Maryknoll, brought about an epochal mass conversion in an openly hostile land.

His opening wedge was a box of atabrine with which he dosed 200 Blue Cloud villagers and saved them from malaria. He moved on to the city of Shumkai, first missionary in history to visit there, and ran into a blank wall. But the break for which he prayed eventually came.

One day as he jeeped along a dizzy mountain road he looked down a deep ravine to see the wreckage of a truck, and the bodies of six Chinese tossed about it. Tennien and Maryknoll Brother Francis climbed down, found the Mandarin of Shumkai, saved his life, and thereafter had him as their devoted champion. Conversions were of deluge proportions as a result of what Tennien could feel was a routine act of Samaritanism.

Entire towns yielded to Tennien's word. Ancestor shrines, joss-stick bowls and all the other trappings of the deeply rooted religion of that area were voluntarily disposed of as Tennien moved from home to home, sprinkling everything in sight with what the Chinese called "chase-devil water."

Tennien's superior in that area, Bishop Frederick Donaghy, also was jailed when the devils who do not readily yield to holy water swept down from the north. The Bishop's indifference to their threats must have been magnificent. He made a habit for years of inviting known bandits to his shack, to brave their guns, share his humbled grub and strong tobacco.

Jailed also has been Russ Sprinkle, a priest who looks like Crosby did in "Going My Way." His crime was that he brought a little intrinsic American kindness and care to the Pingnam district's 487 villages and nearly half a million inhabitants. One man aligned against appalling forces of famine, illiteracy, and godlessness.

Father Bob Kennelly of Norwalk, Conn., is another Maryknoller recently seized. The man had saved countless thousands of abandoned Chinese children during his years of work in Kongmoon and had become a beloved figure in the area.

Kennelly bought a Hong Kong horse to use in his travels through Kongmoon early in his career there. The size of the animal stunned the Chinese inlanders, and a familiar warning from mother to naughty child became, "If you do that again, I'll call the foreign-devil priest and he'll come charging over the hills on that great red foreign-devil animal, and then you'll be sorry!"

Later Kennelly picked up a motorcycle, causing fresh wonder. The Chinese called it a "put-put ch'e," and said, completely bewildered, "The man is not consumed by the fire within it."

One of Kennelly's great contributions to his orphans, as they grew to marriageable age, was his one-man matrimonial bureau. He scraped up a $100 bill somewhere and wore it thin, lending it to eligible bachelors long enough for them to present it back to Kennelly in handsome "payment" of an orphan bride. Thus the girl saved "face," and the man showed that he could deal with large sums of money without corruption.

Bishop Francis Ford, first applicant when Maryknoll was formed in 1912, was taken into custody by the Chinese Reds at Kaying. Bishop Patrick J. Byrne, a witty modern version of St. Francis Xavier, was grabbed in Seoul by the North Koreans— just as the Japs had jailed him in the other war. Nothing has been heard from the good-natured man of God who used to tell a twinkling-eyed story about "a young Korean priest who met a band of Chinese bandits, to whom he remained strongly attached for several months by reason of a wire through his ear."

Good men, these and so many others, Catholic and non-Catholic, who have had heavy hands laid upon them for pursuing the paths of justice and charity and godliness. God save them.

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Market Average Declines Due To Late Selling Flurry

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP)—A flurry of late selling today gave the stock market its first average setback in nearly a week.

Special targets were some of the railroads, oils and chemicals, which had led early trading with gains ranging to more than $2 a share. Many of these advances were trimmed or turned into declines. And the unsettlement pushed other sections of the market into lower ground.

Except for the favorites, stock prices right from the start showed no inclination to resume last week's rise. But at the same time urgent selling pressure was lacking.

The Associated Press 60-stock average dropped 20 cents at $95.90. Industrials and utilities were unchanged, rails declined 60 cents.

Of the 1,124 issues traded in a relatively narrow market, there were 524 on the down side while 384 closed higher, 64 of these touching new 1951 highs. About 25 stocks reached new lows for the year.

Major news development of the day was President Truman's dispatching to Congress a defense budget of more than $60 billions, with his estimates that expenditures in the current and following fiscal year would be slightly under previous figures. Wall Street noted his statement that the budget aimed at a preparedness level "well within our ability to maintain for many years, if necessary."

Brokers pointed out that some sort of "breathing spell" was to be expected in trading after last week's push to within striking distance of the highest price average in the last 21 years.

And just as they cited the expansion of trading of recent sessions as evidence of trading viewed as encouraging to those looking for an upward trend.

Total transactions dropped to 1,790,000 shares, compared with 2,120,000 on Friday, the previous full day.

Chicago Board Of Trade

CHICAGO, April 30 (AP)—Grains mostly ended lower on the board of Trade today despite some last minute buying which gave the market a good lift from its earlier bottoms.

Rye showed independent firmness, as it did mast of last week, and oats had a relatively steady undertone. These were the only two exceptions, however, to the general trend. Closing prices:

"The Authority on Authorities"

REVERSE OF A HOLD-UP

MANY good players have never realized the fundamental difference between the two plays known as "the hold-up" and "the duck." They are alike in that the holder of a card high enough to win the current trick deliberately plays low and lets the other side have it, retaining the card to win a later trick. They are diametrically different in purpose, however. The hold-up is to prevent the opponents from running a suit, whereas the duck is to enable your own side to run its suit.

Ben. J. Sackheim, president of the Stronghold Screw Products Company of Chicago and head of the International Screwball Society, is no screwball at either business or bridge. He gave on this deal an ideal example of effective use of "the duck" by a defender. It was in one of the great tournaments on the luxury liner Independence during its gala maiden cruise in the Mediterranean, and helped his pair win.

He sat in the West and led the heart 7, on which East put the 10, South winning with the K. The declarer counted tricks and decided he needed some in diamonds, so led the 3 to the J, the K winning. Back came the heart 6, on which South put the Q. Here was the crisis. But Mr. Sackheim thought clearly, having seen East's 6 lead, and reckoned either the 5 or 3 would still be in his partner's hand. So he let South win, playing the 2. When the diamond A won the Q on the next trick, East returned the heart 3, and the resulting three heart tricks beat the contract. Note that, if Mr. Sackheim had won the second heart trick, his hand would have been dead and South would have lost only two diamonds and a club. Also note that South, by playing low on either the first or second heart lead, would have assured his contract. He also could have done it by attacking clubs instead of diamonds, giving up an early one and using the duck himself.

Many other examples of good bidding and play were given in the games on the Good Ship Independence during its epochal voyage as the greatest of all American peace ships. They will be unveiled here from time to time.

Market Average Declines Due To Late Selling Flurry

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP)—A flurry of late selling today gave the stock market its first average setback in nearly a week.

Special targets were some of the railroads, oils and chemicals, which had led early trading with gains ranging to more than $2 a share. Many of these advances were trimmed or turned into declines. And the unsettlement pushed other sections of the market into lower ground.

Except for the favorites, stock prices right from the start showed no inclination to resume last week's rise. But at the same time urgent selling pressure was lacking.

The Associated Press 60-stock average dropped 20 cents at $95.90. Industrials and utilities were unchanged, rails declined 60 cents.

Of the 1,124 issues traded in a relatively narrow market, there were 524 on the down side while 384 closed higher, 64 of these touching new 1951 highs. About 25 stocks reached new lows for the year.

Major news development of the day was President Truman's dispatching to Congress a defense budget of more than $60 billions, with his estimates that expenditures in the current and following fiscal year would be slightly under previous figures. Wall Street noted his statement that the budget aimed at a preparedness level "well within our ability to maintain for many years, if necessary."

Brokers pointed out that some sort of "breathing spell" was to be expected in trading after last week's push to within striking distance of the highest price average in the last 21 years.

And just as they cited the expansion of trading of recent sessions as evidence of trading viewed as encouraging to those looking for an upward trend.

Total transactions dropped to 1,790,000 shares, compared with 2,120,000 on Friday, the previous full day.

REVERSE OF A HOLD-UP

MANY good players have never realized the fundamental difference between the two plays known as "the hold-up" and "the duck." They are alike in that the holder of a card high enough to win the current trick deliberately plays low and lets the other side have it, retaining the card to win a later trick. They are diametrically different in purpose, however. The hold-up is to prevent the opponents from running a suit, whereas the duck is to enable your own side to run its suit.

Ben. J. Sackheim, president of the Stronghold Screw Products Company of Chicago and head of the International Screwball Society, is no screwball at either business or bridge. He gave on this deal an ideal example of effective use of "the duck" by a defender. It was in one of the great tournaments on the luxury liner Independence during its gala maiden cruise in the Mediterranean, and helped his pair win.

He sat in the West and led the heart 7, on which East put the 10, South winning with the K. The declarer counted tricks and decided he needed some in diamonds, so led the 3 to the J, the K winning. Back came the heart 6, on which South put the Q. Here was the crisis. But Mr. Sackheim thought clearly, having seen East's 6 lead, and reckoned either the 5 or 3 would still be in his partner's hand. So he let South win, playing the 2. When the diamond A won the Q on the next trick, East returned the heart 3, and the resulting three heart tricks beat the contract. Note that, if Mr. Sackheim had won the second heart trick, his hand would have been dead and South would have lost only two diamonds and a club. Also note that South, by playing low on either the first or second heart lead, would have assured his contract. He also could have done it by attacking clubs instead of diamonds, giving up an early one and using the duck himself.

Many other examples of good bidding and play were given in the games on the Good Ship Independence during its epochal voyage as the greatest of all American peace ships. They will be unveiled here from time to time.

Had Sought $10,000 From LaVale Crash

A Silver Spring woman, who had filed suit for $10,000 damages, yesterday was awarded only a $500 verdict by a jury in Allegany County Circuit Court.

The woman's husband, who at the same time filed a $2,500 as a result of a traffic accident on or about last December 3 on National Highway at LaVale, received nothing.

Mrs. Frances Davis, who lives at 2311 Homestead Drive, Silver Spring, had filed suit February 15 against Robert F. Mackert,533 Greene Street. In the declaration, filed by Cumberland Attorney Milton Gerson, Mrs. Davis charged the defendant's automobile, which was headed west on Route 40 at LaVale, suddenly and without warning swung to the center of the highway and then instantly made a right turn, without signalling, striking Mrs.' Davis' husband's car, which had been following Mackert. In the petition, Mrs. Davis, who was a passenger in her husband's car, contends she was painfully and permanently injured.

At the time Gerson filed the suit for Mrs. Davis he also filed a $2,500 suit on behalf of her husband, Gerald W. Davis. This was for loss of his wife's services and for damage to his automobile.

Mackert, on April 10, through Attorney W. Earle Cobey filed a cross-claim against Davis for $500 damage to his automobile. Mackert contended he was driving properly and that Davis tried to pass his automobile without giving any warning signal.

Attorneys yesterday agreed to consolidate the two suits for a single trial. Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris ordered a directed verdict for the defendant, Mackert, in Davis' $2,500 suit. The jury returned a verdict for $500 for Mrs. Davis in her $10,000 suit and a verdict for her husband in the $500 cross-claim.

School Maintenance Men To Continue Problem Study

Maintenance supervisors of county public school systems in the state have departed from Western Maryland with plans to study various phases of their mutual problems, Joseph T. Downey, supervisor of maintenance in the Allegany County school system, said yesterday.

Fifteen maintenance supervisors from 10 Maryland counties met Friday in the Allegany County Board of Education building on Washington Street. That night they went to New Germany Recreation Area in Garrett County and spent considerable time Saturday in discussions.

Downey, who is chairman of the organization of maintenance supervisors, said that the group, still without an official name, decided to meet next in Towson May 26. At that time plans will be made for a four-day workshop to be held the week of June 25 at Towson State Teachers College. Chief goal of the workshop is the establishment of a training program for custodial help within each Maryland county.

Between now and the Towson meeting, the supervisors also plan to study such problems as organization of building care, heating and ventilation control, housekeeping and building and equipment repairs. A two-man team will study each problem.

Besides Downey those who attended the meetings in Allegany and Garrett Counties were Dwight Jacobus, State Department of Education; William Willis, Jr., Ian Gordon, Jack Bauer, all Baltimore County; Russell Kepler, Washington County; Thomas Graser, Garrett County; Lewis Eaden, Frederick County; J. P. Grabarkewitz and George Barcel, Montgomery County; Frank Baker and J. M. Dennis, Anne Arundel County; Stewart Weidner, Carroll County; William Fink, Talbott County; Arthur Robinson and Armand Biscontini, both Prince Georges County.

Sulphur Kills Fish And Plant Life; May Affect Industries

One of the most noticeable cases of pollution of the Potomac River by mine water was reported this week by residents in the Kitzmiller area.

Sportsmen and miners there, noticing that the river, for the first time in their memory, had turned into a nasty yellowish sulphur color, and was giving off a sulphuric odor, some of them traveled toward headwaters to investigate.

They report that the water is flowing from the abandoned Kempton mining operation, coming from the mouth of the mines and a large bore hole, in great quantities.

These men express the view that since the mines was abandoned, pumps and other machinery removed, the opening has filled with water and it has now broken out to pollute the river.

Fishing Is Ruined

Laurel Run, for all practical fishing purposes is ruined, they report. Known as one of the best trout streams in Garrett County, sportsmen report many large trout floating dead in the water, killed by the pollution.

Men familiar with the area explain that the mine water formerly was pumped out on the other side of the mountain, but with the removal of the pumping equipment, the mine has filled, and several other operations are draining into it. The overflow gushes out to pollute Laurel Run and the Potomac.

The polluted, discolored condition is noticeable along the stream for 50 miles or more. It gradually disappears just above Piedmont, so far as appearance is concerned, but industrial officials along the river say "greater quantities of sulphur have been noticed recently."

More Sludge Noticed

At the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Mill Company in Luke, Julian Patrick said they had noticed less fluctuation in the pollution in the past couple of weeks, and also noted a high sulphur and sludge content in the water, but did not know the cause. He said he was grateful for the information, and the situation would be checked to determine if it will damage their filter plant, etc.

Other plants along the river which use quantities of the water also report noticing greater pollution but had no information on the cause.

George M. Hitchcock, a member of the Upper Potomac River Board, and superintendent of the city's water supply, when informed of the situation declared, "immediate steps should be taken to correct such a condition. High sulphur content will destroy all life in the stream and along the banks. Pollution of so great an extent," he added, "would affect all of the major industries along the Upper Potomac."

Plant Life Dies

Foliage along the stream in the area below Kitzmiller to the mine, has been affected. Plant life close to the water's edge is dying. Rocks are so yellow they look like huge chunks of gold. The fish are gone. There is a slippery, smelly sludge all through the stream and along the banks.

This section of the Potomac for many years was about the cleanest and least polluted for several generations, although some mine water poured into it. But miners and sportsmen in the area say they cannot recall when the stream was polluted as badly as it is now.

Two Shops Rent New Locations

Two Cumberland business establishments plan to move to new locations in the next few weeks.

The Jack 'n Jill Shop, located at 16 South Liberty Street for the past four years, will move to a modern building recently constructed at 18 North Centre Street. The Jack 'n Jill specializes in children's clothes furniture and toys. Henry Sauer owner of the business, said the new location will contain all up to date fixtures and will have a glass front. New type display cases for clothing will be introduced in Cumberland at the new store.

Curl's Camera Shop, which has been located at 35 North Liberty Street, since December 17, 1945, will also move to the same building.

A third store room as yet has not been rented. The building was started the beginning of this year and completion is expected during this month. The Frater Realty Corp., New York City, is constructing the modern building on Centre Street.

City Refuses Wrecking Lot Permit Request

Business Termed In Violation Of Code

The Mayor and Council last night turned down an application for the location of an auto wrecking lot on Sylvan Avenue.

On the recommendation of Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, the application of C. R. Jones to operate a business involving "auto wrecking and buying and selling scrap metals" at 722 Sylvan Avenue was refused.

The action was taken on grounds that the presence of the business is in violation of the City Code and Zoning Ordinance No. 1776.

The Mayor and Council also ruled that the granting of a license to David Miller to operate a yard at 1415 River Avenue be refused until terms of an occupancy permit are met.

Mrs. Roeder reported that investigation disclosed that Miller is occupying more space than his occupancy permit allows.

The city officials also ruled that a fence should be built around the auto supply property before a new license is granted.

Two $5,000 Suits Filed In Court

Two $5,000 suits, both growing out of accidents which occurred last Christmas weekend, have been filed in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Mrs. Lillian M. May, Bowman's Addition, filed suit through Attorney Thomas N. Berry against John Weaver, 201 Columbia Street. Mrs. May, who was a passenger in an automobile driven west on Henderson Avenue by her husband, Albert Ira May, the night of December 23, charged that Weaver left his truck parked along Henderson Avenue at the intersection with Polk Street without warning lights. She further contended that the body of the truck extended into the west-bound traffic lane on Henderson Avenue. Her injuries included multiple contusions, and lacerations about the head, face, throat and other parts of her body.

In the other $5,000 suit, Roy C. Wilson, local barber, sued, Harry Winfield and Mrs. Marion Winfield, both of Zihlman.

Attorney William H. Geppert, who filed the suit for Wilson, cited that he was walking in the crosswalk across Bedford Street at its intersection with North Mechanic Street on or about December 24. Wilson alleged that he was seriously and painfully injured and was unable to earn a living as a barber as a result of a broken left leg. He cited that he was struck by an automobile driven by Harry Winfield and owned by Mrs. Winfield, his mother.

Railroad Asks City Approval For Expansion

Long Range Program Outlined At Council Session Last Night

Plans for extensive improvements of the Thomas Street area as the first step in a long-range improvements for the Cumberland terminal were disclosed last night by officials of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company.

The total cost of the project, estimated at about $75,000 for construction and another $100,000 for property, will be met by the company, according to U. S. Holden, senior assistant engineer for the railroad.

Details of the plans were related when railroad officials asked the Mayor and Council to approve an agreement involving the plan for relocating Thomas Street and the elimination of two death curves along the main artery.

Eliminates Curves

William A. Gunter, who worked out the agreement with City Attorney W. Earle Cobey, said the project will result in the relocation of Thomas Street with a 40 foot width, the elimination of two bad curves and at the same time will allow the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to straighten out and expand its tracks in that area.

He added the agreement provides that all cost of the work will be borne by the B. and O., with the city getting a modern street free.

Holden pointed out that all of the plans have been prepared under the supervision of the City Engineer.

He said the Thomas Street project is the first step in the company's long range plans for Cumberland, one of the major terminals of the company, and the project will allow more room for expansion in the yards in that area.

He added that most of the land needed for the project has been purchased.

Prepare Agreement

The tentative agreement points out that the City desires to eliminate the sharp curves on Thomas Street which constitute traffic hazards while the railroad desires to widen its right of way in the Thomas Street area in order to make improvements in the alignment of tracks. In so doing, the railroad will require additional land, including city owned land on Thomas Street, West Third Street and High Street.

A construction plan for the relocation of Thomas Street was approved by the Mayor and City Engineer on March 30.

The proposed agreement points out that it is advantageous to the city and the railroad to exchange certain properties owned by each in order to accomplish the desired improvements.

The railroad will cause to be conveyed to the city specific areas to be used for relocating Thomas Street, thereby eliminating the sharp curves on the present Thomas Street.

Must Pass Ordinance

In connection with the plan, the Railroad has made application for the passage of an ordinance for the closing of certain portions of Thomas Street, West Third Street and all of High Street, the closing of three alleys and the relocation of needed portions of Thomas Street.

The city has indicated its willingness to enact the preliminary ordinance, but has requested the railroad to enter into a written agreement on terms of the improvements.

The agreement would provide that when certain properties on Thomas Street, West Third Street and High Street owned by the city are conveyed without cost to the railroad, the railroad will convey, without cost, to the city, all lands needed to relocate the street.

It points out that the railroad has not yet acquired certain lands needed between West Second Street and West Third Street and between West Third Street and the intersection of Crawford Street with Thomas Street.

Railroad Pays Costs

The B. and O. would agree, under the pact, to again enter into negotiations with the property owners to secure necessary rights of ways. In the event the railroad fails to reach an amicable agreement with the property owners, the city, when requested, would secure these properties under Sections 127 and 128 of

The money will be used to help put on the Leadership Training School this fall.

City Employes Ask Council For Wage Hike

Meeting To Be Held To Discuss Request

The Mayor and Council promised last night to meet with officials of Local 812, Municipal Workers (AFL), for discussions on a cost of living wage increase.

Mayor Thomas S. Post said the meeting will be held as soon as Water Commissioner George H. Tederick returns from the American Waterworks Association convention in Miami.

C. W. Shipes, president, said he had been instructed by members of the municipal workers union to request a meeting with the Mayor and Council to discuss a wage increase for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1951.

"Due to the cost of living and a raise granted by the Legislature to a few city employes, we feel something should be done for the laboring class of employes.

"We realize the budget will not be drawn up until August, but we deem it advisable to get our request in early so as to give you time for study and consideration," the union communication said.

The increase referred to in the letter was a flat $12 a month granted to members of the Police and Fire Department by the Legislature.

The Delegation sponsored bill was tied to the granting to the city of a five cent boost in property taxes.

Had Sought $10,000 From LaVale Crash

A Silver Spring woman, who had filed suit for $10,000 damages, yesterday was awarded only a $500 verdict by a jury in Allegany County Circuit Court.

The woman's husband, who at the same time filed a $2,500 as a result of a traffic accident on or about last December 3 on National Highway at LaVale, received nothing.

Mrs. Frances Davis, who lives at 2311 Homestead Drive, Silver Spring, had filed suit February 15 against Robert F. Mackert,533 Greene Street. In the declaration, filed by Cumberland Attorney Milton Gerson, Mrs. Davis charged the defendant's automobile, which was headed west on Route 40 at LaVale, suddenly and without warning swung to the center of the highway and then instantly made a right turn, without signalling, striking Mrs.' Davis' husband's car, which had been following Mackert. In the petition, Mrs. Davis, who was a passenger in her husband's car, contends she was painfully and permanently injured.

At the time Gerson filed the suit for Mrs. Davis he also filed a $2,500 suit on behalf of her husband, Gerald W. Davis. This was for loss of his wife's services and for damage to his automobile.

Mackert, on April 10, through Attorney W. Earle Cobey filed a cross-claim against Davis for $500 damage to his automobile. Mackert contended he was driving properly and that Davis tried to pass his automobile without giving any warning signal.

Attorneys yesterday agreed to consolidate the two suits for a single trial. Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris ordered a directed verdict for the defendant, Mackert, in Davis' $2,500 suit. The jury returned a verdict for $500 for Mrs. Davis in her $10,000 suit and a verdict for her husband in the $500 cross-claim.

Sulphur Kills Fish And Plant Life; May Affect Industries

One of the most noticeable cases of pollution of the Potomac River by mine water was reported this week by residents in the Kitzmiller area.

Sportsmen and miners there, noticing that the river, for the first time in their memory, had turned into a nasty yellowish sulphur color, and was giving off a sulphuric odor, some of them traveled toward headwaters to investigate.

They report that the water is flowing from the abandoned Kempton mining operation, coming from the mouth of the mines and a large bore hole, in great quantities.

These men express the view that since the mines was abandoned, pumps and other machinery removed, the opening has filled with water and it has now broken out to pollute the river.

Fishing Is Ruined

Laurel Run, for all practical fishing purposes is ruined, they report. Known as one of the best trout streams in Garrett County, sportsmen report many large trout floating dead in the water, killed by the pollution.

Men familiar with the area explain that the mine water formerly was pumped out on the other side of the mountain, but with the removal of the pumping equipment, the mine has filled, and several other operations are draining into it. The overflow gushes out to pollute Laurel Run and the Potomac.

The polluted, discolored condition is noticeable along the stream for 50 miles or more. It gradually disappears just above Piedmont, so far as appearance is concerned, but industrial officials along the river say "greater quantities of sulphur have been noticed recently."

More Sludge Noticed

At the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Mill Company in Luke, Julian Patrick said they had noticed less fluctuation in the pollution in the past couple of weeks, and also noted a high sulphur and sludge content in the water, but did not know the cause. He said he was grateful for the information, and the situation would be checked to determine if it will damage their filter plant, etc.

Other plants along the river which use quantities of the water also report noticing greater pollution but had no information on the cause.

George M. Hitchcock, a member of the Upper Potomac River Board, and superintendent of the city's water supply, when informed of the situation declared, "immediate steps should be taken to correct such a condition. High sulphur content will destroy all life in the stream and along the banks. Pollution of so great an extent," he added, "would affect all of the major industries along the Upper Potomac."

Plant Life Dies

Foliage along the stream in the area below Kitzmiller to the mine, has been affected. Plant life close to the water's edge is dying. Rocks are so yellow they look like huge chunks of gold. The fish are gone. There is a slippery, smelly sludge all through the stream and along the banks.

This section of the Potomac for many years was about the cleanest and least polluted for several generations, although some mine water poured into it. But miners and sportsmen in the area say they cannot recall when the stream was polluted as badly as it is now.

Two Shops Rent New Locations

Two Cumberland business establishments plan to move to new locations in the next few weeks.

The Jack 'n Jill Shop, located at 16 South Liberty Street for the past four years, will move to a modern building recently constructed at 18 North Centre Street. The Jack 'n Jill specializes in children's clothes furniture and toys. Henry Sauer owner of the business, said the new location will contain all up to date fixtures and will have a glass front. New type display cases for clothing will be introduced in Cumberland at the new store.

Curl's Camera Shop, which has been located at 35 North Liberty Street, since December 17, 1945, will also move to the same building.

A third store room as yet has not been rented. The building was started the beginning of this year and completion is expected during this month. The Frater Realty Corp., New York City, is constructing the modern building on Centre Street.

City Refuses Wrecking Lot Permit Request

Business Termed In Violation Of Code

The Mayor and Council last night turned down an application for the location of an auto wrecking lot on Sylvan Avenue.

On the recommendation of Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, the application of C. R. Jones to operate a business involving "auto wrecking and buying and selling scrap metals" at 722 Sylvan Avenue was refused.

The action was taken on grounds that the presence of the business is in violation of the City Code and Zoning Ordinance No. 1776.

The Mayor and Council also ruled that the granting of a license to David Miller to operate a yard at 1415 River Avenue be refused until terms of an occupancy permit are met.

Mrs. Roeder reported that investigation disclosed that Miller is occupying more space than his occupancy permit allows.

The city officials also ruled that a fence should be built around the auto supply property before a new license is granted.

Two $5,000 Suits Filed In Court

Two $5,000 suits, both growing out of accidents which occurred last Christmas weekend, have been filed in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Mrs. Lillian M. May, Bowman's Addition, filed suit through Attorney Thomas N. Berry against John Weaver, 201 Columbia Street. Mrs. May, who was a passenger in an automobile driven west on Henderson Avenue by her husband, Albert Ira May, the night of December 23, charged that Weaver left his truck parked along Henderson Avenue at the intersection with Polk Street without warning lights. She further contended that the body of the truck extended into the west-bound traffic lane on Henderson Avenue. Her injuries included multiple contusions, and lacerations about the head, face, throat and other parts of her body.

In the other $5,000 suit, Roy C. Wilson, local barber, sued, Harry Winfield and Mrs. Marion Winfield, both of Zihlman.

Attorney William H. Geppert, who filed the suit for Wilson, cited that he was walking in the crosswalk across Bedford Street at its intersection with North Mechanic Street on or about December 24. Wilson alleged that he was seriously and painfully injured and was unable to earn a living as a barber as a result of a broken left leg. He cited that he was struck by an automobile driven by Harry Winfield and owned by Mrs. Winfield, his mother.

School Maintenance Men To Continue Problem Study

Maintenance supervisors of county public school systems in the state have departed from Western Maryland with plans to study various phases of their mutual problems, Joseph T. Downey, supervisor of maintenance in the Allegany County school system, said yesterday.

Fifteen maintenance supervisors from 10 Maryland counties met Friday in the Allegany County Board of Education building on Washington Street. That night they went to New Germany Recreation Area in Garrett County and spent considerable time Saturday in discussions.

Downey, who is chairman of the organization of maintenance supervisors, said that the group, still without an official name, decided to meet next in Towson May 26. At that time plans will be made for a four-day workshop to be held the week of June 25 at Towson State Teachers College. Chief goal of the workshop is the establishment of a training program for custodial help within each Maryland county.

Between now and the Towson meeting, the supervisors also plan to study such problems as organization of building care, heating and ventilation control, housekeeping and building and equipment repairs. A two-man team will study each problem.

Besides Downey those who attended the meetings in Allegany and Garrett Counties were Dwight Jacobus, State Department of Education; William Willis, Jr., Ian Gordon, Jack Bauer, all Baltimore County; Russell Kepler, Washington County; Thomas Graser, Garrett County; Lewis Eaden, Frederick County; J. P. Grabarkewitz and George Barcel, Montgomery County; Frank Baker and J. M. Dennis, Anne Arundel County; Stewart Weidner, Carroll County; William Fink, Talbott County; Arthur Robinson and Armand Biscontini, both Prince Georges County.

Railroad Asks City Approval For Expansion

Long Range Program Outlined At Council Session Last Night

Plans for extensive improvements of the Thomas Street area as the first step in a long-range improvements for the Cumberland terminal were disclosed last night by officials of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company.

The total cost of the project, estimated at about $75,000 for construction and another $100,000 for property, will be met by the company, according to U. S. Holden, senior assistant engineer for the railroad.

Details of the plans were related when railroad officials asked the Mayor and Council to approve an agreement involving the plan for relocating Thomas Street and the elimination of two death curves along the main artery.

Eliminates Curves

William A. Gunter, who worked out the agreement with City Attorney W. Earle Cobey, said the project will result in the relocation of Thomas Street with a 40 foot width, the elimination of two bad curves and at the same time will allow the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to straighten out and expand its tracks in that area.

He added the agreement provides that all cost of the work will be borne by the B. and O., with the city getting a modern street free.

Holden pointed out that all of the plans have been prepared under the supervision of the City Engineer.

He said the Thomas Street project is the first step in the company's long range plans for Cumberland, one of the major terminals of the company, and the project will allow more room for expansion in the yards in that area.

He added that most of the land needed for the project has been purchased.

Prepare Agreement

The tentative agreement points out that the City desires to eliminate the sharp curves on Thomas Street which constitute traffic hazards while the railroad desires to widen its right of way in the Thomas Street area in order to make improvements in the alignment of tracks. In so doing, the railroad will require additional land, including city owned land on Thomas Street, West Third Street and High Street.

A construction plan for the relocation of Thomas Street was approved by the Mayor and City Engineer on March 30.

The proposed agreemant points out that it is advantageous to the city and the railroad to exchange certain properties owned by each in order to accomplish the desired improvements.

The railroad will cause to be conveyed to the city specific areas to be used for relocating Thomas Street, thereby eliminating the sharp curves on the present Thomas Street.

Must Pass Ordinance

In connection with the plan, the Railroad has made application for the passage of an ordinance for the closing of certain portions of Thomas Street, West Third Street and all of High Street, the closing of three alleys and the relocation of needed portions of Thomas Street.

The city has indicated its willingness to enact the preliminary ordinance, but has requested the railroad to enter into a written agreement on terms of the improvements.

The agreement would provide that when certain properties on Thomas Street, West Third Street and High Street owned by the city are conveyed without cost to the railroad, the railroad will convey, without cost, to the city, all lands needed to relocate the street.

It points out that the railroad has not yet acquired certain lands needed between West Second Street and West Third Street and between West Third Street and the intersection of Crawford Street with Thomas Street.

Railroad Pays Costs

The B. and O. would agree, under the pact, to again enter into negotiations with the property owners to secure necessary rights of ways. In the event the railroad fails to reach an amicable agreement with the property owners, the city, when requested, would secure these properties under Sections 127 and 128 of

REDS' PUSH APPARENTLY STALLED

GOP Raises Cry Of 'Terrible Injustice'

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP) — Democratic senators rode down Republican protests today and decreed a closed-door hearing for Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

MacArthur will testify Thursday about his dismissal as Far Eastern commander and the host of foreign policy questions his ouster raised.

The Senate Armed Service and Foreign Relations Committees, set for a joint investigation with MacArthur as the first witness, voted 14 to 9 today to bar the public from the hearings.

Russell To Preside

Chairman Russell (D-Ga) of the Armed Services Committee, who will preside at the hearings, said closed-door hearings were necessary to prevent military secrets from being leaked.

MacArthur plans to fly here from New York to give his testimony and to return to New York late Thursday.

His spokesman, Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney, declined direct comment on the committees' action but said MacArthur will respond to whatever request the committees make.

Whitney was with MacArthur in Murfreesboro, Tenn.

The hearings will bring to a new climax the "Great Debate" on how the U. S. should conduct the war against the Chinese Communists and erect barriers against further Communist aggression at the same time.

Two architects of opposing policies, Secretary of State Acheson and Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), drew the line of conflict clearer today in speeches to the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

Taft Urges "Aggressive War"

Acheson claimed successes for his limit-the-war policy in Korea and declared that the best chance of real victory lies in holding firm to that policy.

Senate Democratic Leader McFarland of Arizona, meanwhile, said after a White House briefing that the situation in Korea "didn't seem to look so black."

"The withdrawals seem to be orderly," McFarland told reporters without elaborating. He and other congressional leaders were given a private military report on the Korean situation at their regular weekly meeting with President Truman.

Union Labor Leaders Vote To End Two-Month Boycott Of Key Defense Agencies

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—The United Labor Policy Committee today ended its quarrel with mobilization officials and expressed the view that its two-month boycott of defense agencies would benefit the American people.

The committee, representing 15,000,000 members of the AFL, CIO, and most railroad workers, voted unanimously to return immediately to the agency posts they vacated in February.

The labor walkout from the Wage Stabilization Board on Feb. 16 collapsed that panel. A new one, twice the size of the first agency, is to be reconstituted this week under the chairmanship of Professor George W. Taylor of the University of Pennsylvania. The labor unions will be represented by six members, as will management and the public.

In addition, the ULPC will place a top adviser in the office of Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson—who had been the chief traget of the union leaders in their running battle with the mobilization agencies over a voice in policy.

George M. Harrison, president of the AFL railway clerks, a vice president of the AFL and friend of Presidents Truman and Roosevelt, will become an advisory assistant to Wilson.

Nominated by the CIO for a similar post in the office of Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston was David J. McDonald, secretary-treasurer of the CIO steelworkers.

Similar advisory jobs will be filled later in the office of Price Stabilizer Michael V. DiSalle and the National Production Authority.

The Wage Stabilization Board will have as its labor members the following:

For the CIO—Emil Rieve of the textile workers, John A. Livingston of the United Auto Workers, and Joseph A. Beirne of the communications workers.

The ULPC decided to also assign Eli Oliver, a special lawyer-research expert for the AFL and railroad unions, as the chief consultant to the labor members and also their alternate on occasions.

Symington OK'd As Head Of RFC

WASHINGTON, April 30 (INS)—The Senate today approved W. Stuart Symington as head of the reorganized Reconstruction Finance Corp., while former President Herbert Hoover and ex-Commerce Secretary Jesse Jones urged Congress to kill the much-criticized lending agency.

Final action on Symington was taken by a voice vote. He will be the first to direct the agency since Congress approved the RFC reorganization under which a single administrator replaces the five-man board.

Hoover appeared before the committee today and was critical of RFC loans to hotels, beverage makers, beauty parlors, poolrooms and "a snake farm." He said it is difficult to see what public interest would be served by such credits "at the taxpayers' risk."

Chiang Urges Chinese Revolt; Promises Aid

TAIPEH, Formosa, Tuesday, May 1 (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek today urged workers in Red China to revolt and promised "in the near future I shall come to your rescue and deliver you from your suffering."

The Chinese Nationalist leader's declaration was made in a May Day message.

He charged the Chinese Reds had "sent workers by thousands to Siberia to work as slave laborers for the Soviet imperialists" and "they have also sent laborers by the thousands to Korea, to serve as cannon fodder for the Soviet imperialists."

CHICAGO, April 30 (AP)—A draftee whose family smuggled him out of an Army camp because he said he was not receiving proper medical attention was described today as in serious condition.

The soldier, Pvt. Stanley Amborski, 21, was brought to Chicago by his family from Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., Sunday. The father, John Amborski, 45, a printing company inspector, said he had received two letters from Stanley complaining that he was ill and unable to get proper medical attention at the camp.

The camp commander, Brig. Gen. Samuel D. Sturgis, Jr., said records there showed the soldier had been treated by medical officers on four different days between April 12 and 27.

Amborski said the second letter from his son said: "Get me out Dad. I'm going to fall dead soon."

Upon their arrival home, Amborski called in the family physician who said the soldier was suffering from peritonitis. But at naval training hospital, his illness was diagnosed as pneumonia in both lungs.

Gen. Sturgis said "Private Amborski, of course, is absent without leave. His case is being thoroughly investigated and any action taken will depend upon the outcome of this investigation."

The elder Amborski, his wife, Stanley's wife, and the sick youth's brother and three sisters drove to Fort Leonard Wood Saturday. The father said his son appeared very ill. The family talked to a chaplain and a sergeant in Amborski's company, then went to a tourist camp where they planned to smuggle the soldier home Sunday.

They dressed him in civilian clothing in a patch of woods on the reservation, then drove him out of camp without any challenge from military policemen on guard at the gate.

Groups Branded Subversive Have Right To Hearing

Government Lashed By Supreme Court

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—The Supreme Court lashed out at the government today for branding organizations as Communist without a hearing. It threw a legal cloud over the government's listing of 159 organizations as subversive, until the charges are proved.

But, by a tie vote in another case, the court upheld the right of the government to fire, without a trial, an employe suspected of disloyalty.

Five-To-Three Vote

By a five-three vote, the justices ruled organizations listed as subversive by the Attorney General must be given the right to a hearing. Each of the five in the majority wrote a separate opinion.

Four of these stingingly accused the government of violating basic rights in denying such a hearing. Two of the four, Justices Douglas and Black, declared the entire government loyalty program is unconstitutional; the others didn't rule on that point.

Douglas said the issue is "one of the gravest of our generation" and that the government's action illustrated a trend in times of tension to "set in motion a subversive influence of our own design that destroys us from within."

"Tyrannical Practices"

Black described the government's loyalty program as "tyrannical practices" smacking of "a most evil type of censorship."

Three organizations listed as subversive appealed to the courts. They said they were peaceful, charitable or business groups and the government's action in branding them subversive, without a hearing was unconstitutional.

Two lower courts dismissed the appeal but the Supreme Court, by its five-three vote, ruled the groups are entitled to a hearing and ordered the district court here to give them one.

The organizations are the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee of New York, the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, Inc., Washington, and the International Workers Order, Inc., of New York.

GIs Reported Killed By Own Troops' Fire

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—Sen. Case (R-SD) relayed to Secretary of Defense Marshall today a report that American soldiers in Korea have been killed and wounded by artillery and mortar fire from their own troops.

The report came, Case said, from 15 soldiers who signed and sent to him a petition protesting the conditions under which they are fighting in Korea.

The soldiers said, Case related, that they were fired upon by their own troops on three occasions. On April 6, they reported, four of their fellow soldiers were killed and nine wounded. They did not say what casualties, if any, were inflicted the other two times.

Truman Declares $60 Billion Arms Fund Vital For Security

President Warns Russia Of What She May Expect If She Elects To Spread Conflict

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—President Truman told Congress today the nation needs a $60 billion military budget to continue arming for the general war Russia may thrust upon the world.

He said the $60,679,414,690 he estimated for the fiscal year beginning next July 1 was "essential to our national security" because:

"The outbreak of aggression, the threat of general war that overhangs the world, make it imperative to increase our defenses rapidly and efficiently."

The President put into his message a warning of what Russia may expect if she elects to spread the war beyond the confines of the Korean conflict. He said:

"If the Soviet Union chooses to unleash a general war, the free world must be in a position to stop the attack and strike back decisively and at once at the seats of Soviet power."

Russia Willing To Risk War

Mr. Truman said "the aggression in Korea showed the Soviet rulers were willing to push the world to the brink of a general war to get what they wanted."

Emphasizing a point he had made in his arguments for firing Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the President declared that "we want to keep the conflict in Korea from spreading, if possible, because we are trying to stop aggression without starting a third world war." (He had contended in his MacArthur-firing statement that some of the Korean war strategy ascribed to MacArthur might bring Russia into the Asiatic conflict and start general war.)

How the U. S. and its associates would "strike back decisively at the center of the enemy's power" should Russia choose war Mr. Truman did not state precisely. But the terms of his military spending plan contained some broad hints.

$14.4 Billion For Planes

Among other things, he proposed an outlay of $14,400,000,000 for procurement of planes. These Air Force and naval planes, added to those already ordered or actually being delivered, are intended to give the U. S. the air power to reach into the heart of Russia while at the same time providing a defensive system against Soviet air attack on the U. S.

For the ground and naval forces which would press home such attack along the surface the President recommended $20,200,000,000 more in such things as ships, tanks, artillery, ammunition, guided missiles and the electronic gadgets used in locating and killing an enemy.

The Army would receive the largest chunk of the 1952 budget. The services' share of the budget would be this:

Army $20.8 billion; Navy $15.5; Air Force $19.8.

To this would be added $4.5 billion for military public works—construction of airfields, bases, buildings—and $500,000,000 for the operations of the Defense Department itself.

Iranian Senate Votes Seizure Of Oil Industry

Legislative Action On Bill Completed

TEHRAN, Iran, April 30 (AP)—Iran's Senate followed through meekly tonight with a unanimous vote (44-0) for nationalization of the country's oil wealth, which will be taken over immediately from the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Company.

The new Premier, Mohammed Mossadegh, had had no doubt the Senate would comply with demands of his small nationalist bloc that the properties of the $500,000,000 firm be transferred to government ownership.

Speaks Before Senate Vote

He spoke long before the Senate vote as if legislative action had been completed on the oil nationalization bill.

Mossadegh, who took over the Premier's office even before his appointment had been signed by the reluctant Shah, made a speech seeking to restore calm in Tehran and appealing for an orderly May Day celebration tomorrow.

In his five-minute speech he gave no hints of his program, but declared:

"By the will of God and the cooperation of both houses of parliament, our largest source of national wealth has been returned to the nation. All of us are sure that if this huge wealth is used correctly our nation can in the future live with utmost comfort and ease."

Critic Faces First Test

Widespread leftist demonstrations planned for tomorrow, the international labor day, may present the lifelong critic—now unexpectedly in a position of responsibility—with his first test.

Mossadegh declined to enforce a ban on mass demonstrations in parliament square that was called by the underground Communist Party. The ban had been ordered by the government of Premier Hussein Ala, who resigned Friday night. But Mossadegh urged that the demonstration be peaceful.

Vogeler On Final Leg Of Trip Home

LONDON, April 30 (AP)—Robert A. Vogeler, whisked from behind the iron curtain with State Department secrecy, took off with his family tonight on the last leg of a homebound flight to the United States.

The 39-year-old American businessman was still jittery from the 17-month ordeal which ended Saturday with his release from a prison in Red Hungary and his return to his home in Vienna.

Fearful of Communist vengeance in that city in the middle of the Soviet zone of Austria, Vogeler was secretly hustled to Tulln airport outside Vienna today in the automobile of the U. S. High Commissioner, Walter J. Donnelly, and put aboard a Pan American Airways plan.

He was protected during the 35-mile drive by the blue and white-starred diplomatic flag of the commissioner.

The airliner landed briefly at Munich and Frankfurt, Germany, where it was closely guarded by U. S. military police with submachine-guns. At Frankfurt the plane was taken over on charter by the State Department to catch the regular Stratocruiser to New York from London.

The plane was due in New York at 8:10 a. m. (EST) Tuesday.

Senate To Get Crime Probe Report Today

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—The Senate Crime Committee began sending to the printer late today the final draft of its report on its year-long investigation of the underworld.

Chairman Kefauver (D-Tenn) said the finished document is expected back from the printer in mid-morning tomorrow and will be presented to the Senate at noon.

Small Retail Food Price Drop Noted

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP) — Retail food prices declined slightly in the last two weeks of March, largely because of small drops in fresh fruit and vegetable prices, the Bureau of Labor Statistics estimated today.

For the second time since the wage-price freeze of January 25, there was a falling off in the retail food price index kept by the bureau. The index declined 0.3 per cent between March 15 and March 26—from 226.2 to 225.4. The period from 1935 to 1939 is regarded as 100.

The March 25 index was about 11 per cent above that of last June, before the Korean fighting began, and 14 per cent above a year ago.

Brehm Convicted Of Taking Illegal Contributions

Ohio Congressman Will Seek New Trial

A federal court jury of ten men and two women returned its verdict after deliberating about four hours and 20 minutes.

Acquitted On One Count

Another count alleging a $240 contribution from Mrs. Soliday had been dropped earlier in the trial.

Brehm, who is serving his fifth term in the House from the 11th Ohio District, faces a maximum possible sentence of 15 years in prison and a fine of $25,000. However, maximum penalties are seldom imposed in a multi-count conviction.

His attorney, Leo A. Rover, told reporters he will ask for a new trial and, failing in that motion, will appeal to higher courts.

Judge Burnita S. Matthews did not announce immediately when Brehm will be sentenced. A sentence ordinarily is not imposed until the motion for a new trial has been disposed of.

Shows No Emotion

The Congressman stood with both hands jammed in his coat pockets as Jury Foreman B. Richard Breslar, a restaurant operator, announced the verdict.

Asked for comment, he said: "I haven't a word to say."

Mrs. Brehm broke down and cried shortly after the verdict was announced. She buried her head in Rover's shoulder as he tried to comfort her. Brehm walked over patted his wife on the back and said, "it's all right, honey."

MURFREESBORO, Tenn., April 30 (AP)—This old Civil War town roared out a loud and lusty welcome today to Jean Faircloth MacArthur, the hometown girl who became the General's lady.

It was her day from the moment she stepped into the arms of eager friends and relatives. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, whose bride she became 14 years ago today, stood aside with son Arthur while she graciously and smilingly received the plaudits.

The MacArthurs flew down from New York in the Constellation Bataan for their brief half-day visit. They landed at nearby Sewart Air Force Base at 10:58 a. m. (CST) and went through a fast schedule before starting the return flight to New York.

This was the five-star General's first visit to his wife's former home. And, like any other husband brought home to see the folks, he behaved the part. While the spotlight—and a broiling southern sun—fell on Mrs. MacArthur, he stood in the background and spoke happily of the occasion as "a second honeymoon."

A motorcade brought the MacArthurs the 12 miles from the air base to Murfreesboro through long lines of merrymakers waving Confederate and American flags.

In Murfreesboro itself they found a county fair atmosphere. The crowd here, estimated at 50,000, was probably the biggest since 81,000 northern and southern troops—including MacArthur's father and Mrs. MacArthur's grandfather — fought the Civil War battle of Murfreesboro.

Enemy Troops Slacken Pace North Of Seoul

Chinese Hit Hard By Triple Allied Blows

TOKYO, Tuesday, May 1. (AP)—The Communist spring offensive appeared to have come to a dead stop in Korea today.

By the late forenoon an expected Red May Day push either had bogged down or had been contained by the Allied defense.

Fighting died down on all fronts. There were indications that the Reds were shifting their main force east of blackened Seoul, the Korean capital.

The Reds had been expected to attack the city frontally in a May Day assault. But during the night the 20,000 Communists just north of Seoul slackened their pace.

They had been hard hit by massed Allied guns; by warships shelling from 12 miles away; and by record-smashing flights of Far East Air Force planes.

Record 1,270 Sorties Flown

AP Correspondent John Randolph reported that Chinese forces closest to Seoul on Monday seemed to shrink back a little, avoiding contact whenever possible with aggressive Allied tank-infantry patrols.

High Allied officers did not regard this as any sign of a Chinese change of heart, Randolph said. They put it down simply to the Reds backing away from Seoul's devastating artillery barrage.

Three Allied tank columns probed northward from Seoul on Monday and tank-supported infantrymen fought light skirmishes with the Reds before retiring safely to U. N. perimeter lines. One force reported 1,000 Communists killed by artillery fire.

They brought back 14 ragged and hungry prisoners.

The Communist radio at Pyongyang said Monday night the Red forces were five to six miles north of Seoul.

There was no Allied confirmation of this enemy report.

Randolph concluded the Reds definitely would not be able to celebrate the May 1 labor festival—a red-letter day for world Communism—by marching past the gilded dome of Seoul's battered capitol.

2,000 Shells An Hour

The only parades in Seoul today were Allied soldiers moving to the front and big trucks hauling ammunition for the never quiet guns.

Massed artillery pounded Red troops in the hills north of Seoul at the rate of almost 2,000 shells an hour. On Sunday alone a total of 45,709 projectiles were fired into the Red positions.

The U. S. heavy cruiser Toledo and other Allied warships added to this barrage with off-shore bombardments from the west coast, north of Inchon.

Despite this concentrated fire, the Chinese were kept moving. Their heaviest activity was in the west, but there also were reports of increased buildups facing the center of Allied line and to the east.

Pilots spotted more than 3,000 Communist vehicles in a 20 miles stretch of highway north of Uijongbu, the ruined highway junction 14 air miles north of Seoul.

Lodge Says USSR Superior In Air

Washington, April 30 (AP)—Sen. Lodge (R-Mass) said today it is a "staggering fact" that air superiority as well as land superiority lies with the Soviet Union. He declared that "we court national disaster" unless this country increases its Air Force to a minimum of 150 groups.

In a major foreign policy speech, Lodge declared that the U. S. is ahead of Russia only in the quality of its long-range bombers and in the number of atomic bombs.

"On this single fact our security hangs by a delicate thread," he said. "The cold, brutal fact is x x x that the United States does not have air supremacy, air superiority or anything like it."

Lodge, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told the Senate that the administration's present target of 95 air groups is far below the safety level.

Congress, he said, "has always been willing to appropriate more for national defense that has been requested for it."

Weather Forecast

REDS' PUSH APPARENTLY STALLED

GOP Raises Cry Of 'Terrible Injustice'

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—Democratic senators rode down Republican protests today and decreed a closed-door hearing for Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

MacArthur will testify Thursday about his dismissal as Far Eastern commander and the host of foreign policy questions his ouster raised.

The Senate Armed Service and Foreign Relations Committees, set for a joint investigation with MacArthur as the first witness, voted 14 to 9 today to bar the public from the hearings.

Russell To Preside

Chairman Russell (D-Ga) of the Armed Services Committee, who will preside at the hearings, said closed-door hearings were necessary to prevent military secrets from being leaked.

MacArthur plans to fly here from New York to give his testimony and to return to New York late Thursday.

His spokesman, Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney, declined direct comment on the committees' action but said MacArthur will respond to whatever request the committees make.

Whitney was with MacArthur in Murfreesboro, Tenn.

The hearings will bring to a new climax the "Great Debate" on how the U. S. should conduct the war against the Chinese Communists and erect barriers against further Communist aggression at the same time.

Two architects of opposing policies, Secretary of State Acheson and Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), drew the line of conflict clearer today in speeches to the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

Taft Urges "Aggressive War"

Acheson claimed successes for his limit-the-war policy in Korea and declared that the best chance of real victory lies in holding firm to that policy.

Senate Democratic Leader McFarland of Arizona, meanwhile, said after a White House briefing that the situation in Korea "didn't seem to look so black."

"The withdrawals seem to be orderly," McFarland told reporters without elaborating. He and other congressional leaders were given a private military report on the Korean situation at their regular weekly meeting with President Truman.

Union Labor Leaders Vote To End Two-Month Boycott Of Key Defense Agencies

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—The United Labor Policy Committee today ended its quarrel with mobilization officials and expressed the view that its two-month boycott of defense agencies would benefit the American people.

The committee, representing 15,000,000 members of the AFL, CIO, and most railroad workers, voted unanimously to return immediately to the agency posts they vacated in February.

The labor walkout from the Wage Stabilization Board on Feb. 16 collapsed that panel. A new one, twice the size of the first agency, is to be reconstituted this week under the chairmanship of Professor George W. Taylor of the University of Pennsylvania. The labor unions will be represented by six members, as will management and the public.

In addition, the ULPC will place a top adviser in the office of Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson—who had been the chief traget of the union leaders in their running battle with the mobilization agencies over a voice in policy.

George M. Harrison, president of the AFL railway clerks, a vice president of the AFL and friend of Presidents Truman and Roosevelt, will become an advisory assistant to Wilson.

Nominated by the CIO for a similar post in the office of Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston was David J. McDonald, secretary-treasurer of the CIO steelworkers.

Similar advisory jobs will be filled later in the office of Price Stabilizer Michael V. DiSalle and the National Production Authority.

The Wage Stabilization Board will have as its labor members the following:

For the CIO—Emil Rieve of the textile workers, John A. Livingston of the United Auto Workers, and Joseph A. Beirne of the communications workers.

The ULPC decided to also assign Eli Oliver, a special lawyer-research expert for the AFL and railroad unions, as the chief consultant to the labor members and also their alternate on occasions.

Symington OK'd As Head Of RFC

WASHINGTON, April 30 (INS)—The Senate today approved W. Stuart Symington as head of the reorganized Reconstruction Finance Corp., while former President Herbert Hoover and ex-Commerce Secretary Jesse Jones urged Congress to kill the much-criticized lending agency.

Final action on Symington was taken by a voice vote. He will be the first to direct the agency since Congress approved the RFC reorganization under which a single administrator replaces the five-man board.

Hoover appeared before the committee today and was critical of RFC loans to hotels, beverage makers, beauty parlors, poolrooms and "a snake farm." He said it is difficult to see what public interest would be served by such credits "at the taxpayers' risk."

Chiang Urges Chinese Revolt; Promises Aid

TAIPEH, Formosa, Tuesday, May 1 (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek today urged workers in Red China to revolt and promised "in the near future I shall come to your rescue and deliver you from your suffering."

The Chinese Nationalist leader's declaration was made in a May Day message.

He charged the Chinese Reds had "sent workers by thousands to Siberia to work as slave laborers for the Soviet imperialists" and "they have also sent laborers by the thousands to Korea, to serve as cannon fodder for the Soviet imperialists."

CHICAGO, April 30 (AP)—A draftee whose family smuggled him out of an Army camp because he said he was not receiving proper medical attention was described today as in serious condition.

The soldier, Pvt. Stanley Amborski, 21, was brought to Chicago by his family from Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., Sunday. The father, John Amborski, 45, a printing company inspector, said he had received two letters from Stanley complaining that he was ill and unable to get proper medical attention at the camp.

The camp commander, Brig. Gen. Samuel D. Sturgis, Jr., said records there showed the soldier had been treated by medical officers on four different days between April 12 and 27.

Amborski said the second letter from his son said: "Get me out Dad. I'm going to fall dead soon."

Upon their arrival home, Amborski called in the family physician who said the soldier was suffering from peritonitis. But at naval training hospital, his illness was diagnosed as pneumonia in both lungs.

Gen. Sturgis said "Private Amborski, of course, is absent without leave. His case is being thoroughly investigated and any action taken will depend upon the outcome of this investigation."

The elder Amborski, his wife, Stanley's wife, and the sick youth's brother and three sisters drove to Fort Leonard Wood Saturday. The father said his son appeared very ill. The family talked to a chaplain and a sergeant in Amborski's company, then went to a tourist camp where they planned to smuggle the soldier home Sunday.

They dressed him in civilian clothing in a patch of woods on the reservation, then drove him out of camp without any challenge from military policemen on guard at the gate.

Groups Branded Subversive Have Right To Hearing

Government Lashed By Supreme Court

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—The Supreme Court lashed out at the government today for branding organizations as Communist without a hearing. It threw a legal cloud over the government's listing of 159 organizations as subversive, until the charges are proved.

But, by a tie vote in another case, the court upheld the right of the government to fire, without a trial, an employe suspected of disloyalty.

Five-To-Three Vote

By a five-three vote, the justices ruled organizations listed as subversive by the Attorney General must be given the right to a hearing. Each of the five in the majority wrote a separate opinion.

Four of these stingingly accused the government of violating basic rights in denying such a hearing. Two of the four, Justices Douglas and Black, declared the entire government loyalty program is unconstitutional; the others didn't rule on that point.

Douglas said the issue is "one of the gravest of our generation" and that the government's action illustrated a trend in times of tension to "set in motion a subversive influence of our own design that destroys us from within."

"Tyrannical Practices"

Black described the government's loyalty program as "tyrannical practices" smacking of "a most evil type of censorship."

Three organizations listed as subversive appealed to the courts. They said they were peaceful, charitable or business groups and the government's action in branding them subversive, without a hearing was unconstitutional.

Two lower courts dismissed the appeal but the Supreme Court, by its five-three vote, ruled the groups are entitled to a hearing and ordered the district court here to give them one.

The organizations are the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee of New York, the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, Inc., Washington, and the International Workers Order, Inc., of New York.

For the second time since the wage-price freeze of January 25, there was a falling off in the retail food price index kept by the bureau. The index declined 0.3 per cent between March 15 and March 26—from 226.2 to 225.4. The period from 1935 to 1939 is regarded as 100.

The March 25 index was about 11 per cent above that of last June, before the Korean fighting began, and 14 per cent above a year ago.

Brehm Convicted Of Taking Illegal Contributions

Ohio Congressman Will Seek New Trial

A federal court jury of ten men and two women returned its verdict after deliberating about four hours and 20 minutes.

Acquitted On One Count

Another count alleging a $240 contribution from Mrs. Soliday had been dropped earlier in the trial.

Brehm, who is serving his fifth term in the House from the 11th Ohio District, faces a maximum possible sentence of 15 years in prison and a fine of $25,000. However, maximum penalties are seldom imposed in a multi-count conviction.

His attorney, Leo A. Rover, told reporters he will ask for a new trial and, failing in that motion, will appeal to higher courts.

Judge Burnita S. Matthews did not announce immediately when Brehm will be sentenced. A sentence ordinarily is not imposed until the motion for a new trial has been disposed of.

Shows No Emotion

The Congressman stood with both hands jammed in his coat pockets as Jury Foreman B. Richard Breslar, a restaurant operator, announced the verdict.

Asked for comment, he said: "I haven't a word to say."

Mrs. Brehm broke down and cried shortly after the verdict was announced. She buried her head in Rover's shoulder as he tried to comfort her. Brehm walked over patted his wife on the back and said, "it's all right, honey."

MURFREESBORO, Tenn., April 30 (AP)—This old Civil War town roared out a loud and lusty welcome today to Jean Faircloth MacArthur, the hometown girl who became the General's lady.

It was her day from the moment she stepped into the arms of eager friends and relatives. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, whose bride she became 14 years ago today, stood aside with son Arthur while she graciously and smilingly received the plaudits.

The MacArthurs flew down from New York in the Constellation Bataan for their brief half-day visit. They landed at nearby Sewart Air Force Base at 10:58 a. m. (CST) and went through a fast schedule before starting the return flight to New York.

This was the five-star General's first visit to his wife's former home. And, like any other husband brought home to see the folks, he behaved the part. While the spotlight—and a broiling southern sun—fell on Mrs. MacArthur, he stood in the background and spoke happily of the occasion as "a second honeymoon."

A motorcade brought the MacArthurs the 12 miles from the air base to Murfreesboro through long lines of merrymakers waving Confederate and American flags.

In Murfreesboro itself they found a county fair atmosphere. The crowd here, estimated at 50,000, was probably the biggest since 81,000 northern and southern troops—including MacArthur's father and Mrs. MacArthur's grandfather — fought the Civil War battle of Murfreesboro.

Enemy Troops Slacken Pace North Of Seoul

Chinese Hit Hard By Triple Allied Blows

TOKYO, Tuesday, May 1. (AP)—The Communist spring offensive appeared to have come to a dead stop in Korea today.

By the late forenoon an expected Red May Day push either had bogged down or had been contained by the Allied defense.

Fighting died down on all fronts. There were indications that the Reds were shifting their main force east of blackened Seoul, the Korean capital.

The Reds had been expected to attack the city frontally in a May Day assault. But during the night the 20,000 Communists just north of Seoul slackened their pace.

They had been hard hit by massed Allied guns; by warships shelling from 12 miles away; and by record-smashing flights of Far East Air Force planes.

Record 1,270 Sorties Flown

AP Correspondent John Randolph reported that Chinese forces closest to Seoul on Monday seemed to shrink back a little, avoiding contact whenever possible with aggressive Allied tank-infantry patrols.

High Allied officers did not regard this as any sign of a Chinese change of heart, Randolph said. They put it down simply to the Reds backing away from Seoul's devastating artillery barrage.

Three Allied tank columns probed northward from Seoul on Monday and tank-supported infantrymen fought light skirmishes with the Reds before retiring safely to U. N. perimeter lines. One force reported 1,000 Communists killed by artillery fire.

They brought back 14 ragged and hungry prisoners.

The Communist radio at Pyongyang said Monday night the Red forces were five to six miles north of Seoul.

There was no Allied confirmation of this enemy report.

Randolph concluded the Reds definitely would not be able to celebrate the May 1 labor festival—a red-letter day for world Communism—by marching past the gilded dome of Seoul's battered capitol.

2,000 Shells An Hour

The only parades in Seoul today were Allied soldiers moving to the front and big trucks hauling ammunition for the never quiet guns.

Massed artillery pounded Red troops in the hills north of Seoul at the rate of almost 2,000 shells an hour. On Sunday alone a total of 45,709 projectiles were fired into the Red positions.

The U. S. heavy cruiser Toledo and other Allied warships added to this barrage with off-shore bombardments from the west coast, north of Inchon.

Despite this concentrated fire, the Chinese were kept moving. Their heaviest activity was in the west, but there also were reports of increased buildups facing the center of Allied line and to the east.

Pilots spotted more than 3,000 Communist vehicles in a 20 miles stretch of highway north of Uijongbu, the ruined highway junction 14 air miles north of Seoul.

Lodge Says USSR Superior In Air

Washington, April 30 (AP)—Sen. Lodge (R-Mass) said today it is a "staggering fact" that air superiority as well as land superiority lies with the Soviet Union. He declared that "we court national disaster" unless this country increases its Air Force to a minimum of 150 groups.

In a major foreign policy speech, Lodge declared that the U. S. is ahead of Russia only in the quality of its long-range bombers and in the number of atomic bombs.

"On this single fact our security hangs by a delicate thread," he said. "The cold, brutal fact is x x x that the United States does not have air supremacy, air superiority or anything like it."

Lodge, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told the Senate that the administration's present target of 95 air groups is far below the safety level.

Congress, he said, "has always been willing to appropriate more for national defense that has been requested for it."

Russia Is Ruled By Fear, Truman Spokesman Says

LOS ANGELES, April 30 (AP) — President Truman's personal foreign policy spokesman said tonight that Russia is ruled by fear—"the Kremlin fears the people, the people fear the Kremlin."

W. Averell Harriman, Mr. Truman's special foreign affairs assistant, said Stalin once admitted to him that the Kremlin had been unable to gain the loyalty of the Russian people. He said the admission came during a conversation he had with Stalin while serving in Moscow as United States ambassador.

Harriman quoted Stalin as saying during the last war that the people were "'fighting for their motherland, not for us'." He added in an address prepared for delivery at the closing banquet of a regional conference of the American Association for the United Nations, Inc.:

"By 'us' he meant the Kremlin. Russia is ruled by fear. The Kremlin fears the people, and the people fear the Kremlin. Whenever we hear of purges it is an indication of internal tension. The unhappy people of the satellites crave only to be free from the iron hand."

Harriman recalled his first meeting with President Truman in 1945 when he came back from Russia after the death of President Roosevelt.

"He was already much concerned by the duplicity of the Kremlin and was determined to stand firm against the Kremlin schemes," Harriman said. "As a result, he has been prepared to take prompt and vigorous steps in dealing with the Kremlin threat. No president has in peacetime initiated so many unprecedented and farsighted measures and actions for our national security as has President Truman."

Harriman reiterated that in the Far East "President Truman will not engage in appeasement or reward aggression."

He said it wasn't this country's aim to bring on another world war, but to "limit the conflict if we possibly can and deal with it successfully in Korea" while building up military strength among the free nations.

Md. Restaurants Lag In Filing Price Charts

BALTIMORE, April 30 (AP)—Maryland restaurants and taverns are way behind in filing price charts with the Office of Price Stabilization, the district director said today.

Only about four per cent of the 6,500 establishments have filed their charts, Hugo R. Hoffman said today which was the deadline.

About 60 per cent of the state's 6,000 grocers have listed their store classifications as required by April 28.

$3.6 Million In British Goods Sent To China

LONDON, April 30 (AP)—Britain has exported goods worth £1,291,000 ($3,614,800) to Communist China during the past three months.

Sir Hartley Shawcross, president of the Board of Trade, gave this figure today when asked in the House of Commons what strategic materials this country is sending to China. He said there is "no generally accepted definition of 'strategic materials.' "

MUNICH, Germany, April 30 (AP) —Radio Free Europe will inaugurate its big new transmitter beamed to Czechoslovakia tomorrow and is planning stations for four more iron curtain countries.

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP)—The chief of the United Nations' refugee agency predicted today that the current Red offensive in Korea "will fail," with peace resulting "within a couple of months."

"Lonely" Youth's Ad Gets Results

PORTLAND, Me., April 30 (AP)—A week ago a 19-year-old boy who'd been "all around" walked into the Press Herald editorial room and said he wanted to advertise for a wife—"someone who's lonely too."

Kenneth William Kerwin is no longer lonely. He announced today that he's a bridegroom-to-be.

Flashing a wide grin, Kerwin told a reporter he's already popped the question to one of 50 young women who wrote him after his story was published in the Press Herald and other Associated Press member newspapers.

Kerwin, a shipping clerk, said his bride will be Miss Gloria B. Trask, also 19, of Portland. The wedding is scheduled for May 14.

Kerwin, who lives alone in a furnished room, received Gloria's letter last Friday.

He says he became engaged this way:

"I got this letter from her, and I'd never known her but I found out I'd worked with her brothers x x x. I walked down to her place Saturday night, and we went out—took in a movie—and then on Sunday afternoon, we went for a walk.

"I went down there again this afternoon, and we're going to take our blood tests tonight.

Republican Women Want State Positions

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 30 (AP)—The Federation of Women Republicans of Maryland today passed a resolution asking that its members be remembered by Gov. McKeldin when he fills vacancies in state positions.

The action was taken at a big spring rally held by the members —some 350 strong—in the State House.

Mrs. Fred C. Fisher, Pikesville, president of the state-wide group, thanked the members for "their strength of character and their loyalty to our party as they move forward steadily with ever-increasing numbers in our fight to free our people from bondage to government."

PALM BEACH, Fla., April 30 (AP)—Beer production may have to be cut down if the tin supply situation gets any worse, a government official told the National Beer Wholesalers Association today.

Accurate Cancer Test Reported

LOS ANGELES, April 30 (AP)—A cancer test claimed to be 98 per cent accurate is near final development after 16 years of research, says Dr. Harry S. Penn of the University of California at Los Angeles.

Dr. Penn, in a report to the Los Angeles Times, announced that he and fellow researchers at UCLA have produced a synthetic extract which detects cancer when put in a test tube with a person's blood sample.

UCLA has been conducting the project in conjunction with the Veterans Administration. In a group of 4,500 patients at the Sawtelle veterans hospital, the test was reported negative for 99.5 per cent of normal persons and positive for 98.6 pre cent of those afflicted with cancer.

Dr. Penn and his associates declined to disclose at this time how their synthetic extract is compounded, but it is known that it is similar to the liver extract with which previous tests were conducted. Until recently the test required a reagent depending on the use of livers from persons who had just died of cancer.

The new substance, Dr. Penn reported, can be produced from an organic compound of which there is an unlimited supply, and may eventually result in reducing the extract cost of a single test to 25 cents.

Americans See, Hear Vogeler Via Television

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP)—The stumbling, hesitant voice of Robert Vogeler told Americans by way of television tonight to "realize that what happened to me can happen to them."

Vogeler's brief message was filmed in Vienna yesterday, flown here and processed for use on the National Broadcasting Company TV network tonight.

Vogeler, just out of a Hungarian prison after 17 months of confinement as a convicted spy, spoke slowly, with many long pauses, and finally—in the middle of a sentence —he stopped.

The announcer said Vogeler had been unable to continue and had been given time to compose himself.

Then he resumed his message, saying he thought his experience was "just one of a series of planned attacks on democracy—as we understand the word democracy."

Trouble Spots Brace For Possible May Day Clashes

LONDON, April 30 (AP)—Trouble spots around the world braced against possible clashes tomorrow when Communist and non-Communist workers hold their traditional May Day rallies and marches.

The theme for both sides was "peace." But at Seoul, U. N. forces denied with fierce artillery, rockets and jellied gas bombs a Communist bid to grab that South Korean capital as a May Day prize.

In divided Berlin, 1,000,000 Germans were expected to turn out for rival East-West celebrations—the Communists parading through the Soviet sector under Kremlin-inspired banners, and West Berliners gathering in the Tiergarten to hear fiery challenges against Communist domination.

Allied commanders in Berlin placed their troops on riot alert with armored cars and helicopters ready to avert disorders. West Berlin's 13,000 German police will guard the rally with clubs and fire hoses.

Russian sector police also have been marshalled to their full strength, and reserves have been called from the "people's police" of East Germany.

In Moscow—the place least likely to have any trouble—Russia will hold probably the grandest May Day show in Europe, flexing its muscles with a huge military parade through Red Square.

High Court Rejects Loyalty Oath Attack

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to reconsider an April 12 decision which upheld Maryland's requirement that candidates for state and city offices take a loyalty oath.

The unanimous decision rejected an attack made by Thelma Gerende on validity of the requirement. She wanted to run for the Baltimore City Council on the Progressive Party ticket.

Her attorneys in asking reconsideration of the decision, said the Board of Supervisors of Elections of Baltimore had refused to accept from Miss Gerende a loyalty oath in the form approved by the Supreme Court.

Attorney General Hall Hammond in a reply brief said that, "actually, the truth is exactly the opposite."

Trouble Spots Brace For Possible May Day Clashes

LONDON, April 30 (AP)—Trouble spots around the world braced against possible clashes tomorrow when Communist and non-Communist workers hold their traditional May Day rallies and marches.

The theme for both sides was "peace." But at Seoul, U. N. forces denied with fierce artillery, rockets and jellied gas bombs a Communist bid to grab that South Korean capital as a May Day prize.

In divided Berlin, 1,000,000 Germans were expected to turn out for rival East-West celebrations—the Communists parading through the Soviet sector under Kremlin-inspired banners, and West Berliners gathering in the Tiergarten to hear fiery challenges against Communist domination.

Allied commanders in Berlin placed their troops on riot alert with armored cars and helicopters ready to avert disorders. West Berlin's 13,000 German police will guard the rally with clubs and fire hoses.

Russian sector police also have been marshalled to their full strength, and reserves have been called from the "people's police" of East Germany.

In Moscow—the place least likely to have any trouble—Russia will hold probably the grandest May Day show in Europe, flexing its muscles with a huge military parade through Red Square.

High Court Rejects Loyalty Oath Attack

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to reconsider an April 12 decision which upheld Maryland's requirement that candidates for state and city offices take a loyalty oath.

The unanimous decision rejected an attack made by Thelma Gerende on validity of the requirement. She wanted to run for the Baltimore City Council on the Progressive Party ticket.

Her attorneys in asking reconsideration of the decision, said the Board of Supervisors of Elections of Baltimore had refused to accept from Miss Gerende a loyalty oath in the form approved by the Supreme Court.

Attorney General Hall Hammond in a reply brief said that, "actually, the truth is exactly the opposite."

Colorado Kids Building School With Gold Ore

By FRANK PITMAN

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo — (AP) — School kids in the fabled mining camps of Cripple Creek and Victor are trying to build a new school with gold ore.

The glittering yellow metal lured thousands and thousands of prospectors to this area 75 years ago. The youngsters hope souvenirs of the same stuff will lure thousands and thousands of dollars here for the new buliding.

Postmaster Leslie Wilkinson evolved the scheme and everybody in the two adjoining towns of Cripple Creek and Victor has pitched in.

The few miners still here spend their spare time mining gold ore that is unprofitable for milling. Other townspeople and the kids bust up the ore into small specimens and prepare the souvenirs for mailing.

When the towns of Victor and Cripple Creek had a population of 60,000 there were several schools. Then the gold veins petered out and the population drifted away. Now there are 1,200 people in the two towns and the two remaining schools accomodate 375 students.

The Cripple Creek school was built in 1896 and the Victor school in 1898. As one townsman explained: "Both are about to collapse from sheer age and fatigue."

School district tax revenues barely cover the cost of operation and maintenance. Facing that problem, Wilkinson and the other town leaders conceived the bold souvenir plan.

The school pupils mailed 32,500 postcards advertising their scheme to every state, Canada, Alaska, Peru, England and Hawaii. Newscaster Lowell Thomas, who cut his journalistic teeth in these mining camps, gave the plan a big boost with a broadcast from here last March.

So far, more than $5,000 has been sent in towards the goal of $300,000 —building costs are high in these mountains.

Requests for the gold samples have come from every state. Many are from other school children. Some of the letters have a tragic note.

Like one from a 10-year-old Longmont, Colo., boy who said he is going blind. The boy, able to attend only two and a half months of school himself, said he was sending $1 from his allowance so others could have a good school.

An 80-year-old West Palm Beach, Fla., blind woman wrote she had lived in the mining camp in the early days and still had a warm spot in her heart for the town and its kids.

There's humor too. A New York City bank official wrote that during a business trip to Cripple Creek last summer he played a slot machine in the hotel lobby and hit a $5 jackpot after playing two quarters.

"Somehow I have been ashamed ever since," the banker wrote, "and the 20 quarters are still at home in my drawer. The net was $4.50 which I am more than delighted to turn over to the superintendent of schools."

A laundry and cleaning shop owner in Kingsport, Tenn., Stephen H. Batchelder, is one of the scheme's biggest boosters. He sent out circulars throughout his town urging residents to send their dollars to Cripple Creek for an ore sample.

Batchelder advertised that "in return, to show you how much we appreciate your carrying out our suggestion, we will clean a suit of clothes for you free—with a necktie thrown in. That ordinarily would cost you a dollar. You can, of course, keep the gold ore."

When you buy a colander make sure that if the holes are small, there are enough of them to allow the liquid to pass through freely. On the other hand don't buy a colander with holes that are too large os that foods like rice will slip through.

Aliens For The Army

Recruiting of aliens abroad for the United States Army begins today or soon after, according to an Army announcement. The process is confined for the time being to Germany although German nationals, like nationals of countries in the North Atlantic Security treaty, are ineligible. All candidates are to be carefully screened.

The program has been set up under the Lodge-Philbin Act of June 30, 1950. This act had limited to 2,500 the aliens to be recruited, although the number had been set at 10,000 in the bill as passed by the Senate in 1949. The new Selective Service-Military Training Act will raise the ceiling to 12,500 over the next four years, according to an agreement reached by the Senate and the House conferees on April 26.

Aliens recruited under the program enlist in the Army for five years. They must be between 18 and 35 years of age, be unmarried, have a working knowledge of English, be of "officer calibre." Sen. Lodge (R., Mass.) predicts that they will prove the "cream of the crop."

These alien recruits are to be sent to the United States for training. At the end of their five-year enlistment period they become eligible for U. S. citizenship. One reason for the delay in recruiting them was the difficulty of determining whether they might be barred from this country under provisions of the McCarran Subversive Control Act. Most of the recruits accepted are expected to be men of Slavic stock who are "stateless."

Another bill proposed by Lodge would establish a volunteer Freedom Corps of 250,000 aliens recruited abroad. These would not necessarily be of officer calibre, nor would they be integrated into units of the U.S. Army. A revised form of the proposal, with a smaller number of recruits authorized, is expected from the Massachusetts Senator in a few days.

A somewhat similar bill in the House, introduced by Rep. Flood (D., Pa.), provides for the enlistment of aliens "devoted to freedom and democratic principles and the cause of world peace." Those enlisted would be organized into national units, with nationals of North Atlantic Treaty signatories barred.

Sen. Lodge proposed in 1946 that 50,000 (later 25,000) men be recruited abroad to serve in the U.S. occupation forces. At that time the proposal elicited criticism that any such force would constitute an American "Foreign Legion" of mercenaries. Pointing out that recruits even in the Voluntary Freedom Corps could eventually become eligible for citizenship under the Lodge-Philbin Act, Sen. Lodge now replies:

> "The argument that it is pernicious and debilitating to hire mercenary adventurers as replacements for your own men, who would thus escape military service, is sound; and we should actively oppose such a proposal. But we should as actively seek, instead, the help of selected alien soldiers on the same voluntary basis which actuated the countless aliens who fought for our country during the War of the Revolution, the Mexican War, the Civil War, and thereafter."

The European pool of men of military age runs as high as 2,000,000, according to Lodge. He advocates also the enlistment of Chinese guerrillas and Chinese Nationalists.

U. S.-British Amity

Uncle Sam and John Bull are going through one of their recurrent periods of mutual mistrust. In resigning from the British Government last week, three former members of it charged us with leading Britain into a rearmament program that would lower British standards of living still further—unless we did something about sharing raw materials. And much of British public opinion seemed to agree with the allegation.

On this side of the water, the British are charged in some quarters with failing to hold up their end of the stick in the Korean War, even if they do have 120,000 men engaged in the hostilities in Malaya. And many supporters of General MacArthur have alleged that he really was dismissed because Great Britain would not go along with his policies in the Far East.

Oh, well, American-British relations always have their ups and downs. On the down side, to dip only into recent history, there have been the disagreement on recognition of Communist China—our hostility to their Palestine policy—their dismay at our brusque termination of Lend-Lease after the war—our protests when they ended war debt payments in 1934—their anger when we scuttled the World Economic Conference of 1933 — rivalry in cruiser strength in 1927 — their resentment when we rejected the League of Nations in 1918—our resentment when they lined up with France against President Wilson at the Paris Peace Conference.

Against these antagonisms must be placed the joint American-British opposition to Russian aggression—the cooperation on devaluation of the pound in September, 1949—the North Atlantic Security treaty and the Marshall Plan—the British loan agreement of 1945-46—the unity in drafting the UN Charter—the joint prosecution of World Wars II and I—the U.S. help to Britain between the outbreak of war in 1939 and the attack on Pearl Harbor—the naval limitation agreements of 1930 and 1922—the 1922 termination, at our insistence, of the British - Japanese treaty of alliance.

Young Arthur

Young Arthur MacArthur is enjoying an experience which comes to few Americans. He is having his first glimpse of his homeland at an age when he is able to appreciate its wonders and its glories and the amenities which make life in the United States pleasant and enviable.

Most of those who see it for the first time come as strangers in search of refuge. Young MacArthur came as the son of a fabulous hero, came as the member of a family which was to receive one of the most tumultous welcomes in American history.

There can be no kid in America who would not have traded places with him, at least for a week. Of course, having Douglas MacArthur must be a bit wearing on a small boy, for small boys are constitutionally fidgety under ceremonial and pageantry.

But it must be thrilling to a 13-year-old to see his father acclaimed by his countrymen as no man was acclaimed before him. And when so tumultous a homecoming included one's first glimpse of a big league baseball game, the circus, Manhattan Island and Washington, climaxing a swift flight half-way around the world, it would be easy to take.

But the boy who had changed places with Arthur could, after his magic week, return to his accustomed life, full of memories but happy to be back with the fellows on the block, back with his own pup and his own kid sister, his own mother and father. Arthur cannot escape after a week. He will have to go through more of the same for a long time.

How To Keep Well

The Health Of The Preschooler

CHILDREN are the greatest assets of the family and the nation and it is our responsibility to bring them to adulthood mentally and physically strong. This is something that cannot be left to the last minute; the welfare program must begin in the cradle and be carried through adolesence.

Most parents of infants adhere meticulously to monthly visits to the physician. But after the first year, medical care may be neglected unless the youngster is ill. Then, just before school enrollment there is a flurry of excitement getting the child into shape for his new life. Father and mother may forget that periodic checkups are just as essential to the toddler as to the preschooler. Any hearing, visual, or dental defect that may be present should be corrected as soon as possible. If a three-year-old's tonsils are infected and causing trouble, there is no need to put off tonsillectomy until just before he enters first grade. Such abnormalities should be taken care of as they arise! in this way, the school child is less likely to have his educational progress disturbed.

Good vision is necessary for reading but this does not mean that eye disorders are unimportant during the preschool years. Nearsightedness or farsightedness may exist, for example, and tests for these conditions may be made as early as the age of 1½ but they are difficult and not always reliable. However, suggestive symptom such as headache or eye pain should not be overlooked. Sties, cysts, and eyelid infections may occur which sometimes are traceable to infected tonsils or other foci. Irritated lids may have an allergic basis and dietary changes often bring relief.

It is true that visual tests now are routine in most schools. At least 80 per cent of learning comes through the sense of sight, which means that visual education plays a major role in most schools. Many poor readers have eye defects such as refractive errors or muscle imbalance. Nevertheless, not all children with impaired vision are poor readers and vice versa. Other factors to be considered are anemia, malnutrition, hearing loss, systemic diseases, and endocrine deficiencies. The nervous system also plays a role in mental retardation, neuroses, and emotional problems—all of which interfere with the ability to learn.

Some children have difficulty making their eyes work together as team. Owing to imbalance of the ocular muscles or eyestrain the optics are unable to fuse on a single image. This problem is not easy to solve and even specialists in reading cannot help every youngster with this defect. Cross-eye should be corrected by placing a patch over the good eye, orthoptics, or surgery.

By taking care of these details at an early age it will be possible to decrease the percentage of cases that require eye care on entering school. It is logical to assume that other benefits would accrue if visual defects are remedied a month or a year before the age of six.

Shooting At The Apples?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Gen. Ridgway Promised Truman To Hold Against Communists; Ridgway Deserves Credit For Improved UN Forces; Congress Dawdles On Food For India

WASHINGTON — Before President Truman made his tough decision to fire General MacArthur, he asked General Matt Ridgway for a confidential opinion as to whether UN forces could hold against the expected big Communist offensive.

Truman took this precaution, first because it had been known for some time that the offensive was coming, second because he also knew what a catastrophic torrent of criticism would be heaped on his head if after relieving MacArthur, UN forces suffered a staggering defeat.

Gen. Ridgway cabled back that his forces could hold. He went further and stated that he could hold against any enemy attack for 60 days — even without reinforcements. The Pentagon, reporting this to the White House, said they had complete confidence in Ridgway, so Truman shot the works with MacArthur.

There are several important reasons for this confidence, all going to the tremendously improved fighting quality and command of American troops.

Last December a Chinese army only half as big as that facing us today, was thrown against the UN. It was not one million men as MacArthur announced. Yet that relatively small Chinese force threw the Eighth Army for a headlong retreat of more than 120 miles. Furthermore the Chinese army of last December was poorly equipped with small arms and almost no heavy artillery.

Today, twice as many Chinese are attacking, equipped with twice the firepower of last December. Meanwhile UN forces are only slightly bigger than as of last December.

Chief change between now and then, however, is in American fighting spirit and strategy, for which Lt. Gen. Matt Ridgway deserves most of the credit. Here is what he has done:

American Guerrillas

1. Previously, the mechanized American forces were roadbound and easily outflanked by the Chinese, who swarmed through the backwoods and rice paddies, usually keeping off the main highways. Ridgway has now moved his infantry off the roads, and trained them to fight on the Communists' own ground. Instead of relying on trucks and jeeps, Ridgway has hired South Korean bearers to haul supplies to GIs who are dug in off the highways. Ridgway also has used guerrilla-trained American Rangers to harass the enemy behind their lines.

2. Ridgway has moved cautiously, and patrolled every step of the way, instead of racing ahead pell-mell, as Lt. Gen. Edward Almond and the late Gen. Walton Walker did last November to see whose troops could reach the Yalu River first. Ridgway also keeps tight liaison between his front-line commands, in contrast with the Eighth Army and Tenth Corps last November which were forced to keep in touch with each other through Tokyo, a thousand miles away.

3. Ridgway has reorganized his command down to the company level. This got rid of incompetent officers and gave the men new confidence in their commanders.

4. Ridgway has also bolstered the South Korean troops, who fight ferociously against North Koreans but flee in panic from the Chinese. Ridgway gave the South Koreans a taste of victory over the Chinese by integrating South Korean and American units and throwing them into battle side by side. Ridgway also assigned South Korean soldiers to count the Chinese dead. This has helped, but not overcome the South Koreans' psychological fear of the Chinese.

Congressional Procrastination

Hours—even minutes—are vital to a starving person. Yet Congress dawdled months before agreeing to consider legislation to feed the hungry mouths of India. Behind this inaction is another story of how the American people rise to the occasion when their senators and representatives fail to act.

It was a growing floodtide of gifts to the Indian Embassy, from people in all parts of the United States that caused isolationists in Congress finally to consent to a vote on the Food-for-India Bill.

However, the isolationist bloc, led by GOP Rep. Clarence Brown of Ohio, put up a vigorous battle before the legislation was finally jarred loose from its dusty pigeonhole in the House Rules Committee.

Another Republican, also from Ohio, Rep. John Vorys, took just the contrary view. He personally appeared before the Rules Committee group to urge that the Indian aid measure be reported to the House floor, where members could vote for or against. Herbert Hoover also went on record with a strong endorsement of the bill.

But Congressman Brown argued: "This is another idea of Dean Acheson and the State Department crowd to scatter our assets to the four winds."

"If what you say is true, then Acheson is taking his cue from a great humanitarian in your own party," shot back Democratic Rep. Ray Madden of Indiana. Madden then read Herbert Hoover's plea to aid India as a "human necessity."

"Well, I'm going along with him on this," retorted Madden.

Acting Chairman Gene Cox, Georgia Democrat, who had been quietly abetting Brown's blockade of the India aid bill, also changed his tune; but for a different reason. Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas sent word to the Rules Committee that he wanted no more stalling on Food-for-India.

NOTE—Both the Senate and House are now set for a final vote on the wheat-for-India bill. The House bill provides for a loan of $190,000,000, while the Senate bill provides for $200,000,000 of food, of which half is a loan, half an outright gift. Herbert Hoover proposed that all the food be in the form of a gift.

Marx On Russia

I READ this in the British magazine "The Twentieth Century": "On April 19, 1853, the London correspondent of the New York Tribune (now the Herald Tribune) had this to say about Russian expansion in Europe:

"'. . . Thanks to the ignorance, lethargy, inconsequence and cowardice of the occidental governments, Russia has in all essentials attained its aims, one after the other. . . . Since Peter the Great, the Russian frontier has advanced by seven hundred miles in the direction of Berlin, Dresden and Vienna; it has moved some five hundred miles closer to Constantinople, some six hundred and thirty miles closer to Stockholm, about a thousand miles closer to Teheran . . .'"

The writer of this quotation was none other than Karl Marx. He could not have known, in 1853, that his ideas would be seeded down in Russia in 1917 and that his principal disciples would regard that country as their motherland.

Earlier, Karl Marx had warned:

> ". . . (Under certain circumstances) it would turn out that Russia's natural frontier runs from Danzig or Stettin to Trieste. And as sure as one annexation follows another, the conquest of Turkey by Russia would only be the prelude to the annexation of Hungary, Prussia, Galicia, and to the realization of that Slav empire of which certain fanatical pan-Slav philosophers are dreaming. . . . Once in possession of Turkey, Russia's power is increased by half and overtops that of all the rest of Europe combined. That would be an indescribable disaster. . . . The maintenance of Turkish independence, and the prevention of Russia's plans of annexation should the Ottoman empire dissolve after all, are matters of the highest importance. In this the interests of revolutionary democracy and those of England coincide . . ."

It is interesting to compare these statements with that of Dean Acheson dated February 23, 1951, to Mr. Clarence E. Moullette, in which he says:

"However, as it became clear that the rulers of the Soviet Union not only were not interested in cooperating with us, but were challenging the survival of our free institutions, and the independence of all nations, we have been obliged to build up our strength again, all of us."

Recently, in a conversation concerning Dean Acheson, I made the point that he lacks historical imagination, which is the essence of statesmanship. Such minds as Talleyrand and Disraeli could see ahead and yet they were restrained by profound knowledge of history.

Stalin, at Yalta, laid out a future for Europe and Asia beneficial to his country and his ideals of life, with the broadest strokes. Roosevelt, Hopkins and Hiss could only deal with the matters in hand. As important as such matters have seemed to be, they had to be fitted into the framework of our own tradition and history. This they did not do and, therefore, brought upon us our present miseries.

Had the United States possessed one statesman in power in 1945, he would have appraised this situation clearly. There were many fine minds, out of power, who did, in 1945, appraise this situation correctly.

Dean Acheson is now virtually the president of the United States because foreign affairs prevail over every domestic question that faces the country. He develops the position in international relations and then every other question has to be made to conform to it.

For instance, we have practically fixed it as a policy to give Europe $5,000,000,000 a year. Since the end of World War II, we have been giving Europe that amount of money or credit. Although the British have given up Marshall Plan aid, they are to get military aid, which comes to the same thing. Therefore, our domestic budget has to include this amount, come what may.

Or, General Eisenhower is sent to Europe to assume responsibility, on behalf of the United States, for the success of the North Atlantic Alliance. To implement that, we are asked to create a standing army of 3,500,000 Americans and to have a 1951-52 budget of about $100,000,000,000. If we agree to Mr. Acheson's foreign program, the economy of our people must be adjusted to the government taking in taxes or bonds about one-third of the national product.

When a man possesses such power, his wisdom should be great; his sense of obligation national. Mr. Acheson is an advocate rather than a philosopher, and his affinities are British rather than American.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — America is getting to be a little like Russia in the handling of official propaganda.

Thus the Democratic National Committee has just sent out a tabloid newspaper to 50,000 party workers as the "official record" in the MacArthur episode with instructions to spread the party line throughout the country. It adds some approving editorials but not a word of the other side — neither the address of General MacArthur to Congress, his authorized denial from Tokyo, nor any of the other factual data bearing on the case.

These documents, says the Democratic national chairman in a signed article on the front page, "tell the true story" of the action of the President "in relieving General MacArthur of his command."

But do they?

Untruth Stated

Here is the text of that "document":

"On April 19, the following statement was issued at the Pentagon: In response to inquiries from the press concerning General MacArthur's reference to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, a Pentagon spokesman said the White House had authorized him to state that the action taken by the President in relieving General MacArthur was based upon the unanimous recommendations of the President's principal civilian and military advisers including the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The reasons for General MacArthur's relief have been stated previously by the President."

Now the truth is there was no meeting of the Joint Chiefs of Staff with the President to discuss the dismissal of General MacArthur or to discuss the taking of any action with reference to his command.

There is no "official record," therefore, and even no unofficial record of any "action" whatsoever taken by the Joint Chiefs of Staff in this matter either in conference with the President or anywhere else.

The Democratic National Committee which released its statement on April 27 had eight days in which to verify the truth or falsity of the above. Attention was called in this dispatch on April 23 to the untruth and the same dispatch was inserted in the Congressional Record by members of Congress.

This correspondent finds that he was slightly in error in his April 23 dispatch even in saying that there was an informal meeting between the President and the Joint Chiefs of Staff at which replacement of General MacArthur was discussed. No meeting of any kind with the President occurred.

What happened was that each member of the Joint Chiefs was asked for a personal opinion — but not by the President — and the views that came back informally were that a change in command was logical sometime. But no "recommendation" was made that the change be brought about either in the manner used by the President or in any other manner. Hence the "action" taken by the President was not "recommended" either unanimously or otherwise by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and it is untrue to say so. Some of its members did not know about the action taken by the President till they read it in the newspapers or heard it over the radio.

For the Democratic National Committee to spread the untruth that the Joint Chiefs of Staff favored the dismissal of MacArthur instead of a normal method of changing the Far Eastern command is to put the Joint Chiefs in the very position that Senator Taft of Ohio claims it is in now — namely, a political instrumentality of the White House.

Many people will agree that the differing positions of General MacArthur and the President on policy made a conference and perhaps even a separation from command inevitable. But no public purpose will be served now by letting the major political party's headquarters spread untruths about the episode or by making the issue itself a subject for propaganda for "party workers" to begin working on. To do so certainly seems inconsistent with the President's appeal at the Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner on April 14 to put the national interest above party politics. It merely encourages the Republican party to do some of the same things that the Democratic headquarters has done. This isn't the way to heal wounds and bring national unity.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH ALSOP

The British And The Bomb

WASHINGTON—

THE THREATENED rupture of the Anglo-American alliance dramatized by Gen. MacArthur's recall and Aneurin Bevan's resignation, has much deeper roots than most people realize. For the fact is that the British planners and military chiefs are more and more inclined to challenge the basic concept on which American strategy rests, and thus in a sense, to challenge also the basis of the Anglo-American alliance.

The heart of the matter is that American strategy is now squarely on atomic bombing of great population centers—and the British Isles themselves are fatally vulnerable to just this form of attack. This is certainly one reason why the British have already proposed, at least informally, that if war comes, American atomic bombs should not be used against Soviet or satellite cities, except in retaliation for Soviet attacks on American or allied cities.

The British are urging, that, unless the Soviets first use their atomic stockpile for population bombing, the American stockpile should be used only against communication lines, special isolated targets, and tactically against enemy troops in the field. This proposal is based on the assumption that even in war the Russians probably would not use their bombs against allied cities if they knew this would cause devastating retaliation against Russian cities.

Wishful Thinking

This may be wishful thinking, but in the terribly exposed position in which the British find themselves, wishful thinking is natural. The British also advance a second, and very powerful argument for their proposal. This is based on a point made by the great American expert on Russia, George Kennan, in a recent issue of "Foreign Affairs."

"We in the outside world," wrote Kennan, ". . . will never prevail in any struggle against the Soviet power unless the Russian people are our willing allies. That goes for peace, and it goes for war."

The British argue — and Kennan would doubtless agree — that the Russian people are not going to be "our willing allies" after thirty million or so Russians have been killed by our atomic bombs. They argue that mass population bombing, except in retaliation, would be as fatal an error as Hitler's savagery in Russia, cementing the people around the regime, and thus ending all hope of quick or decisive victory.

Unfortunately, there are very cogent reasons why the British proposal will almost certainly be rejected. For one thing, there is the nature of the bomb itself. In certain special circumstances, the atomic bomb can undoubtedly be used effectively as a tactical weapon. Yet the brutal fact is that the atomic bomb is inherently suited, not for use against isolated targets and troops in the field, but for use against the massed populations of great cities.

In Hiroshima and Nagasaki, the three primary effects of the bomb—blast, heat flash, and radiation—caused only a small fraction of the casualties. The great bulk of casualties are caused by the city itself, when blast collapses buildings on top of people, and when both blast and heat flash start terrible fires. The cruel truth is that the atomic bomb is only a really revolutionary weapon when it is used in this way — to cause great cities to destroy their inhabitants.

Effects Indecisive

Used in any other way, the bomb is no longer a decisive weapon. Heavy industrial machinery is not essentially damaged by the blast of a modern bomb, even under a mile from ground zero, the point above which the bomb is exploded. A soldier in a slit trench would almost certainly live to fight another day only a mile from ground zero, and a tank would remain essentially intact well under half a mile from ground zero.

Even assuming that many hundreds of bombs were available for tactical use, or against isolated targets — and each bomb represents a very heavy investment — the effects could not be decisive. A weapon with a killing radius of not much more than a mile cannot stop a numerically superior army advancing across a fluid front of many hundreds of miles. Thus to accept the British proposal would be the equivalent of very sharply reducing the American atomic stockpile. And the American atomic stockpile is the central military asset of the West, and the only real existing deterrent to Soviet aggression.

The fact is that the follies of past disarmament have reduced this country and its allies to total reliance on a willingness to use th atomic bomb, in the most ruthles way, for the awful purpose for which it is inherently suited. Yet it should not surprise us that th British, and our other Europea allies, are not precisely eager [illegible] join us in a crusade which wou[illegible] see their countries either occupi or devastated. And if there is [illegible] war soon, and General Eisenhow succeeds in his mission of build real strength in Europe, the t may indeed come when it will [illegible] well to re-examine a strategic c cept based wholly on a wea likely by its very nature to de all our purposes.

Aliens For The Army

Recruiting of aliens abroad for the United States Army begins today or soon after, according to an Army announcement. The process is confined for the time being to Germany although German nationals, like nationals of countries in the North Atlantic Security treaty, are ineligible. All candidates are to be carefully screened.

The program has been set up under the Lodge-Philbin Act of June 30, 1950. This act had limited to 2,500 the aliens to be recruited, although the number had been set at 10,000 in the bill as passed by the Senate in 1949. The new Selective Service-Military Training Act will raise the ceiling to 12,500 over the next four years, according to an agreement reached by the Senate and the House conferees on April 26.

Aliens recruited under the program enlist in the Army for five years. They must be between 18 and 35 years of age, be unmarried, have a working knowledge of English, be of "officer calibre." Sen. Lodge (R., Mass.) predicts that they will prove the "cream of the crop."

These alien recruits are to be sent to the United States for training. At the end of their five-year enlistment period they become eligible for U. S. citizenship. One reason for the delay in recruiting them was the difficulty of determining whether they might be barred from this country under provisions of the McCarran Subversive Control Act. Most of the recruits accepted are expected to be men of Slavic stock who are "stateless."

Another bill proposed by Lodge would establish a volunteer Freedom Corps of 250,000 aliens recruited abroad. These would not necessarily be of officer calibre, nor would they be integrated into units of the U.S. Army. A revised form of the proposal, with a smaller number of recruits authorized, is expected from the Massachusetts Senator in a few days.

A somewhat similar bill in the House, introduced by Rep. Flood (D., Pa.), provides for the enlistment of aliens "devoted to freedom and democratic principles and the cause of world peace." Those enlisted would be organized into national units, with nationals of North Atlantic Treaty signatories barred.

Sen. Lodge proposed in 1946 that 50,000 (later 25,000) men be recruited abroad to serve in the U.S. occupation forces. At that time the proposal elicited criticism that any such force would constitute an American "Foreign Legion" of mercenaries. Pointing out that recruits even in the Voluntary Freedom Corps could eventually become eligible for citizenship under the Lodge-Philbin Act, Sen. Lodge now replies:

> "The argument that it is pernicious and debilitating to hire mercenary adventurers as replacements for your own men, who would thus escape military service, is sound; and we should actively oppose such a proposal. But we should as actively seek, instead, the help of selected alien soldiers on the same voluntary basis which actuated the countless aliens who fought for our country during the War of the Revolution, the Mexican War, the Civil War, and thereafter."

The European pool of men of military age runs as high as 2,000,000, according to Lodge. He advocates also the enlistment of Chinese guerrillas and Chinese Nationalists.

U. S.-British Amity

Uncle Sam and John Bull are going through one of their recurrent periods of mutual mistrust. In resigning from the British Government last week, three former members of it charged us with leading Britain into a rearmament program that would lower British standards of living still further—unless we did something about sharing raw materials. And much of British public opinion seemed to agree with the allegation.

On this side of the water, the British are charged in some quarters with failing to hold up their end of the stick in the Korean War, even if they do have 120,000 men engaged in the hostilities in Malaya. And many supporters of General MacArthur have alleged that he really was dismissed because Great Britain would not go along with his policies in the Far East.

Oh, well, American-British relations always have their ups and downs. On the down side, to dip only into recent history, there have been the disagreement on recognition of Communist China—our hostility to their Palestine policy—their dismay at our brusque termination of Lend-Lease after the war—our protests when they ended war debt payments in 1934—their anger when we scuttled the World Economic Conference of 1933 — rivalry in cruiser strength in 1927 — their resentment when we rejected the League of Nations in 1918—our resentment when they lined up with France against President Wilson at the Paris Peace Conference.

Against these antagonisms must be placed the joint American-British opposition to Russian aggression—the cooperation on devaluation of the pound in September, 1949—the North Atlantic Security treaty and the Marshall Plan—the British loan agreement of 1945-46—the unity in drafting the UN Charter—the joint prosecution of World Wars II and I—the U.S. help to Britain between the outbreak of war in 1939 and the attack on Pearl Harbor—the naval limitation agreements of 1930 and 1922—the 1922 termination, at our insistence, of the British-Japanese treaty of alliance.

Young Arthur

Young Arthur MacArthur is enjoying an experience which comes to few Americans. He is having his first glimpse of his homeland at an age when he is able to appreciate its wonders and its glories and the amenities which make life in the United States pleasant and enviable.

Most of those who see it for the first time come as strangers in search of refuge. Young MacArthur came as the son of a fabulous hero, came as the member of a family which was to receive one of the most tumultous welcomes in American history.

There can be no kid in America who would not have traded places with him, at least for a week. Of course, having Douglas MacArthur must be a bit wearing on a small boy, for small boys are constitutionally fidgety under ceremonial and pageantry.

But it must be thrilling to a 13-year-old to see his father acclaimed by his countrymen as no man was acclaimed before him. And when so tumultous a homecoming included one's first glimpse of a big league baseball game, the circus, Manhattan Island and Washington, climaxing a swift flight half-way around the world, it would be easy to take.

But the boy who had changed places with Arthur could, after his magic week, return to his accustomed life, full of memories but happy to be back with the fellows on the block, back with his own pup and his own kid sister, his own mother and father. Arthur cannot escape after a week. He will have to go through more of the same for a long time.

The Health Of The Preschooler

CHILDREN are the greatest assets of the family and the nation and it is our responsibility to bring them to adulthood mentally and physically strong. This is something that cannot be left to the last minute; the welfare program must begin in the cradle and be carried through adolesence.

Most parents of infants adhere meticulously to monthly visits to the physician. But after the first year, medical care may be neglected unless the youngster is ill. Then, just before school enrollment there is a flurry of excitement getting the child into shape for his new life. Father and mother may forget that periodic checkups are just as essential to the toddler as to the preschooler. Any hearing, visual, or dental defect that may be present should be corrected as soon as possible. If a three-year-old's tonsils are infected and causing trouble, there is no need to put off tonsillectomy until just before he enters first grade. Such abnormalities should be taken care of as they arise! in this way, the school child is less likely to have his educational progress disturbed.

Good vision is necessary for reading but this does not mean that eye disorders are unimportant during the preschool years. Nearsightedness or farsightedness may exist, for example, and tests for these conditions may be made as early as the age of 1½ but they are difficult and not always reliable. However, suggestive symptom such as headache or eye pain should not be overlooked. Sties, cysts, and eyelid infections may occur which sometimes are traceable to infected tonsils or other foci. Irritated lids may have an allergic basis and dietary changes often bring relief.

It is true that visual tests now are routine in most schools. At least 80 per cent of learning comes through the sense of sight, which means that visual education plays a major role in most schools. Many poor readers have eye defects such as refractive errors or muscle imbalance. Nevertheless, not all children with impaired vision are poor readers and vice versa. Other factors to be considered are anemia, malnutrition, hearing loss, systemic diseases, and endocrine deficiencies. The nervous system also plays a role in mental retardation, neuroses, and emotional problems—all of which interfere with the ability to learn.

Some children have difficulty making their eyes work together as team. Owing to imbalance of the ocular muscles or eyestrain the optics are unable to fuse on a single image. This problem is not easy to solve and even specialists in reading cannot help every youngster with this defect. Cross-eye should be corrected by placing a patch over the good eye, orthoptics, or surgery.

By taking care of these details at an early age it will be possible to decrease the percentage of cases that require eye care on entering school. It is logical to assume that other benefits would accrue if visual defects are remedied a month or a year before the age of six.

DREW PEARSON on—

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Gen. Ridgway Promised Truman To Hold Against Communists; Ridgway Deserves Credit For Improved UN Forces; Congress Dawdles On Food For India

WASHINGTON — Before President Truman made his tough decision to fire General MacArthur, he asked General Matt Ridgway for a confidential opinion as to whether UN forces could hold against the expected big Communist offensive.

Truman took this precaution, first because it had been known for some time that the offensive was coming, second because he also knew what a catastrophic torrent of criticism would be heaped on his head if after relieving MacArthur, UN forces suffered a staggering defeat.

Gen. Ridgway cabled back that his forces could hold. He went further and stated that he could hold against any enemy attack for 60 days — even without reinforcements. The Pentagon, reporting this to the White House, said they had complete confidence in Ridgway, so Truman shot the works with MacArthur.

There are several important reasons for this confidence, all going to the tremendously improved fighting quality and command of American troops.

Last December a Chinese army only half as big as that facing us today, was thrown against the UN. It was not one million men as MacArthur announced. Yet that relatively small Chinese force threw the Eighth Army for a headlong retreat of more than 120 miles. Furthermore the Chinese army of last December was poorly equipped with small arms and almost no heavy artillery.

Today, twice as many Chinese are attacking, equipped with twice the firepower of last December. Meanwhile UN forces are only slightly bigger than as of last December.

Chief change between now and then, however, is in American fighting spirit and strategy, for which Lt. Gen. Matt Ridgway deserves most of the credit. Here is what he has done:

American Guerrillas

1. Previously, the mechanized American forces were roadbound and easily outflanked by the Chinese, who swarmed through the backwoods and rice paddies, usually keeping off the main highways. Ridgway has now moved his infantry off the roads, and trained them to fight on the Communists' own ground. Instead of relying on trucks and jeeps, Ridgway has hired South Korean bearers to haul supplies to GIs who are dug in off the highways. Ridgway also has used guerrilla-trained American Rangers to harass the enemy behind their lines.

2. Ridgway has moved cautiously, and patrolled every step of the way, instead of racing ahead pell-mell, as Lt. Gen. Edward Almond and the late Gen. Walton Walker did last November to see whose troops could reach the Yalu River first. Ridgway also keeps tight liaison between his front-line commands, in contrast with the Eighth Army and Tenth Corps last November which were forced to keep in touch with each other through Tokyo, a thousand miles away.

3. Ridgway has reorganized his command down to the company level. This got rid of incompetent officers and gave the men new confidence in their commanders.

4. Ridgway has also bolstered the South Korean troops, who fight ferociously against North Koreans but flee in panic from the Chinese. Ridgway gave the South Koreans a taste of victory over the Chinese by integrating South Korean and American units and throwing them into battle side by side. Ridgway also assigned South Korean soldiers to count the Chinese dead. This has helped, but not overcome the South Koreans' psychological fear of the Chinese.

Congressional Procrastination

Hours—even minutes—are vital to a starving person. Yet Congress dawdled months before agreeing to consider legislation to feed the hungry mouths of India. Behind this inaction is another story of how the American people rise to the occasion when their senators and representatives fail to act.

It was a growing floodtide of gifts to the Indian Embassy, from people in all parts of the United States that caused isolationists in Congress finally to consent to a vote on the Food-for-India Bill.

However, the isolationist bloc, led by GOP Rep. Clarence Brown of Ohio, put up a vigorous battle before the legislation was finally jarred loose from its dusty pigeonhole in the House Rules Committee.

Another Republican, also from Ohio, Rep. John Vorys, took just the contrary view. He personally appeared before the Rules Committee group to urge that the Indian aid measure be reported to the House floor, where members could vote for or against. Herbert Hoover also went on record with a strong endorsement of the bill.

But Congressman Brown argued: "This is another idea of Dean Acheson and the State Department crowd to scatter our assets to the four winds."

"If what you say is true, then Acheson is taking his cue from a great humanitarian in your own party," shot back Democratic Rep. Ray Madden of Indiana. Madden then read Herbert Hoover's plea to aid India as a "human necessity."

"Well, I'm going along with him on this," retorted Madden.

Acting Chairman Gene Cox, Georgia Democrat, who had been quietly abetting Brown's blockade of the India aid bill, also changed his tune; but for a different reason. Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas sent word to the Rules Committee that he wanted no more stalling on Food-for-India.

NOTE—Both the Senate and House are now set for a final vote on the wheat-for-India bill. The House bill provides for a loan of $190,000,000, while the Senate bill provides for $200,000,000 of food, of which half is a loan, half an outright gift. Herbert Hoover proposed that all the food be in the form of a gift.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Marx On Russia

I READ this in the British magazine "The Twentieth Century": "On April 19, 1853, the London correspondent of the New York Tribune (now the Herald Tribune) had this to say about Russian expansion in Europe:

" '. . . Thanks to the ignorance, lethargy, inconsequence and cowardice of the occidental governments, Russia has in all essentials attained its aims, one after the other. . . . Since Peter the Great, the Russian frontier has advanced by seven hundred miles in the direction of Berlin, Dresden and Vienna; it has moved some five hundred miles closer to Constantinople, some six hundred and thirty miles closer to Stockholm, about a thousand miles closer to Teheran . . .' "

The writer of this quotation was none other than Karl Marx. He could not have known, in 1853, that his ideas would be seeded down in Russia in 1917 and that his principal disciples would regard that country as their motherland.

Earlier, Karl Marx had warned:

". . . (Under certain circumstances) it would turn out that Russia's natural frontier runs from Danzig or Stettin to Trieste. And as sure as one annexation follows another, the conquest of Turkey by Russia would only be the prelude to the annexation of Hungary, Prussia, Galicia, and to the realization of that Slav empire of which certain fanatical pan-Slav philosophers are dreaming. . . . Once in possession of Turkey, Russia's power is increased by half and overtops that of all the rest of Europe combined. That would be an indescribable disaster. . . . The maintenance of Turkish independence, and the prevention of Russia's plans of annexation should the Ottoman empire dissolve after all, are matters of the highest importance. In this the interests of revolutionary democracy and those of England coincide . . ."

It is interesting to compare these statements with that of Dean Acheson dated February 23, 1951, to Mr. Clarence E. Moullette, in which he says:

"However, as it became clear that the rulers of the Soviet Union not only were not interested in cooperating with us, but were challenging the survival of our free institutions, and the independence of all nations, we have been obliged to build up our strength again, all of us."

Recently, in a conversation concerning Dean Acheson, I made the point that he lacks historical imagination, which is the essence of statesmanship. Such minds as Talleyrand and Disraeli could see ahead and yet they were restrained by profound knowledge of history.

Stalin, at Yalta, laid out a future for Europe and Asia beneficial to his country and his ideals of life, with the broadest strokes. Roosevelt, Hopkins and Hiss could only deal with the matters in hand. As important as such matters have seemed to be, they had to be fitted into the framework of our own tradition and history. This they did not do and, therefore, brought upon us our present miseries.

Had the United States possessed one statesman in power in 1945, he would have appraised this situation clearly. There were many fine minds, out of power, who did, in 1945, appraise this situation correctly.

Dean Acheson is now virtually the president of the United States because foreign affairs prevail over every domestic question that faces the country. He develops the position in international relations and then every other question has to be made to conform to it.

For instance, we have practically fixed it as a policy to give Europe $5,000,000,000 a year. Since the end of World War II, we have been giving Europe that amount of money or credit. Although the British have given up Marshall Plan aid, they are to get military aid, which comes to the same thing. Therefore, our domestic budget has to include this amount, come what may.

Or, General Eisenhower is sent to Europe to assume responsibility, on behalf of the United States, for the success of the North Atlantic Alliance. To implement that, we are asked to create a standing army of 3,500,000 Americans and to have a 1951-52 budget of about $100,000,000,000. If we agree to Mr. Acheson's foreign program, the economy of our people must be adjusted to the government taking in taxes or bonds about one-third of the national product.

When a man possesses such power, his wisdom should be great; his sense of obligation national. Mr. Acheson is an advocate rather than a philosopher, and his affinities are British rather than American.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — America is getting to be a little like Russia in the handling of official propaganda.

Thus the Democratic National Committee has just sent out a tabloid newspaper to 50,000 party workers as the "official record" in the MacArthur episode with instructions to spread the party line throughout the country. It adds some approving editorials but not a word of the other side — neither the address of General MacArthur to Congress, his authorized denial from Tokyo, nor any of the other factual data bearing on the case.

These documents, says the Democratic national chairman in a signed article on the front page, "tell the true story" of the action of the President "in relieving General MacArthur of his command."

But do they?

Untruth Stated

Here is the text of that "document":

"On April 19, the following statement was issued at the Pentagon: In response to inquiries from the press concerning General MacArthur's reference to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, a Pentagon spokesman said the White House had authorized him to state that the action taken by the President in relieving General MacArthur was based upon the unanimous recommendations of the President's principal civilian and military advisers including the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The reasons for General MacArthur's relief have been stated previously by the President."

Now the truth is there was no meeting of the Joint Chiefs of Staff with the President to discuss the dismissal of General MacArthur or to discuss the taking of any action with reference to his command.

There is no "official record," therefore, and even no unofficial record of any "action" whatsoever taken by the Joint Chiefs of Staff in this matter either in conference with the President or anywhere else.

The Democratic National Committee which released its statement on April 27 had eight days in which to verify the truth or falsity of the above. Attention was called in this dispatch on April 23 to the untruth and the same dispatch was inserted in the Congressional Record by members of Congress.

This correspondent finds that he was slightly in error in his April 23 dispatch even in saying that there was an informal meeting between the President and the Joint Chiefs of Staff at which replacement of General MacArthur was discussed. No meeting of any kind with the President occurred.

What happened was that each member of the Joint Chiefs was asked for a personal opinion — but not by the President — and the views that came back informally were that a change in command was logical sometime. But no "recommendation" was made that the change be brought about either in the manner used by the President or in any other manner. Hence the "action" taken by the President was not "recommended" either unanimously or otherwise by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and it is untrue to say so. Some of its members did not know about the action taken by the President till they read it in the newspapers or heard it over the radio.

For the Democratic National Committee to spread the untruth that the Joint Chiefs of Staff favored the dismissal of MacArthur instead of a normal method of changing the Far Eastern command is to put the Joint Chiefs in the very position that Senator Taft of Ohio claims it is in now — namely, a political instrumentality of the White House.

Many people will agree that the differing positions of General MacArthur and the President on policy made a conference and perhaps even a separation from command inevitable. But no public purpose will be served now by letting the major political party's headquarters spread untruths about the episode or by making the issue itself a subject for propaganda for "party workers" to begin working on. To do so certainly seems inconsistent with the President's appeal at the Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner on April 14 to put the national interest above party politics. It merely encourages the Republican party to do some of the same things that the Democratic headquarters has done. This isn't the way to heal wounds and bring national unity.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH ALSOP

The British And The Bomb

WASHINGTON—

THE THREATENED rupture of the Anglo-American alliance dramatized by Gen. MacArthur's recall and Aneurin Bevan's resignation, has much deeper roots than most people realize. For the fact is that the British planners and military chiefs are more and more inclined to challenge the basic concept on which American strategy rests, and thus in a sense, to challenge also the basis of the Anglo-American alliance.

The heart of the matter is that American strategy is now squarely on atomic bombing of great population centers—and the British Isles themselves are fatally vulnerable to just this form of attack. This is certainly one reason why the British have already proposed, at least informally, that if war comes, American atomic bombs should not be used against Soviet or satellite cities, except in retaliation for Soviet attacks on American or allied cities.

The British are urging, that, unless the Soviets first use their atomic stockpile for population bombing, the American stockpile should be used only against communication lines, special isolated targets, and tactically against enemy troops in the field. This proposal is based on the assumption that even in war the Russians probably would not use their bombs against allied cities if they knew this would cause devastating retaliation against Russian cities.

Wishful Thinking

This may be wishful thinking, but in the terribly exposed position in which the British find themselves, wishful thinking is natural. The British also advance a second, and very powerful argument for their proposal. This is based on a point made by the great American expert on Russia, George Kennan, in a recent issue of "Foreign Affairs."

"We in the outside world," wrote Kennan, ". . .will never prevail in any struggle against the Soviet power unless the Russian people are our willing allies. That goes for peace, and it goes for war."

The British argue — and Kennan would doubtless agree — that the Russian people are not going to be "our willing allies" after thirty million or so Russians have been killed by our atomic bombs. They argue that mass population bombing, except in retaliation, would be as fatal an error as Hitler's savagery in Russia, cementing the people around the regime, and thus ending all hope of quick or decisive victory.

Unfortunately, there are very cogent reasons why the British proposal will almost certainly be rejected. For one thing, there is the nature of the bomb itself. In certain special circumstances, the atomic bomb can undoubtedly be used effectively as a tactical weapon. Yet the brutal fact is that the atomic bomb is inherently suited, not for use against isolated targets and troops in the field, but for use against the massed populations of great cities.

In Hiroshima and Nagasaki, the three primary effects of the bomb—blast, heat flash, and radiation—caused only a small fraction of the casualties. The great bulk of casualties are caused by the city itself, when blast collapses buildings on top of people, and when both blast and heat flash start terrible fires. The cruel truth is that the atomic bomb is only a really revolutionary weapon when it is used in this way — to cause great cities to destroy their inhabitants.

Effects Indecisive

Used in any other way, the bomb is no longer a decisive weapon. Heavy industrial machinery is not essentially damaged by the blast of a modern bomb, even under a mile from ground zero, the point above which the bomb is exploded. A soldier in a slit trench would almost certainly live to fight another day only a mile from ground zero, and a tank would remain essentially intact well under half a mile from ground zero.

Even assuming that many hundreds of bombs were available for tactical use, or against isolated targets — and each bomb represents a very heavy investment — the effects could not be decisive. A weapon with a killing radius of not much more than a mile cannot stop a numerically superior army advancing across a fluid front of many hundreds of miles. Thus to accept the British proposal would be the equivalent of very sharply reducing the American atomic stockpile. And the American atomic stockpile is the central military asset of the West, and the only real existing deterrent to Soviet aggression.

The fact is that the follies of past disarmament have reduced this country and its allies to total reliance on a willingness to use th[illegible] atomic bomb, in the most ruthle[illegible] way, for the awful purpose for which it is inherently suited. Ye[illegible] it should not surprise us that th[illegible] British, and our other Europea[illegible] allies, are not precisely eager [illegible] join us in a crusade which wou[illegible] see their countries either occup[illegible] or devastated. And if there is [illegible] war soon, and General Eisenhow[illegible] succeeds in his mission of build[illegible] real strength in Europe, the t[illegible] may indeed come when it will [illegible] well to re-examine a strategic c[illegible]cept based wholly on a wea[illegible] likely by its very nature to de[illegible] all our purposes.

Aliens For The Army

Recruiting of aliens abroad for the United States Army begins today or soon after, according to an Army announcement. The process is confined for the time being to Germany although German nationals, like nationals of countries in the North Atlantic Security treaty, are ineligible. All candidates are to be carefully screened.

The program has been set up under the Lodge-Philbin Act of June 30, 1950. This act had limited to 2,500 the aliens to be recruited, although the number had been set at 10,000 in the bill as passed by the Senate in 1949. The new Selective Service-Military Training Act will raise the ceiling to 12,500 over the next four years, according to an agreement reached by the Senate and the House conferees on April 26.

Aliens recruited under the program enlist in the Army for five years. They must be between 18 and 35 years of age, be unmarried, have a working knowledge of English, be of "officer calibre." Sen. Lodge (R., Mass.) predicts that they will prove the "cream of the crop."

These alien recruits are to be sent to the United States for training. At the end of their five-year enlistment period they become eligible for U. S. citizenship. One reason for the delay in recruiting them was the difficulty of determining whether they might be barred from this country under provisions of the McCarran Subversive Control Act. Most of the recruits accepted are expected to be men of Slavic stock who are "stateless."

Another bill proposed by Lodge would establish a volunteer Freedom Corps of 250,000 aliens recruited abroad. These would not necessarily be of officer calibre, nor would they be integrated into units of the U.S. Army. A revised form of the proposal, with a smaller number of recruits authorized, is expected from the Massachusetts Senator in a few days.

A somewhat similar bill in the House, introduced by Rep. Flood (D., Pa.), provides for the enlistment of aliens "devoted to freedom and democratic principles and the cause of world peace." Those enlisted would be organized into national units, with nationals of North Atlantic Treaty signatories barred.

Sen. Lodge proposed in 1946 that 50,000 (later 25,000) men be recruited abroad to serve in the U.S. occupation forces. At that time the proposal elicited criticism that any such force would constitute an American "Foreign Legion" of mercenaries. Pointing out that recruits even in the Voluntary Freedom Corps could eventually become eligible for citizenship under the Lodge-Philbin Act, Sen. Lodge now replies:

> "The argument that it is pernicious and debilitating to hire mercenary adventurers as replacements for your own men, who would thus escape military service, is sound; and we should actively oppose such a proposal. But we should as actively seek, instead, the help of selected alien soldiers on the same voluntary basis which actuated the countless aliens who fought for our country during the War of the Revolution, the Mexican War, the Civil War, and thereafter."

The European pool of men of military age runs as high as 2,000,000, according to Lodge. He advocates also the enlistment of Chinese guerrillas and Chinese Nationalists.

U. S.-British Amity

Uncle Sam and John Bull are going through one of their recurrent periods of mutual mistrust. In resigning from the British Government last week, three former members of it charged us with leading Britain into a rearmament program that would lower British standards of living still further—unless we did something about sharing raw materials. And much of British public opinion seemed to agree with the allegation.

On this side of the water, the British are charged in some quarters with failing to hold up their end of the stick in the Korean War, even if they do have 120,000 men engaged in the hostilities in Malaya. And many supporters of General MacArthur have alleged that he really was dismissed because Great Britain would not go along with his policies in the Far East.

Oh, well, American-British relations always have their ups and downs. On the down side, to dip only into recent history, there have been the disagreement on recognition of Communist China—our hostility to their Palestine policy—their dismay at our brusque termination of Lend-Lease after the war—our protests when they ended war debt payments in 1934—their anger when we scuttled the World Economic Conference of 1933 — rivalry in cruiser strength in 1927 — their resentment when we rejected the League of Nations in 1918—our resentment when they lined up with France against President Wilson at the Paris Peace Conference.

Against these antagonisms must be placed the joint American-British opposition to Russian aggression—the cooperation on devaluation of the pound in September, 1949—the North Atlantic Security treaty and the Marshall Plan—the British loan agreement of 1945-46—the unity in drafting the UN Charter—the joint prosecution of World Wars II and I—the U.S. help to Britain between the outbreak of war in 1939 and the attack on Pearl Harbor—the naval limitation agreements of 1930 and 1922—the 1922 termination, at our insistence, of the British-Japanese treaty of alliance.

Young Arthur

Young Arthur MacArthur is enjoying an experience which comes to few Americans. He is having his first glimpse of his homeland at an age when he is able to appreciate its wonders and its glories and the amenities which make life in the United States pleasant and enviable.

Most of those who see it for the first time come as strangers in search of refuge. Young MacArthur came as the son of a fabulous hero, came as the member of a family which was to receive one of the most tumultous welcomes in American history.

There can be no kid in America who would not have traded places with him, at least for a week. Of course, having Douglas MacArthur must be a bit wearing on a small boy, for small boys are constitutionally fidgety under ceremonial and pageantry.

But it must be thrilling to a 13-year-old to see his father acclaimed by his countrymen as no man was acclaimed before him. And when so tumultous a homecoming included one's first glimpse of a big league baseball game, the circus, Manhattan Island and Washington, climaxing a swift flight half-way around the world, it would be easy to take.

But the boy who had changed places with Arthur could, after his magic week, return to his accustomed life, full of memories but happy to be back with the fellows on the block, back with his own pup and his own kid sister, his own mother and father. Arthur cannot escape after a week. He will have to go through more of the same for a long time.

The Health Of The Preschooler

CHILDREN are the greatest assets of the family and the nation and it is our responsibility to bring them to adulthood mentally and physically strong. This is something that cannot be left to the last minute; the welfare program must begin in the cradle and be carried through adolesence.

Most parents of infants adhere meticulously to monthly visits to the physician. But after the first year, medical care may be neglected unless the youngster is ill. Then, just before school enrollment there is a flurry of excitement getting the child into shape for his new life. Father and mother may forget that periodic checkups are just as essential to the toddler as to the preschooler. Any hearing, visual, or dental defect that may be present should be corrected as soon as possible. If a three-year-old's tonsils are infected and causing trouble, there is no need to put off tonsillectomy until just before he enters first grade. Such abnormalities should be taken care of as they arise! in this way, the school child is less likely to have his educational progress disturbed.

Good vision is necessary for reading but this does not mean that eye disorders are unimportant during the preschool years. Nearsightedness or farsightedness may exist, for example, and tests for these conditions may be made as early as the age of 1½ but they are difficult and not always reliable. However, suggestive symptom such as headache or eye pain should not be overlooked. Sties, cysts, and eyelid infections may occur which sometimes are traceable to infected tonsils or other foci. Irritated lids may have an allergic basis and dietary changes often bring relief.

It is true that visual tests now are routine in most schools. At least 80 per cent of learning comes through the sense of sight, which means that visual education plays a major role in most schools. Many poor readers have eye defects such as refractive errors or muscle imbalance. Nevertheless, not all children with impaired vision are poor readers and vice versa. Other factors to be considered are anemia, malnutrition, hearing loss, systemic diseases, and endocrine deficiencies. The nervous system also plays a role in mental retardation, neuroses, and emotional problems—all of which interfere with the ability to learn.

Some children have difficulty making their eyes work together as team. Owing to imbalance of the ocular muscles or eyestrain the optics are unable to fuse on a single image. This problem is not easy to solve and even specialists in reading cannot help every youngster with this defect. Cross-eye should be corrected by placing a patch over the good eye, orthoptics, or surgery.

By taking care of these details at an early age it will be possible to decrease the percentage of cases that require eye care on entering school. It is logical to assume that other benefits would accrue if visual defects are remedied a month or a year before the age of six.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Gen. Ridgway Promised Truman To Hold Against Communists; Ridgway Deserves Credit For Improved UN Forces; Congress Dawdles On Food For India

WASHINGTON — Before President Truman made his tough decision to fire General MacArthur, he asked General Matt Ridgway for a confidential opinion as to whether UN forces could hold against the expected big Communist offensive.

Truman took this precaution, first because it had been known for some time that the offensive was coming, second because he also knew what a catastrophic torrent of criticism would be heaped on his head if after relieving MacArthur, UN forces suffered a staggering defeat.

Gen. Ridgway cabled back that his forces could hold. He went further and stated that he could hold against any enemy attack for 60 days — even without reinforcements. The Pentagon, reporting this to the White House, said they had complete confidence in Ridgway, so Truman shot the works with MacArthur.

There are several important reasons for this confidence, all going to the tremendously improved fighting quality and command of American troops.

Last December a Chinese army only half as big as that facing us today, was thrown against the UN. It was not one million men as MacArthur announced. Yet that relatively small Chinese force threw the Eighth Army for a headlong retreat of more than 120 miles. Furthermore the Chinese army of last December was poorly equipped with small arms and almost no heavy artillery.

Today, twice as many Chinese are attacking, equipped with twice the firepower of last December. Meanwhile UN forces are only slightly bigger than as of last December.

Chief change between now and then, however, is in American fighting spirit and strategy, for which Lt. Gen. Matt Ridgway deserves most of the credit. Here is what he has done:

American Guerrillas

1. Previously, the mechanized American forces were roadbound and easily outflanked by the Chinese, who swarmed through the backwoods and rice paddies, usually keeping off the main highways. Ridgway has now moved his infantry off the roads, and trained them to fight on the Communists' own ground. Instead of relying on trucks and jeeps, Ridgway has hired South Korean bearers to haul supplies to GIs who are dug in off the highways. Ridgway also has used guerrilla-trained American Rangers to harass the enemy behind their lines.

2. Ridgway has moved cautiously, and patrolled every step of the way, instead of racing ahead pell-mell, as Lt. Gen. Edward Almond and the late Gen. Walton Walker did last November to see whose troops could reach the Yalu River first. Ridgway also keeps tight liaison between his front-line commands, in contrast with the Eighth Army and Tenth Corps last November which were forced to keep in touch with each other through Tokyo, a thousand miles away.

3. Ridgway has reorganized his command down to the company level. This got rid of incompetent officers and gave the men new confidence in their commanders.

4. Ridgway has also bolstered the South Korean troops, who fight ferociously against North Koreans but flee in panic from the Chinese. Ridgway gave the South Koreans a taste of victory over the Chinese by integrating South Korean and American units and throwing them into battle side by side. Ridgway also assigned South Korean soldiers to count the Chinese dead. This has helped, but not overcome the South Koreans' psychological fear of the Chinese.

Congressional Procrastination

Hours—even minutes—are vital to a starving person. Yet Congress dawdled months before agreeing to consider legislation to feed the hungry mouths of India. Behind this inaction is another story of how the American people rise to the occasion when their senators and representatives fail to act.

It was a growing floodtide of gifts to the Indian Embassy, from people in all parts of the United States that caused isolationists in Congress finally to consent to a vote on the Food-for-India Bill.

However, the isolationist bloc, led by GOP Rep. Clarence Brown of Ohio, put up a vigorous battle before the legislation was finally jarred loose from its dusty pigeonhole in the House Rules Committee.

Another Republican, also from Ohio, Rep. John Vorys, took just the contrary view. He personally appeared before the Rules Committee group to urge that the Indian aid measure be reported to the House floor, where members could vote for or against. Herbert Hoover also went on record with a strong endorsement of the bill.

But Congressman Brown argued: "This is another idea of Dean Acheson and the State Department crowd to scatter our assets to the four winds."

"If what you say is true, then Acheson is taking his cue from a great humanitarian in your own party," shot back Democratic Rep. Ray Madden of Indiana. Madden then read Herbert Hoover's plea to aid India as a "human necessity."

"Well, I'm going along with him on this," retorted Madden.

Acting Chairman Gene Cox, Georgia Democrat, who had been quietly abetting Brown's blockade of the India aid bill, also changed his tune; but for a different reason. Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas sent word to the Rules Committee that he wanted no more stalling on Food-for-India.

NOTE—Both the Senate and House are now set for a final vote on the wheat-for-India bill. The House bill provides for a loan of $190,000,000, while the Senate bill provides for $200,000,000 of food, of which half is a loan, half an outright gift. Herbert Hoover proposed that all the food be in the form of a gift.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Marx On Russia

I READ this in the British magazine "The Twentieth Century":

"On April 19, 1853, the London correspondent of the New York Tribune (now the Herald Tribune) had this to say about Russian expansion in Europe:

" '. . . Thanks to the ignorance, lethargy, inconsequence and cowardice of the occidental governments, Russia has in all essentials attained its aims, one after the other. . . . Since Peter the Great, the Russian frontier has advanced by seven hundred miles in the direction of Berlin, Dresden and Vienna; it has moved some five hundred miles closer to Constantinople, some six hundred and thirty miles closer to Stockholm, about a thousand miles closer to Teheran . . .' "

The writer of this quotation was none other than Karl Marx. He could not have known, in 1853, that his ideas would be seeded down in Russia in 1917 and that his principal disciples would regard that country as their motherland.

Earlier, Karl Marx had warned:

". . . (Under certain circumstances) it would turn out that Russia's natural frontier runs from Danzig or Stettin to Trieste. And as sure as one annexation follows another, the conquest of Turkey by Russia would only be the prelude to the annexation of Hungary, Prussia, Galicia, and to the realization of that Slav empire of which certain fanatical pan-Slav philosophers are dreaming. . . . Once in possession of Turkey, Russia's power is increased by half and overtops that of all the rest of Europe combined. That would be an indescribable disaster. . . . The maintenance of Turkish independence, and the prevention of Russia's plans of annexation should the Ottoman empire dissolve after all, are matters of the highest importance. In this the interests of revolutionary democracy and those of England coincide . . ."

It is interesting to compare these statements with that of Dean Acheson dated February 23, 1951, to Mr. Clarence E. Moullette, in which he says:

"However, as it became clear that the rulers of the Soviet Union not only were not interested in cooperating with us, but were challenging the survival of our free institutions, and the independence of all nations, we have been obliged to build up our strength again, all of us."

Recently, in a conversation concerning Dean Acheson, I made the point that he lacks historical imagination, which is the essence of statesmanship. Such minds as Talleyrand and Disraeli could see ahead and yet they were restrained by profound knowledge of history.

Stalin, at Yalta, laid out a future for Europe and Asia beneficial to his country and his ideals of life, with the broadest strokes. Roosevelt, Hopkins and Hiss could only deal with the matters in hand. As important as such matters have seemed to be, they had to be fitted into the framework of our own tradition and history. This they did not do and, therefore, brought upon us our present miseries.

Had the United States possessed one statesman in power in 1945, he would have appraised this situation clearly. There were many fine minds, out of power, who did, in 1945, appraise this situation correctly.

Dean Acheson is now virtually the president of the United States because foreign affairs prevail over every domestic question that faces the country. He develops the position in international relations and then every other question has to be made to conform to it.

For instance, we have practically fixed it as a policy to give Europe $5,000,000,000 a year. Since the end of World War II, we have been giving Europe that amount of money or credit. Although the British have given up Marshall Plan aid, they are to get military aid, which comes to the same thing. Therefore, our domestic budget has to include this amount, come what may.

Or, General Eisenhower is sent to Europe to assume responsibility, on behalf of the United States, for the success of the North Atlantic Alliance. To implement that, we are asked to create a standing army of 3,500,000 Americans and to have a 1951-52 budget of about $100,000,000,000. If we agree to Mr. Acheson's foreign program, the economy of our people must be adjusted to the government taking in taxes or bonds about one-third of the national product.

When a man possesses such power, his wisdom should be great; his sense of obligation national. Mr. Acheson is an advocate rather than a philosopher, and his affinities are British rather than American.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — America is getting to be a little like Russia in the handling of official propaganda.

Thus the Democratic National Committee has just sent out a tabloid newspaper to 50,000 party workers as the "official record" in the MacArthur episode with instructions to spread the party line throughout the country. It adds some approving editorials but not a word of the other side — neither the address of General MacArthur to Congress, his authorized denial from Tokyo, nor any of the other factual data bearing on the case.

These documents, says the Democratic national chairman in a signed article on the front page, "tell the true story" of the action of the President "in relieving General MacArthur of his command."

But do they?

Untruth Stated

Here is the text of that "document":

"On April 19, the following statement was issued at the Pentagon: In response to inquiries from the press concerning General MacArthur's reference to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, a Pentagon spokesman said the White House had authorized him to state that the action taken by the President in relieving General MacArthur was based upon the unanimous recommendations of the President's principal civilian and military advisers including the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The reasons for General MacArthur's relief have been stated previously by the President."

Now the truth is there was no meeting of the Joint Chiefs of Staff with the President to discuss the dismissal of General MacArthur or to discuss the taking of any action with reference to his command.

There is no "official record," therefore, and even no unofficial record of any "action" whatsoever taken by the Joint Chiefs of Staff in this matter either in conference with the President or anywhere else.

The Democratic National Committee which released its statement on April 27 had eight days in which to verify the truth or falsity of the above. Attention was called in this dispatch on April 23 to the untruth and the same dispatch was inserted in the Congressional Record by members of Congress.

This correspondent finds that he was slightly in error in his April 23 dispatch even in saying that there was an informal meeting between the President and the Joint Chiefs of Staff at which replacement of General MacArthur was discussed. No meeting of any kind with the President occurred.

What happened was that each member of the Joint Chiefs was asked for a personal opinion — but not by the President — and the views that came back informally were that a change in command was logical sometime. But no "recommendation" was made that the change be brought about either in the manner used by the President or in any other manner. Hence the "action" taken by the President was not "recommended" either unanimously or otherwise by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and it is untrue to say so. Some of its members did not know about the action taken by the President till they read it in the newspapers or heard it over the radio.

For the Democratic National Committee to spread the untruth that the Joint Chiefs of Staff favored the dismissal of MacArthur instead of a normal method of changing the Far Eastern command is to put the Joint Chiefs in the very position that Senator Taft of Ohio claims it is in now — namely, a political instrumentality of the White House.

Many people will agree that the differing positions of General MacArthur and the President on policy made a conference and perhaps even a separation from command inevitable. But no public purpose will be served now by letting the major political party's headquarters spread untruths about the episode or by making the issue itself a subject for propaganda for "party workers" to begin working on. To do so certainly seems inconsistent with the President's appeal at the Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner on April 14 to put the national interest above party politics. It merely encourages the Republican party to do some of the same things that the Democratic headquarters has done. This isn't the way to heal wounds and bring national unity.

Matter Of Fact

WASHINGTON—

THE THREATENED rupture of the Anglo-American alliance dramatized by Gen. MacArthur's recall and Aneurin Bevan's resignation, has much deeper roots than most people realize. For the fact is that the British planners and military chiefs are more and more inclined to challenge the basic concept on which American strategy rests, and thus in a sense, to challenge also the basis of the Anglo-American alliance.

The heart of the matter is that American strategy is now squarely on atomic bombing of great population centers—and the British Isles themselves are fatally vulnerable to just this form of attack. This is certainly one reason why the British have already proposed, at least informally, that if war comes, American atomic bombs should not be used against Soviet or satellite cities, except in retaliation for Soviet attacks on American or allied cities.

The British are urging, that, unless the Soviets first use their atomic stockpile for population bombing, the American stockpile should be used only against communication lines, special isolated targets, and tactically against enemy troops in the field. This proposal is based on the assumption that even in war the Russians probably would not use their bombs against allied cities if they knew this would cause devastating retaliation against Russian cities.

Wishful Thinking

This may be wishful thinking, but in the terribly exposed position in which the British find themselves, wishful thinking is natural. The British also advance a second, and very powerful argument for their proposal. This is based on a point made by the great American expert on Russia, George Kennan, in a recent issue of "Foreign Affairs."

"We in the outside world," wrote Kennan, ". . .will never prevail in any struggle against the Soviet power unless the Russian people are our willing allies. That goes for peace, and it goes for war."

The British argue — and Kennan would doubtless agree — that the Russian people are not going to be "our willing allies" after thirty million or so Russians have been killed by our atomic bombs. They argue that mass population bombing, except in retaliation, would be as fatal an error as Hitler's savagery in Russia, cementing the people around the regime, and thus ending all hope of quick or decisive victory.

Unfortunately, there are very cogent reasons why the British proposal will almost certainly be rejected. For one thing, there is the nature of the bomb itself. In certain special circumstances, the atomic bomb can undoubtedly be used effectively as a tactical weapon. Yet the brutal fact is that the atomic bomb is inherently suited, not for use against isolated targets and troops in the field, but for use against the massed populations of great cities.

In Hiroshima and Nagasaki, the three primary effects of the bomb—blast, heat flash, and radiation—caused only a small fraction of the casualties. The great bulk of casualties are caused by the city itself, when blast collapses buildings on top of people, and when both blast and heat flash start terrible fires. The cruel truth is that the atomic bomb is only a really revolutionary weapon when it is used in this way — to cause great cities to destroy their inhabitants.

Effects Indecisive

Used in any other way, the bomb is no longer a decisive weapon. Heavy industrial machinery is not essentially damaged by the blast of a modern bomb, even under a mile from ground zero, the point above which the bomb is exploded. A soldier in a slit trench would almost certainly live to fight another day only a mile from ground zero, and a tank would remain essentially intact well under half a mile from ground zero.

Even assuming that many hundreds of bombs were available for tactical use, or against isolated targets — and each bomb represents a very heavy investment — the effects could not be decisive. A weapon with a killing radius of not much more than a mile cannot stop a numerically superior army advancing across a fluid front of many hundreds of miles. Thus to accept the British proposal would be the equivalent of very sharply reducing the American atomic stockpile. And the American atomic stockpile is the central military asset of the West, and the only real existing deterrent to Soviet aggression.

The fact is that the follies of past disarmament have reduced this country and its allies to total reliance on a willingness to use the atomic bomb, in the most ruthless way, for the awful purpose for which it is inherently suited. Yet it should not surprise us that the British, and our other European allies, are not precisely eager to join us in a crusade which would see their countries either occupied or devastated. And if there is no war soon, and General Eisenhower succeeds in his mission of building real strength in Europe, the time may indeed come when it will be well to re-examine a strategic concept based wholly on a weapon likely by its very nature to defeat all our purposes.

Aliens For The Army

Recruiting of aliens abroad for the United States Army begins today or soon after, according to an Army announcement. The process is confined for the time being to Germany although German nationals, like nationals of countries in the North Atlantic Security treaty, are ineligible. All candidates are to be carefully screened.

The program has been set up under the Lodge-Philbin Act of June 30, 1950. This act had limited to 2,500 the aliens to be recruited, although the number had been set at 10,000 in the bill as passed by the Senate in 1949. The new Selective Service-Military Training Act will raise the ceiling to 12,500 over the next four years, according to an agreement reached by the Senate and the House conferees on April 26.

Aliens recruited under the program enlist in the Army for five years. They must be between 18 and 35 years of age, be unmarried, have a working knowledge of English, be of "officer calibre." Sen. Lodge (R., Mass.) predicts that they will prove the "cream of the crop."

These alien recruits are to be sent to the United States for training. At the end of their five-year enlistment period they become eligible for U. S. citizenship. One reason for the delay in recruiting them was the difficulty of determining whether they might be barred from this country under provisions of the McCarran Subversive Control Act. Most of the recruits accepted are expected to be men of Slavic stock who are "stateless."

Another bill proposed by Lodge would establish a volunteer Freedom Corps of 250,000 aliens recruited abroad. These would not necessarily be of officer calibre, nor would they be integrated into units of the U.S. Army. A revised form of the proposal, with a smaller number of recruits authorized, is expected from the Massachusetts Senator in a few days.

A somewhat similar bill in the House, introduced by Rep. Flood (D., Pa.), provides for the enlistment of aliens "devoted to freedom and democratic principles and the cause of world peace." Those enlisted would be organized into national units, with nationals of North Atlantic Treaty signatories barred.

Sen. Lodge proposed in 1946 that 50,000 (later 25,000) men be recruited abroad to serve in the U.S. occupation forces. At that time the proposal elicited criticism that any such force would constitute an American "Foreign Legion" of mercenaries. Pointing out that recruits even in the Voluntary Freedom Corps could eventually become eligible for citizenship under the Lodge-Philbin Act, Sen. Lodge now replies:

> "The argument that it is pernicious and debilitating to hire mercenary adventurers as replacements for your own men, who would thus escape military service, is sound; and we should actively oppose such a proposal. But we should as actively seek, instead, the help of selected alien soldiers on the same voluntary basis which actuated the countless aliens who fought for our country during the War of the Revolution, the Mexican War, the Civil War, and thereafter."

The European pool of men of military age runs as high as 2,000,000, according to Lodge. He advocates also the enlistment of Chinese guerrillas and Chinese Nationalists.

U. S.-British Amity

Uncle Sam and John Bull are going through one of their recurrent periods of mutual mistrust. In resigning from the British Government last week, three former members of it charged us with leading Britain into a rearmament program that would lower British standards of living still further—unless we did something about sharing raw materials. And much of British public opinion seemed to agree with the allegation.

On this side of the water, the British are charged in some quarters with failing to hold up their end of the stick in the Korean War, even if they do have 120,000 men engaged in the hostilities in Malaya. And many supporters of General MacArthur have alleged that he really was dismissed because Great Britain would not go along with his policies in the Far East.

Oh, well, American-British relations always have their ups and downs. On the down side, to dip only into recent history, there have been the disagreement on recognition of Communist China—our hostility to their Palestine policy—their dismay at our brusque termination of Lend-Lease after the war—our protests when they ended war debt payments in 1934—their anger when we scuttled the World Economic Conference of 1933—rivalry in cruiser strength in 1927—their resentment when we rejected the League of Nations in 1918—our resentment when they lined up with France against President Wilson at the Paris Peace Conference.

Against these antagonisms must be placed the joint American-British opposition to Russian aggression—the cooperation on devaluation of the pound in September, 1949—the North Atlantic Security treaty and the Marshall Plan—the British loan agreement of 1945-46—the unity in drafting the UN Charter—the joint prosecution of World Wars II and I—the U.S. help to Britain between the outbreak of war in 1939 and the attack on Pearl Harbor—the naval limitation agreements of 1930 and 1922—the 1922 termination, at our insistence, of the British-Japanese treaty of alliance.

Young Arthur

Young Arthur MacArthur is enjoying an experience which comes to few Americans. He is having his first glimpse of his homeland at an age when he is able to appreciate its wonders and its glories and the amenities which make life in the United States pleasant and enviable.

Most of those who see it for the first time come as strangers in search of refuge. Young MacArthur came as the son of a fabulous hero, came as the member of a family which was to receive one of the most tumultous welcomes in American history.

There can be no kid in America who would not have traded places with him, at least for a week. Of course, having Douglas MacArthur must be a bit wearing on a small boy, for small boys are constitutionally fidgety under ceremonial and pageantry.

But it must be thrilling to a 13-year-old to see his father acclaimed by his countrymen as no man was acclaimed before him. And when so tumultous a homecoming included one's first glimpse of a big league baseball game, the circus, Manhattan Island and Washington, climaxing a swift flight half-way around the world, it would be easy to take.

But the boy who had changed places with Arthur could, after his magic week, return to his accustomed life, full of memories but happy to be back with the fellows on the block, back with his own pup and his own kid sister, his own mother and father. Arthur cannot escape after a week. He will have to go through more of the same for a long time.

The Health Of The Preschooler

CHILDREN are the greatest assets of the family and the nation and it is our responsibility to bring them to adulthood mentally and physically strong. This is something that cannot be left to the last minute; the welfare program must begin in the cradle and be carried through adolesence.

Most parents of infants adhere meticulously to monthly visits to the physician. But after the first year, medical care may be neglected unless the youngster is ill. Then, just before school enrollment there is a flurry of excitement getting the child into shape for his new life. Father and mother may forget that periodic checkups are just as essential to the toddler as to the preschooler. Any hearing, visual, or dental defect that may be present should be corrected as soon as possible. If a three-year-old's tonsils are infected and causing trouble, there is no need to put off tonsillectomy until just before he enters first grade. Such abnormalities should be taken care of as they arise! in this way, the school child is less likely to have his educational progress disturbed.

Good vision is necessary for reading but this does not mean that eye disorders are unimportant during the preschool years. Nearsightedness or farsightedness may exist, for example, and tests for these conditions may be made as early as the age of 1½ but they are difficult and not always reliable. However, suggestive symptom such as headache or eye pain should not be overlooked. Sties, cysts, and eyelid infections may occur which sometimes are traceable to infected tonsils or other foci. Irritated lids may have an allergic basis and dietary changes often bring relief.

It is true that visual tests now are routine in most schools. At least 80 per cent of learning comes through the sense of sight, which means that visual education plays a major role in most schools. Many poor readers have eye defects such as refractive errors or muscle imbalance. Nevertheless, not all children with impaired vision are poor readers and vice versa. Other factors to be considered are anemia, malnutrition, hearing loss, systemic diseases, and endocrine deficiencies. The nervous system also plays a role in mental retardation, neuroses, and emotional problems—all of which interfere with the ability to learn.

Some children have difficulty making their eyes work together as team. Owing to imbalance of the ocular muscles or eyestrain the optics are unable to fuse on a single image. This problem is not easy to solve and even specialists in reading cannot help every youngster with this defect. Cross-eye should be corrected by placing a patch over the good eye, orthoptics, or surgery.

By taking care of these details at an early age it will be possible to decrease the percentage of cases that require eye care on entering school. It is logical to assume that other benefits would accrue if visual defects are remedied a month or a year before the age of six.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Gen. Ridgway Promised Truman To Hold Against Communists; Ridgway Deserves Credit For Improved UN Forces; Congress Dawdles On Food For India

WASHINGTON — Before President Truman made his tough decision to fire General MacArthur, he asked General Matt Ridgway for a confidential opinion as to whether UN forces could hold against the expected big Communist offensive.

Truman took this precaution, first because it had been known for some time that the offensive was coming, second because he also knew what a catastrophic torrent of criticism would be heaped on his head if after relieving MacArthur, UN forces suffered a staggering defeat.

Gen. Ridgway cabled back that his forces could hold. He went further and stated that he could hold against any enemy attack for 60 days — even without reinforcements. The Pentagon, reporting this to the White House, said they had complete confidence in Ridgway, so Truman shot the works with MacArthur.

There are several important reasons for this confidence, all going to the tremendously improved fighting quality and command of American troops.

Last December a Chinese army only half as big as that facing us today, was thrown against the UN. It was not one million men as MacArthur announced. Yet that relatively small Chinese force threw the Eighth Army for a headlong retreat of more than 120 miles. Furthermore the Chinese army of last December was poorly equipped with small arms and almost no heavy artillery.

Today, twice as many Chinese are attacking, equipped with twice the firepower of last December. Meanwhile UN forces are only slightly bigger than as of last December.

Chief change between now and then, however, is in American fighting spirit and strategy, for which Lt. Gen. Matt Ridgway deserves most of the credit. Here is what he has done:

American Guerrillas

1. Previously, the mechanized American forces were roadbound and easily outflanked by the Chinese, who swarmed through the backwoods and rice paddies, usually keeping off the main highways. Ridgway has now moved his infantry off the roads, and trained them to fight on the Communists' own ground. Instead of relying on trucks and jeeps, Ridgway has hired South Korean bearers to haul supplies to GIs who are dug in off the highways. Ridgway also has used guerrilla-trained American Rangers to harass the enemy behind their lines.

2. Ridgway has moved cautiously, and patrolled every step of the way, instead of racing ahead pell-mell, as Lt. Gen. Edward Almond and the late Gen. Walton Walker did last November to see whose troops could reach the Yalu River first. Ridgway also keeps tight liaison between his front-line commands, in contrast with the Eighth Army and Tenth Corps last November which were forced to keep in touch with each other through Tokyo, a thousand miles away.

3. Ridgway has reorganized his command down to the company level. This got rid of incompetent officers and gave the men new confidence in their commanders.

4. Ridgway has also bolstered the South Korean troops, who fight ferociously against North Koreans but flee in panic from the Chinese. Ridgway gave the South Koreans a taste of victory over the Chinese by integrating South Korean and American units and throwing them into battle side by side. Ridgway also assigned South Korean soldiers to count the Chinese dead. This has helped, but not overcome the South Koreans' psychological fear of the Chinese.

Congressional Procrastination

Hours—even minutes—are vital to a starving person. Yet Congress dawdled months before agreeing to consider legislation to feed the hungry mouths of India. Behind this inaction is another story of how the American people rise to the occasion when their senators and representatives fail to act.

It was a growing floodtide of gifts to the Indian Embassy, from people in all parts of the United States that caused isolationists in Congress finally to consent to a vote on the Food-for-India Bill.

However, the isolationist bloc, led by GOP Rep. Clarence Brown of Ohio, put up a vigorous battle before the legislation was finally jarred loose from its dusty pigeonhole in the House Rules Committee.

Another Republican, also from Ohio, Rep. John Vorys, took just the contrary view. He personally appeared before the Rules Committee group to urge that the Indian aid measure be reported to the House floor, where members could vote for or against. Herbert Hoover also went on record with a strong endorsement of the bill.

But Congressman Brown argued: "This is another idea of Dean Acheson and the State Department crowd to scatter our assets to the four winds."

"If what you say is true, then Acheson is taking his cue from a great humanitarian in your own party," shot back Democratic Rep. Ray Madden of Indiana. Madden then read Herbert Hoover's plea to aid India as a "human necessity."

"Well, I'm going along with him on this" retorted Madden.

Acting Chairman Gene Cox, Georgia Democrat, who had been quietly abetting Brown's blockade of the India aid bill, also changed his tune; but for a different reason. Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas sent word to the Rules Committee that he wanted no more stalling on Food-for-India.

NOTE—Both the Senate and House are now set for a final vote on the wheat-for-India bill. The House bill provides for a loan of $190,000,000, while the Senate bill provides for $200,000,000 of food, of which half is a loan, half an outright gift. Herbert Hoover proposed that all the food be in the form of a gift.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Marx On Russia

I READ this in the British magazine "The Twentieth Century": "On April 19, 1853, the London correspondent of the New York Tribune (now the Herald Tribune) had this to say about Russian expansion in Europe:

" '. . . Thanks to the ignorance, lethargy, inconsequence and cowardice of the occidental governments, Russia has in all essentials attained its aims, one after the other. . . . Since Peter the Great, the Russian frontier has advanced by seven hundred miles in the direction of Berlin, Dresden and Vienna; it has moved some five hundred miles closer to Constantinople, some six hundred and thirty miles closer to Stockholm, about a thousand miles closer to Teheran . . .' "

The writer of this quotation was none other than Karl Marx. He could not have known, in 1853, that his ideas would be seeded down in Russia in 1917 and that his principal disciples would regard that country as their motherland.

Earlier, Karl Marx had warned:

> " . . . (Under certain circumstances) it would turn out that Russia's natural frontier runs from Danzig or Stettin to Trieste. And as sure as one annexation follows another, the conquest of Turkey by Russia would only be the prelude to the annexation of Hungary, Prussia, Galicia, and to the realization of that Slav empire of which certain fanatical pan-Slav philosophers are dreaming. . . . Once in possession of Turkey, Russia's power is increased by half and overtops that of all the rest of Europe combined. That would be an indescribable disaster. . . . The maintenance of Turkish independence, and the prevention of Russia's plans of annexation should the Ottoman empire dissolve after all, are matters of the highest importance. In this the interests of revolutionary democracy and those of England coincide . . ."

It is interesting to compare these statements with that of Dean Acheson dated February 23, 1951, to Mr. Clarence E. Moullette, in which he says:

"However, as it became clear that the rulers of the Soviet Union not only were not interested in cooperating with us, but were challenging the survival of our free institutions, and the independence of all nations, we have been obliged to build up our strength again, all of us."

Recently, in a conversation concerning Dean Acheson, I made the point that he lacks historical imagination, which is the essence of statesmanship. Such minds as Talleyrand and Disraeli could see ahead and yet they were restrained by profound knowledge of history.

> Stalin, at Yalta, laid out a future for Europe and Asia beneficial to his country and his ideals of life, with the broadest strokes. Roosevelt, Hopkins and Hiss could only deal with the matters in hand. As important as such matters have seemed to be, they had to be fitted into the framework of our own tradition and history. This they did not do and, therefore, brought upon us our present miseries.

Had the United States possessed one statesman in power in 1945, he would have appraised this situation clearly. There were many fine minds, out of power, who did, in 1945, appraise this situation correctly.

Dean Acheson is now virtually the president of the United States because foreign affairs prevail over every domestic question that faces the country. He develops the position in international relations and then every other question has to be made to conform to it.

For instance, we have practically fixed it as a policy to give Europe $5,000,000,000 a year. Since the end of World War II, we have been giving Europe that amount of money or credit. Although the British have given up Marshall Plan aid, they are to get military aid, which comes to the same thing. Therefore, our domestic budget has to include this amount, come what may.

> Or, General Eisenhower is sent to Europe to assume responsibility, on behalf of the United States, for the success of the North Atlantic Alliance. To implement that, we are asked to create a standing army of 3,500,000 Americans and to have a 1951-52 budget of about $100,000,000,000. If we agree to Mr. Acheson's foreign program, the economy of our people must be adjusted to the government taking in taxes or bonds about one-third of the national product.

When a man possesses such power, his wisdom should be great; his sense of obligation national. Mr. Acheson is an advocate rather than a philosopher, and his affinities are British rather than American.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — America is getting to be a little like Russia in the handling of official propaganda.

Thus the Democratic National Committee has just sent out a tabloid newspaper to 50,000 party workers as the "official record" in the MacArthur episode with instructions to spread the party line throughout the country. It adds some approving editorials but not a word of the other side — neither the address of General MacArthur to Congress, his authorized denial from Tokyo, nor any of the other factual data bearing on the case.

These documents, says the Democratic national chairman in a signed article on the front page, "tell the true story" of the action of the President "in relieving General MacArthur of his command."

But do they?

Untruth Stated

Here is the text of that "document":

"On April 19, the following statement was issued at the Pentagon: In response to inquiries from the press concerning General MacArthur's reference to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, a Pentagon spokesman said the White House had authorized him to state that the action taken by the President in relieving General MacArthur was based upon the unanimous recommendations of the President's principal civilian and military advisers including the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The reasons for General MacArthur's relief have been stated previously by the President."

Now the truth is there was no meeting of the Joint Chiefs of Staff with the President to discuss the dismissal of General MacArthur or to discuss the taking of any action with reference to his command.

There is no "official record," therefore, and even no unofficial record of any "action" whatsoever taken by the Joint Chiefs of Staff in this matter either in conference with the President or anywhere else.

The Democratic National Committee which released its statement on April 27 had eight days in which to verify the truth or falsity of the above. Attention was called in this dispatch on April 23 to the untruth and the same dispatch was inserted in the Congressional Record by members of Congress.

This correspondent finds that he was slightly in error in his April 23 dispatch even in saying that there was an informal meeting between the President and the Joint Chiefs of Staff at which replacement of General MacArthur was discussed. No meeting of any kind with the President occurred.

What happened was that each member of the Joint Chiefs was asked for a personal opinion — but not by the President — and the views that came back informally were that a change in command was logical sometime. But no "recommendation" was made that the change be brought about either in the manner used by the President or in any other manner. Hence the "action" taken by the President was not "recommended" either unanimously or otherwise by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and it is untrue to say so. Some of its members did not know about the action taken by the President till they read it in the newspapers or heard it over the radio.

For the Democratic National Committee to spread the untruth that the Joint Chiefs of Staff favored the dismissal of MacArthur instead of a normal method of changing the Far Eastern command is to put the Joint Chiefs in the very position that Senator Taft of Ohio claims it is in now — namely, a political instrumentality of the White House.

Many people will agree that the differing positions of General MacArthur and the President on policy made a conference and perhaps even a separation from command inevitable. But no public purpose will be served now by letting the major political party's headquarters spread untruths about the episode or by making the issue itself a subject for propaganda for "party workers" to begin working on. To do so certainly seems inconsistent with the President's appeal at the Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner on April 14 to put the national interest above party politics. It merely encourages the Republican party to do some of the same things that the Democratic headquarters has done. This isn't the way to heal wounds and bring national unity.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH ALSOP

The British And The Bomb

WASHINGTON—

THE THREATENED rupture of the Anglo-American alliance dramatized by Gen. MacArthur's recall and Aneurin Bevan's resignation, has much deeper roots than most people realize. For the fact is that the British planners and military chiefs are more and more inclined to challenge the basic concept on which American strategy rests, and thus in a sense, to challenge also the basis of the Anglo-American alliance.

The heart of the matter is that American strategy is now squarely on atomic bombing of great population centers—and the British Isles themselves are fatally vulnerable to just this form of attack. This is certainly one reason why the British have already proposed, at least informally, that if war comes, American atomic bombs should not be used against Soviet or satellite cities, except in retaliation for Soviet attacks on American or allied cities.

The British are urging, that, unless the Soviets first use their atomic stockpile for population bombing, the American stockpile should be used only against communication lines, special isolated targets, and tactically against enemy troops in the field. This proposal is based on the assumption that even in war the Russians probably would not use their bombs against allied cities if they knew this would cause devastating retaliation against Russian cities.

Wishful Thinking

This may be wishful thinking, but in the terribly exposed position in which the British find themselves, wishful thinking is natural. The British also advance a second, and very powerful argument for their proposal. This is based on a point made by the great American expert on Russia, George Kennan, in a recent issue of "Foreign Affairs."

"We in the outside world," wrote Kennan, ". . .will never prevail in any struggle against the Soviet power unless the Russian people are our willing allies. That goes for peace, and it goes for war."

The British argue — and Kennan would doubtless agree — that the Russian people are not going to be "our willing allies" after thirty million or so Russians have been killed by our atomic bombs. They argue that mass population bombing, except in retaliation, would be as fatal an error as Hitler's savagery in Russia, cementing the people around the regime, and thus ending all hope of quick or decisive victory.

Unfortunately, there are very cogent reasons why the British proposal will almost certainly be rejected. For one thing, there is the nature of the bomb itself. In certain special circumstances, the atomic bomb can undoubtedly be used effectively as a tactical weapon. Yet the brutal fact is that the atomic bomb is inherently suited, not for use against isolated targets and troops in the field, but for use against the massed populations of great cities.

In Hiroshima and Nagasaki, the three primary effects of the bomb—blast, heat flash, and radiation—caused only a small fraction of the casualties. The great bulk of casualties are caused by the city itself, when blast collapses buildings on top of people, and when both blast and heat flash start terrible fires. The cruel-truth is that the atomic bomb is only a really revolutionary weapon when it is used in this way — to cause great cities to destroy their inhabitants.

Effects Indecisive

Used in any other way, the bomb is no longer a decisive weapon. Heavy industrial machinery is not essentially damaged by the blast of a modern bomb, even under a mile from ground zero, the point above which the bomb is exploded. A soldier in a slit trench would almost certainly live to fight another day only a mile from ground zero, and a tank would remain essentially intact well under half a mile from ground zero.

Even assuming that many hundreds of bombs were available for tactical use, or against isolated targets — and each bomb represents a very heavy investment — the effects could not be decisive. A weapon with a killing radius of not much more than a mile cannot stop a numerically superior army advancing across a fluid front of many hundreds of miles. Thus to accept the British proposal would be the equivalent of very sharply reducing the American atomic stockpile. And the American atomic stockpile is the central military asset of the West, and the only real existing deterrent to Soviet aggression.

The fact is that the follies of past disarmament have reduced this country and its allies to total reliance on a willingness to use the atomic bomb, in the most ruthless way, for the awful purpose for which it is inherently suited. Yet it should not surprise us that the British, and our other European allies, are not precisely eager to join us in a crusade which would see their countries either occupied or devastated. And if there is no war soon, and General Eisenhower succeeds in his mission of building real strength in Europe, the time may indeed come when it will be well to re-examine a strategic concept based wholly on a weapon likely by its very nature to defeat all our purposes.

McKeldin Signs State Property Assessment Bill

Approves School Board Changes

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 30—(AP)—Governor McKeldin spurned the State Tax Commission today and approved a new system of assessing Maryland property once every three years.

The measure, a compromise to one of the General Assembly's most protracted battles, was among 70 the governor signed into law.

It had been attacked heatedly by Chairman Joseph H. A. Rogan of the tax commission, and Albert W. Ward, its executive secretary.

Effective in 1954, the law provides for reassessment of property annually in one of three districts in Baltimore City and each county. It will replace the present five-year rotational plan, by which the city and counties are split into five districts for property valuations.

Called An Improvement

McKeldin called the new system an improvement.

"If you can't get a full loaf, it's best to take what you can get," he commented.

He referred to recommendations of Maryland's Tax Survey Commission, which had urged new assessments every year. That proposal was ditched as a result of protests by nearly every board of county commissioners in the state.

McKeldin also signed one of the few survey commission bills to get through the legislature. That bore minor scratches, but will make enough changes in the income tax regulations to save taxpayers an estimated $250,000 a year.

It takes effect on money earned this year and due to be reported next April 15.

Then taxpayers will be charged two per cent, instead of five, on the first $500 of investment income. Anyone will be able to apply the standard 10 per cent deduction, up to $500, for charitable contributions, heavy medical expenses and other outlays.

The new law also makes a number exempts the first $1,500 of the pay divorced couples and investors. It of changes affecting pensioners, of servicemen in war zones.

Authorize Bond Issue

McKeldin signed another of the session's construction bills, this one authorizing a $500,000 bond issue for buildings at St. Mary's Seminary Junior College. It raised to $22,050,000 the new debt Maryland can run up for capital improvements and civil defense.

He signed a legislative council measure regulating land installment contracts to protect buyers in long-term agreements. It gives the purchaser and equity in property he buys on time.

Baltimore and the counties may finish the present five-year assessment cycle. But in 1954, unless intervening legislatures decide otherwise, they will have to adopt the new system with some provisions.

Other bills signed by the Governor included:

HB-149—by Cook—increasing the pay of the Mayor of Lonaconing from $100 to $200 annually, and raising the compensation of councilman from $2 for each council meeting attended to $5.

HB-773—by Garrett delegation—relating to the expenses of the county commissioners road board.

SB-209—by Kimble—Reconstituting the Liquor Board of Allegany County as the Board of License Commissioners.

SB-249—by Kimble — specifying that the Allegany County School Board shall be composed of five persons appointed by the Governor and that at least two shall be women and at least two shall be members of the political party that polled second highest number of votes in the most recent gubernatorial election.

SB-487—by Kimble — providing that assistant state auditors in the service last November 1 be blanketed under the merit system.

the City Charter, by condemnation.

The railroad agrees that portions of Thomas Street to be relocated will be paved by the railroad at its own expense in accordance with city specifications.

The railroad will also construct a concrete sidewalk on the east side of the relocated portions of the street, and a concrete curb at the west line of the street.

All sewer and water lines in the affected area will be replaced by the railroad.

Little Discussion

Discussion on the proposed agreement was slight, in view of the delay to permit full council action.

Mayor Post queried railroad officials on the effect of the relocation upon employment in the Cumberland terminal. Holden assured the city only "a real improvement" would justify the cost of the project.

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long expressed approval of the project but asked consideration for residents involved in the project. He pointed out that the plan may require the city to condemn some of the affected property if an agreement is not reached, and asked fair treatment for the people involved.

Spring Styles Are Shown At Rosenbaums

Miss Nancy O'Toole was guest commentator at the two showings of "McKettrick Be Happy Go Lucky" fashions yesterday at Rosenbaums. The one in the afternoon and the other in the evening.

Miss O'Toole graduated from the Retail Training School for Marshall Field, Chicago; did high-fashion modeling and sales promotion in the New York market; joined the fashion staff at McKettrick Williams in the Spring of 1948 and was appointed McKettrick's fashion coordinator in January 1949. Miss O'Toole believes "Fashion is a matter of taste rather than price."

The showings included a wide variety of typical Summer styling and fabrics, such as ginghams, chambrays, tissues, cotton sheers and imported voiles in assorted prints and solids.

Commentating on the sun dresses, Miss O'Toole, pointed out how they are so versatile for every and any occasion, depending on the way they are accessorized, for beach wear, work, afternoon occasion, evening wear, dress them up or down. They all have little bolero jackets.

The collection included styles perfectly adaptable for business or play, town or country because they are designed for the American trend toward casual, comfortable living. They featured tobacco tones, the cigarette silhouette and "Be Happy Go Lucky" colors and styles.

Spring Styles Are Shown At Rosenbaums

Miss Nancy O'Toole was guest commentator at the two showings of "McKettrick Be Happy Go Lucky" fashions yesterday at Rosenbaums. The one in the afternoon and the other in the evening.

Miss O'Toole graduated from the Retail Training School for Marshall Field, Chicago; did high-fashion modeling and sales promotion in the New York market; joined the fashion staff at McKettrick Williams in the Spring of 1948 and was appointed McKettrick's fashion coordinator in January 1949. Miss O'Toole believes "Fashion is a matter of taste rather than price."

The showings included a wide variety of typical Summer styling and fabrics, such as ginghams, chambrays, tissues, cotton sheers and imported voiles in assorted prints and solids.

Commentating on the sun dresses, Miss O'Toole, pointed out how they are so versatile for every and any occasion, depending on the way they are accessorized, for beach wear, work, afternoon occasion, evening wear, dress them up or down. They all have little bolero jackets.

The collection included styles perfectly adaptable for business or play, town or country because they are designed for the American trend toward casual, comfortable living. They featured tobacco tones, the cigarette silhouette and "Be Happy Go Lucky" colors and styles.

Electronic Machine Soon May Detect Cancer Cells

By FRANK CAREY

CLEVELAND — (AP) — A kind of electronic "adding machine" which may permit automatic detection of cancer cells is being developed.

It may even ring a bell or buzz a buzzer when such a cell is detected.

The American Association for Cancer Research heard a description of the device today.

If it is perfected as envisioned, Dr. Robert C. Mellors said it will offer opportunities for the "mass screening" of the entire population of the country. Such screening would separate many non-cancerous people from those suspected of having major forms of the disease.

Essentially, the device would work this way:

Tissue cells under examination would activate electronic devices in the machine in such a way that numbers would automatically appear on a dial — just like figures on an adding machine. Numbers at various levels would be characteristic of different types of cells, so the operator of the machine could quickly estimate whether a particular cell was normal or possibly cancerous. And, it would be easy to incorporate certain sound-making instruments to alert the operator.

The instrument is designed to save time for the cancer diagnostician rather than to be a diagnostic tool in itself, Dr. Mellors declared. Any final diagnosis of cancer would be the province of a cancer specialist, he explained.

But the Sloan-Kettering Institute of New York researcher asserted that there are relatively few experts trained to examine the type of material the machine would study — and thus, the machine, by "weeding out the negatives" would conceivably give the experts more opportunity to concentrate on "suspicious cases."

If it works out as planned, he said, a single machine could examine tissue specimens of 24,000 people a year—a project far beyond the power of any single man working at a microscope.

A dream wedding starts with a well-planned family conference at the moment the date is certain.

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

A DREAM wedding has never been known to emerge from anything except the most detailed planning, far in advance. If you are a girl with stars in your eyes and a solitaire on your finger, the moment your wedding date is decided, come down to earth long enough to gather your family in confidence.

At this meeting, determine the type of wedding that will best express your heart's desire, your fiance's preference, your mother's dreams and your father's checkbook. You will have earned your diplomatic spurs by the time you have resolved all considerations — and that you must.

Conference Decisions

Then, and right then, make a specific plan of organization, noting all the duties to be performed by you and the members of your family with the starting and completion dates set down beside each assignment. The only thing you need not write down is your personal plan for diffusing all duties with your most gracious manner and joyful mien.

A minimum list of duties for a large, formal wedding must include reservations for the place of ceremony (if away from home) for the wedding and rehearsal hours. Add to this a reminder to inquire into what arrangements must be made for a canopy, a carpet, lighting, and decorations, and to note the seating capacity and any particular rules or customs to be observed.

Invitations should be discussed and lists obtained from both families in time for engraving, addressing and mailing at least three weeks before the wedding.

Attendants must be selected and informed immediately that they are to be your chosen companions on the bridal path.

Gaining Time To Dream

Make an early date with your favorite bridal consultant to select your finery and trousseau, the costumes of your maids and to settle on what the ushers are to wear. The same consultant will be helpful in selecting gifts for your attendants.

The caterer and florist must be chosen and checked early and often. Music for the ceremony and reception requires early scheduling. A photographer must be engaged and cars lined up for the wedding party. And above all make a time schedule for yourself for gift listing, thank-you notes and the inevitable emergency.

With these basics attended to, you'll find plenty of moments to dream on your pink cloud—between appointments!

Liquor Licenses For Two Frostburg Clubs Held Up

The Allegany County Liquor Control Board yesterday decided to withhold issuance of liquor licenses of Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion, and John R. Fairgrieve Post No. 2462, Veterans of Foreign Wars, both of Frostburg, until May 31.

The board, in its order yesterday stated that in view of the fact that officers of the two veterans organizations entered guilty pleas in Circuit Court two weeks ago to charges of violating gambling laws by maintaining slot machines in their buildings, the applications for the renewal of the licenses will be withheld until May 31.

In effect the withholding of the liquor licenses amounts to a 30-day suspension as the two clubs will not be able to sell beer, wine or liquor for the period between tomorrow, May 1, the starting date of the new licenses, and May 31.

The veterans organizations were fined $500 each by Associate Judge George Henderson on April 16 after they had entered guilty pleas.

The Liquor Board also held up issuance of a beer license to John T. Shrewbridge, who operates an establishment at Fairgo, until May 22.

Shrewbridge had been accused of selling beer to minors at his place. The complaining witness was Mrs. Agatha Bishop, who lives near the tavern and grocery operated by Shrewbridge. She said several of her children had purchased beer at the tavern for older people.

The beer, wine and liquor license of the Orioles Club at Wills Mountain Inn was granted yesterday by the board. Issuance of the permit had been help up pending an investigation of the club as to whether or not it was a bona fide organization.

Resident Given Permit To Open Restaurant

The building engineer yesterday approved application of Herbert Wilson, 322 Paca Street, to open a restaurant at 60 North Mechanic Street.

The new business will be located at the site formerly occupied by Karp Brothers, restaurant and bar equipment firm. Harry Little is owner of the building.

A report on building for April shows 20 permits were granted for new construction and six for additions and remodeling, a total of 26. Estimated expenditure for new construction was $68,600 and for additions and improvements, $8,775, or a total of $77,375.

This figure is under those reported for March and April a year ago. During March there were 20 permits granted with an expenditure of $104, 150. In April, 1950, there were 34 permits and a total estimated expenditure of $108,250.

Last month seven applications were made for occupancy permits. Five were granted, one denied, and another is awaiting action of the building engineer.

Liquor Board Case Against McNeill Refuted At Hearing

The case against Leo McNeill, operator of a tavern at Klondike, blew up yesterday at a meeting of the Allegany County Liquor Control Board when seven witnesses all testified in favor of the accused.

The witnesses, summoned by the sheriff's office on orders of the Liquor Board, all stated in testimony that McNeill ran a law abiding establishment and that the charges made in an anonymous letter, sent to the attorney general of Maryland, were untrue.

McNeill was granted his beer license by the board after it heard the testimony.

As the seven residents of the little community located off the Georges Creek Boulevard near Midland left the board office they were visibly angry and bitter about the matter. They stated they did not authorize the use of their names on the letter and had no idea who sent the missive. Six of the witnesses were women.

Charges in the letter were to the effect that McNeill sold to minors, sold beer on Sundays and also sold whisky without a license. It was also charged that he conducted chicken fights at his establishment.

All of these charges were refuted by the seven witneses yesterday.

Local Truck Concern Sold To Baltimore Co.

One of this city's largest trucking concerns, the Cumberland Motor Express, has been sold to a Baltimore firm of investment brokers, according to Frederick A. Puderbaugh, attorney for the trucking company.

Puderbaugh said negotiations for the sale of the local company were completed yesterday with Phillip S. Sterling, of the firm of Steriling, Morris and Bousman, Baltimore. He said he could not release the purchase price paid by the Baltimoreans.

The local company has been in operation since 1935 and included in purchase are 50 pieces of equipment, mostly tractor-trailers, a terminal at Hagerstown and a parking lot and garage in this city.

HADACOL

HADACOL Relieves The Cause of Stomach Distress, Aches and Pains, Weak, Run-Down Conditions, Poor Appetite and Nervousness When Due to a Deficiency of Vitamins B_1, B_2, Niacin and Iron

R. A. Dunnright, 313 Main St., Nashville, Tenn., says this about today's great HADACOL: "I feel I should write you and tell you what HADACOL has done for me. I was run-down and not able to work and had no ambition. All I wanted to do was sleep. I took HADACOL and went to work and am feeling fine and have a good appetite, and sleep good. I can recommend HADACOL to anyone in a run-down condition. I am 68 years old and have taken six bottles."

Mrs. Ardena Longaker, Rt. 5, Meadowbrook Rd., North Kansas City, Mo.: "I am a minister's wife and am 39 years old. Two years ago I had an operation and just had a hard time getting back my energy. I was run-down, lost weight, was listless, and had no appetite at all. I'm on my fifth bottle now and am amazed at the results. I want to eat all the time now. Most of all, I'm glad to say, I've gained several pounds. HADACOL is so economical I believe almost anyone can afford it, and I do recommend it to my friends."

Frank W. Woche, 531 Apache, Houston, Texas: "I was so run-down and my son-in-law suggested I take HADACOL. I had lost lots of weight and was tired all the time. After the first small bottle I started feeling better right away. I have now taken four more large bottles and wouldn't be without HADACOL. HADACOL has done so much for me. It's wonderful and all of my friends saw how bad I was looking and now tell me how much better I look. I can't say enough for HADACOL."

Mrs. LaRue Unsbee, Saunemin, Illinois: "My son Gary is four years old, and will be five in July. His grandfather, Mr. J. W. Simmons who lives with us, was taking HADACOL and it helped him. We had been having so much trouble getting Gary to eat. It seemed as if it would take the entire family to coax him to eat. After we started giving him HADACOL his appetite picked up right away. He will eat three hearty meals a day, gets up in the morning all set for a big breakfast. HADACOL has certainly helped Gary's appetite."

Mrs. J. E. Roberts, 1516 Lincoln, Little Rock, Ark.: "I am a mother with five children and with all my housework I was so run-down and just couldn't seem to eat at all. I heard about HADACOL and decided to try it, to see if it would help me. I could tell from the first bottle that it was helping me. I started eating right away—my appetite picked up a lot. After that I took three more bottles of HADACOL, and really believe that HADACOL is a good product, and it has certainly helped me."

Mrs. Letha Fitzpatrick, 401 E. Elm St., Scottsville, Ky.: "I couldn't sleep. I didn't have any appetite and wasn't able to do anything. Then I heard and read about HADACOL and what it had done for others. I decided to give it a trial. I have taken several bottles and I can truthfully say it has really helped me. I feel so much better. I have a lot more strength. I can eat now and I'm gaining weight. I do my work, work in my flowers, also in the garden. Now I'm putting up my fruit and vegetables. I can't thank HADACOL enough for what it's done for me."

Mrs. Thomas Fanning, Francisco, Ala., says about her daughter, Norine: "I just want to say a few words about HADACOL. I can't praise it enough for what it has done for my little seven-year-old girl. She was weak and pale, and did not eat very much. So, I decided to try HADACOL. Now, she eats more and has a better color and has gained weight. My friends and neighbors all are talking about her looking so much better. I can't say enough for it. I recommend it to my friends and neighbors or anybody. I will know from now on what to get when any of my family needs help."

Mrs. Anne Franks, 434 West Seven St., Newport, Ky.: "As a constant user of HADACOL—and am on my fourth bottle—would not hesitate to acclaim it the best. I was so run-down I could hardly do my work. And that is important as I do a man's job in a shoe factory. I felt that I did not have enough energy to lift my hands. I felt so let-down everything annoyed me. But since I've taken my first bottle, I've been helped so much that now I'm up and ready and anxious to get my work done and am not tired, but am able to do my housework. I cannot praise HADACOL and its makers enough."

Mrs. Margaret Gordon, 113 Forrest St., Clover, S. Car.: "I didn't have the energy to do anything, and I couldn't sleep at night. I had gas pains all the time. So many friends told me how it had helped them, so I decided to try HADACOL. I have taken three bottles, and am on my fourth bottle. I can't express my gladness for all that it has done for me. Now, I can sleep well at night, and I work. I praise HADACOL very much. I will not do without HADACOL anymore. It has done wonders for me. I can eat anything I wish now, and it doesn't hurt me any more. I am 26 years of age."

Miss Ometha White, 1709 Bush Ave., Alexandria, La.: "I am 25 years old and have lived in Alexandria all my life. I am employed by a canning company. A year ago I was nervous and run-down. I lost my appetite and couldn't sleep. A friend told me about HADACOL and I decided to try it. I have been taking one bottle a week for a year and I can report wonderful results. I am gaining weight, my nerves are OK . . . I have a good appetite and I can sleep nights again. One bottle a week did it and I recommend HADACOL to all who have my ailments."

Mrs. Joe Bukowski, 921 Sanborn St., Ottumwa, Iowa: "Before I started taking HADACOL it was nearly impossible for me to do my housework. . . . I was weak, nervous, didn't sleep well, and lacked an appetite. But thanks to regular use of HADACOL, I now do all my housework, sleep well, and have a good appetite. I don't have that tired-out feeling. I'm really 100 per cent better since taking HADACOL."

Mrs. Walter Shields, Hornsbyville, Va., says about her young son: "I have a little boy who had stomach distress every time he went riding in a car. Nothing did him any good. I heard about HADACOL and have given him two bottles. He doesn't suffer from his stomach any more."

Mrs. Anna M. Dehlendorf, 631 E. Pope St., St. Louis 15, Mo.: "I have been taking HADACOL for six months, and feel fine again. I was rundown. I am 60 years old, and do housework, laundry by the day for different parties, and I also do baby sitting in the evening. Before I started taking HADACOL, I was underweight—I only weighed 97 pounds. Now my weight is 135 pounds. I eat good, sleep good, and feel good."

Marcus Dee Starkey, 1866 Farrow St., Kansas City, Kansas: "Before taking HADACOL, I suffered such stomach distress after each meal I could hardly work. My wife bought me a bottle of HADACOL, and I will bless the day she did this for me. I took this wonderful discovery and after one week I was actually surprised at the results. I have now taken four of the large bottles, and that isn't all, I will continue taking it."

Mrs. Lula Nelsoni, 1702 E. 63rd Street, Huntington Park, Los Angeles, California: "I was run-down, couldn't sleep at night, had aches and pains and with seven children to care for I couldn't get my work done. After three bottles of HADACOL I felt so much better I could do more work than ever before. I've been taking HADACOL ever since and feel so good. I now give it to my children and it has helped them, too."

Liquor Licenses For Two Frostburg Clubs Held Up

The Allegany County Liquor Control Board yesterday decided to withhold issuance of liquor licenses of Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion, and John R. Fairgrieve Post No. 2462, Veterans of Foreign Wars, both of Frostburg, until May 31.

The board, in its order yesterday stated that in view of the fact that officers of the two veterans organizations entered guilty pleas in Circuit Court two weeks ago to charges of violating gambling laws by maintaining slot machines in their buildings, the applications for the renewal of the licenses will be withheld until May 31.

In effect the withholding of the liquor licenses amounts to a 30-day suspension as the two clubs will not be able to sell beer, wine or liquor for the period between tomorrow, May 1, the starting date of the new licenses, and May 31.

The veterans organizations were fined $500 each by Associate Judge George Henderson on April 16 after they had entered guilty pleas.

The Liquor Board also held up issuance of a beer license to John T. Shrewbridge, who operates an establishment at Fairgo, until May 22.

Shrewbridge had been accused of selling beer to minors at his place. The complaining witness was Mrs. Agatha Bishop, who lives near the tavern and grocery operated by Shrewbridge. She said several of her children had purchased beer at the tavern for older people.

The beer, wine and liquor license of the Orioles Club at Wills Mountain Inn was granted yesterday by the board. Issuance of the permit had been help up pending an investigation of the club as to whether or not it was a bona fide organization.

Resident Given Permit To Open Restaurant

The building engineer yesterday approved application of Herbert Wilson, 322 Paca Street, to open a restaurant at 60 North Mechanic Street.

The new business will be located at the site formerly occupied by Karp Brothers, restaurant and bar equipment firm. Harry Little is owner of the building.

A report on building for April shows 20 permits were granted for new construction and six for additions and remodeling, a total of 26. Estimated expenditure for new construction was $68,600 and for additions and improvements, $8,775, or a total of $77,375.

This figure is under those reported for March and April a year ago. During March there were 20 permits granted with an expenditure of $104, 150. In April, 1950, there were 34 permits and a total estimated expenditure of $108,250.

Last month seven applications were made for occupancy permits. Five were granted, one denied, and another is awaiting action of the building engineer.

Liquor Board Case Against McNeill Refuted At Hearing

The case against Leo McNeill, operator of a tavern at Klondike, blew up yesterday at a meeting of the Allegany County Liquor Control Board when seven witnesses all testified in favor of the accused.

The witnesses, summoned by the sheriff's office on orders of the Liquor Board, all stated in testimony that McNeill ran a law abiding establishment and that the charges made in an anonymous letter, sent to the attorney general of Maryland, were untrue.

McNeill was granted his beer license by the board after it heard the testimony.

As the seven residents of the little community located off the Georges Creek Boulevard near Midland left the board office they were visibly angry and bitter about the matter. They stated they did not authorize the use of their names on the letter and had no idea who sent the missive. Six of the witnesses were women.

Charges in the letter were to the effect that McNeill sold to minors, sold beer on Sundays and also sold whisky without a license. It was also charged that he conducted chicken fights at his establishment.

All of these charges were refuted by the seven witneses yesterday.

Local Truck Concern Sold To Baltimore Co.

One of this city's largest trucking concerns, the Cumberland Motor Express, has been sold to a Baltimore firm of investment brokers, according to Frederick A. Puderbaugh, attorney for the trucking company.

Puderbaugh said negotiations for the sale of the local company were completed yesterday with Phillip S. Sterling, of the firm of Sterling, Morris and Bousman, Baltimore. He said he could not release the purchase price paid by the Baltimoreans.

The local company has been in operation since 1935 and included in purchase are 50 pieces of equipment, mostly tractor-trailers, a terminal at Hagerstown and a parking lot and garage in this city.

HADACOL

HADACOL Relieves The Cause of Stomach Distress, Aches and Pains, Weak, Run-Down Conditions,

Poor Appetite and Nervousness When Due to a Deficiency of Vitamins B_1, B_2, Niacin and Iron

E. A. Drumright, 313 Main St., Nashville, Tenn., says this about today's great HADACOL: "I feel I should write you and tell you what HADACOL has done for me. I was run-down and not able to work and had no ambition. All I wanted to do was sleep. I took HADACOL and went to work and am feeling fine and have a good appetite, and sleep good. I can recommend HADACOL to anyone in a run-down condition. I am 68 years old and have taken six bottles."

Mrs. Ardena Longaker, Rt. 5, Meadowbrook Rd., North Kansas City, Mo.: "I am a minister's wife and am 39 years old. Two years ago I had an operation and just had a hard time getting back my energy. I was run-down, lost weight, was listless, and had no appetite at all. I'm on my fifth bottle now and am amazed at the results. I want to eat all the time now. Most of all, I'm glad to say, I've gained several pounds. HADACOL is so economical I believe almost anyone can afford it, and I do recommend it to my friends."

Frank W. Woche, 531 Apache, Houston, Texas: "I was so run-down and my son-in-law suggested I take HADACOL. I had lost lots of weight and was tired all the time. After the first small bottle I started feeling better right away. I have now taken four more large bottles and wouldn't be without HADACOL. HADACOL has done so much for me. It's wonderful and all of my friends saw how bad I was looking and now tell me how much better I look. I can't say enough for HADACOL."

Mrs. LaRue Dunbee, Saunemin, Illinois: "My son Gary is four years old, and will be five in July. His grandfather, Mr. J. W. Simmons who lives with us, was taking HADACOL and it helped him. We had been having so much trouble getting Gary to eat. It seemed as if it would take the entire family to coax him to eat. After we started giving him HADACOL his appetite picked up right away. He will eat three hearty meals a day, gets up in the morning all set for a big breakfast. HADACOL has certainly helped Gary's appetite."

Mrs. J. E. Roberts, 1516 Lincoln, Little Rock, Ark.: "I am a mother with five children and with all my housework I was so run-down and just couldn't seem to eat at all. I heard about HADACOL and decided to try it, to see if it would help me. I could tell from the first bottle that it was helping me. I started eating right away—my appetite picked up a lot. After that I took three more bottles of HADACOL, and really believe that HADACOL is a good product, and it has certainly helped me."

Mrs. Letha Fitzpatrick, 401 E. Elm St., Scottsville, Ky.: "I couldn't sleep. I didn't have any appetite and wasn't able to do anything. Then I heard and read about HADACOL and what it had done for others. I decided to give it a trial. I have taken several bottles and I can truthfully say it has really helped me. I feel so much better. I have a lot more strength. I can eat now and I'm gaining weight. I do my work, work in my flowers, also in the garden. Now I'm putting up my fruit and vegetables. I can't thank HADACOL enough for what it's done for me."

Mrs. Thomas Fanning, Francisco, Ala., says about her daughter, Norine: "I just want to say a few words about HADACOL. I can't praise it enough for what it has done for my little seven-year-old girl. She was weak and pale, and did not eat very much. So, I decided to try HADACOL. Now, she eats more and has a better color and has gained weight. My friends and neighbors all are talking about her looking so much better. I can't say enough for it. I recommend it to my friends and neighbors or anybody. I will know from now on what to get when any of my family needs help."

Mrs. Anne Franks, 434 West Seven St., Newport, Ky.: "As a constant user of HADACOL—and am on my fourth bottle—would not hesitate to acclaim it the best. I was so run-down I could hardly do my work. And that is important as I do a man's job in a shoe factory. I felt that I did not have enough energy to lift my hands. I felt so let-down everything annoyed me. But since I've taken my first bottle, I've been helped so much that now I'm up and ready and anxious to get my work done and am not tired, but am able to do my housework. I cannot praise HADACOL and its makers enough."

Mrs. Margaret Gordon, 113 Forrest St., Clover, S. Car.: "I didn't have the energy to do anything, and I couldn't sleep at night. I had gas pains all the time. So many friends told me how it had helped them, so I decided to try HADACOL. I have taken three bottles, and am on my fourth bottle. I can't express my gladness for all that it has done for me. Now, I can sleep well at night, and I work. I praise HADACOL very much. I will not do without HADACOL anymore. It has done wonders for me. I can eat anything I wish now, and it doesn't hurt me any more. I am 26 years of age."

Miss Ometha White, 1709 Bush Ave., Alexandria, La.: "I am 25 years old and have lived in Alexandria all my life. I am employed by a canning company. A year ago I was nervous and run-down. HADACOL is sold on a strict money-back guarantee. You'll feel great with the first few bottles you take or your money back.

Mrs. Anna M. Dehlendorf, 631 E. Pope St., St. Louis 15, Mo.: "I have been taking HADACOL for six months, and feel fine again. I was rundown. I am 60 years old, and do housework, laundry by the day for different parties, and I also do baby sitting in the evening. Before I started taking HADACOL, I was underweight—I only weighed 97 pounds. Motorist Who Killed Child Faces Four Vehicle Charges

The State's Attorneys' office announced early yesterday afternoon that no manslaughter charge will be filed against Charles Whitehead, Jr., Midlothian, whose car struck and killed a two-year-old girl Saturday.

Authorities said the decision was reached after the victim's father, Frank Willetts, also of Midlothian, requested Whitehead be freed in the death of his daughter, Ellen Jewel.

However, White will be prosecuted Thursday at 10 a. m. in Trial Court on four motor vehicle charges of driving without a license, having inadequate brakes and no title, and displaying a registration plate not issued for such a vehicle.

State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher completed the death probe after questioning a number of witnesses this morning. Statements were taken.

Whitehead told authorities he had stopped at the service station and pulled away without seeing the girl. He jumped from the car when he felt the impact, picked up the child and carried her to the parents.

The father stopped a passing car and she was rushed to Miners Hospital, Frostburg. The child was dead upon arrival. Death resulted from an inter-cranial hemorrhage caused by a basal fracture of the skull.

Minoso Is Guy Chisox Wanted, Richards Says

Negro To Play 3rd Base For Chicago

CHICAGO, April 30 (AP)—The Chicago White Sox today had their first negro regular, fleet Orestes Minoso of the Cleveland Indians, and freshman Manager Paul Richards had a pennant gleam in his eye.

"Nuts to fourth place," snorted Richards after the ramified Sox-Indian-Athletics deal brought Minoso and the A's Paul Lehner to the Pale Hose. (Some experts earlier gave the Sox a chance to cop fourth.)

"Minoso is the kind of player you need to win pennants. He's the guy we wanted. He'll show them something."

To get Minoso, 27, and outfielder Lehner, 30, the Sox gave the A's outfielders Gus Zernial, 25, who set a sox record of 29 homers last season, and Dave Philley, 29.

Minoso To Play Third

Minoso, who filled in for the injured Luke Easter at first for Cleveland, will be used by the Sox at third base. That was the position he played mainly for San Diego of the Pacific Coast League last season when the native of Matanzas, Cuba, batted .339, drove across 115 runs and scored 130.

Lehner, who hit .309 in 114 games for the A's last season, will take over Zernial's left field spot. Both newcomers are expected to be on hand tomorrow when the New York Yankees arrive for a 2-game set.

Today's three-way deal was reported engineered mainly by General Manager Frank Lane of the White Sox. Lane smiled at queries on the subject, but commented: "you would think so if you looked at my phone bill. During the past three days, I have been on the phone 18 out of 24 hours."

The Sox had two negro players in spring training, first sacker Bob Boyd and catcher Sam Hairston, but both were optioned to Sacramento.

Coach Doc Cramer, who spent considerable time trying to groom Zernial during spring training, commented that "either we made a terrific deal, or not worse than a standoff."

Zernial, on the other hand, goes back to Jimmy Dykes, who has been a one-man cheering gang for big Gus ever since he managed him with Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League.

The Sox have two first-line third basemen now in Floyd Baker and Hank Majeski. But until either outbids Minosa for the job, or Richards sees fit to shift versatile Minoso elsewhere, third base will belong to the Cuban who Hank Greenberg of the Indians says may become "one of the really good players of our time."

12 College Cage Stars Are Indicted

Eleven Took Bribes Totalling $40,750

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP) — A dozen of the nation's top college basketball stars were indicted today along with an ex-convict accused of fixing Madison Square Garden games.

All the players or former players are from schools in New York City—New York University, Long Island University and City College of New York.

The charges cover the recently ended 1950-51 season, during which 11 of the cage stars are alleged to have pocketed bribes totalling $40,750 from ex-convict Salvatore T. Sollazzo.

The collegians are among 16 who have been arrested since February in the biggest scandal ever to hit college sports. One previously was indicted and three others are awaiting grand jury action.

CCNY Barred From Garden

A few hours after the indictments were returned, the board of higher education barred City College from any further games in Madison Square Garden.

The board has no control over LIU and NYU.

The board's committee on intercollegiate basketball said CCNY was aware of the pressure on players by gamblers and tried to warn the players. But the committee added in a statement:

"City College authorities and we ourselves as members of the board share in the responsibility for having allowed the students to be exposed for so long to conditions they were not strong enough to resist."

A Manhattan grand jury indicted the players on a number of counts, making them liable, if convicted, to prison sentences averaging 23 years and fines up to $40,000 each.

Ten of the players pleaded innocent before General Sessions Judge Saul S. Streit and remained free on bail. No trial date was set.

Adolph Bigos of LIU, and Eddie Gard, a former LIU star, will plead to the charges later.

Gard is accused of acting as a go-between for bribes passed to players in behalf of Sollazzo. The ex-player also is accused in another indictment of taking bribes himself.

Sollazzo faces a maximum 148 years and $290,000 in fines if convicted. Today's indictment against him replaces an earlier one that covered less ground.

Sollazzo Refused Bail

Sollazzo pleaded innocent to the new indictment but again was refused bail. He has been held since the scandal broke nearly three months ago.

Besides Sollazzo, four other alleged fixers have been arrested.

Involved in the indictments are four stars of CCNY's dream team of last year, which won a "Cinderella" title by taking a double collegiate championship for the first time in history.

They are Ed Roman, Ed 'Warner, Al Roth and Floyd G. Layne.

Hairston Stops Pender In 3rd

Deaf Mute Scores Spectacular Kayo

Pender scored frequently from long range with both hands while taking Hairston's heavy lefts to the body.

After Pender rose, Hairston cut loose with a two fisted barrage to the head and Brooklyn boy sank for another nine count. He was groggy when he tried to resume and the deliberate Hairston measured him with a right to the jaw that floored him for the full count.

During the brief action, Hairston impressed the 9,225 spectators with his skillful infighting. Pender, making his 28th professional start, battled uphill in courageous fashion from the opening bell until he was punched out of action.

LASALLE BOWLING LEAGUE CHAMPS—Capturing both halves of the split season schedule, Captain Jack Vocke's Steelers won the 1950-51 championship of the LaSalle High School Bowling League. Minoso Is Guy Chisox Wanted, Richards Says

Negro To Play 3rd Base For Chicago

CHICAGO, April 30 (AP)—The Chicago White Sox today had their first negro regular, fleet Orestes Minoso of the Cleveland Indians, and freshman Manager Paul Richards had a pennant gleam in his eye.

"Nuts to fourth place," snorted Richards after the ramified Sox-Indian-Athletics deal brought Minoso and the A's Paul Lehner to the Pale Hose. (Some experts earlier gave the Sox a chance to cop fourth.)

"Minoso is the kind of player you need to win pennants. He's the guy we wanted. He'll show them something."

To get Minoso, 27, and outfielder Lehner, 30, the Sox gave the A's outfielders Gus Zernial, 25, who set a sox record of 29 homers last season, and Dave Philley, 29.

Minoso To Play Third

Minoso, who filled in for the injured Luke Easter at first for Cleveland, will be used by the Sox at third base. That was the position he played mainly for San Diego of the Pacific Coast League last season when the native of Matanzas, Cuba, batted .339, drove across 115 runs and scored 130.

Lehner, who hit .309 in 114 games for the A's last season, will take over Zernial's left field spot. Both newcomers are expected to be on hand tomorrow when the New York Yankees arrive for a 2-game set.

Today's three-way deal was reported engineered mainly by General Manager Frank Lane of the White Sox. Lane smiled at queries on the subject, but commented: "you would think so if you looked at my phone bill. During the past three days, I have been on the phone 18 out of 24 hours."

The Sox had two negro players in spring training, first sacker Bob Boyd and catcher Sam Hairston, but both were optioned to Sacramento.

Coach Doc Cramer, who spent considerable time trying to groom Zernial during spring training, commented that "either we made a terrific deal, or not worse than a standoff."

Zernial, on the other hand, goes back to Jimmy Dykes, who has been a one-man cheering gang for big Gus ever since he managed him with Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League.

The Sox have two first-line third basemen now in Floyd Baker and Hank Majeski. But until either outbids Minosa for the job, or Richards sees fit to shift versatile Minoso elsewhere, third base will belong to the Cuban who Hank Greenberg of the Indians says may become "one of the really good players of our time."

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP) — A dozen of the nation's top college basketball stars were indicted today along with an ex-convict accused of fixing Madison Square Garden games.

The charges cover the recently ended 1950-51 season, during which 11 of the cage stars are alleged to have pocketed bribes totalling $40,750 from ex-convict Salvatore T. Sollazzo.

The collegians are among 16 who have been arrested since February in the biggest scandal ever to hit college sports. One previously was indicted and three others are awaiting grand jury action.

CCNY Barred From Garden

A few hours after the indictments were returned, the board of higher education barred City College from any further games in Madison Square Garden.

The board has no control over LIU and NYU.

The board's committee on intercollegiate basketball said CCNY was aware of the pressure on players by gamblers and tried to warn the players. But the committee added in a statement:

"City College authorities and we ourselves as members of the board share in the responsibility for having allowed the students to be exposed for so long to conditions they were not strong enough to resist."

A Manhattan grand jury indicted the players on a number of counts, making them liable, if convicted, to prison sentences averaging 23 years and fines up to $40,000 each.

Ten of the players pleaded innocent before General Sessions Judge Saul S. Streit and remained free on bail. No trial date was set.

Adolph Bigos of LIU, and Eddie Gard, a former LIU star, will plead to the charges later.

Gard is accused of acting as a go-between for bribes passed to players in behalf of Sollazzo. The ex-player also is accused in another indictment of taking bribes himself.

Sollazzo faces a maximum 148 years and $290,000 in fines if convicted. Today's indictment against him replaces an earlier one that covered less ground.

Sollazzo Refused Bail

Sollazzo pleaded innocent to the new indictment but again was refused bail. He has been held since the scandal broke nearly three months ago.

Besides Sollazzo, four other alleged fixers have been arrested.

Involved in the indictments are four stars of CCNY's dream team of last year, which won a "Cinderella" title by taking a double collegiate championship for the first time in history.

Deaf Mute Scores Spectacular Kayo

After Pender rose, Hairston cut loose with a two fisted barrage to the head and Brooklyn boy sank for another nine count. He was groggy when he tried to resume and the deliberate Hairston measured him with a right to the jaw that floored him for the full count.

During the brief action, Hairston impressed the 9,225 spectators with his skillful infighting. Pender, making his 28th professional start, battled uphill in courageous fashion from the opening bell until he was punched out of action.

Derby Trial Set For Today, 14 Colts Expected To Start

By GAYLE TALBOT

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 30 (AP)—Fourteen colts were nominated today to run in tomorrow's Derby Trial at Churchill Downs, and it is just possible that the mile race will do something toward unscrambling the Derby picture, which badly needs unscrambling.

Five of those named for the trial—Battle Morn, Fanfare, King Clover, Bernwood and Pur Sang—are expected to run in the big race on Saturday. If one of the other nine should win the $10,000 first prize tomorrow, or even finish with a good rush, it is more than likely his owner will give him a shot at the wreath of roses.

The Trial is, of course, far from conclusive, as it is a quarter-mile shorter than the Derby itself. For instance a horse named Black George won it last year, and he finished 14th and last in the Derby four days later.

But the Trial can tell a smart trainer plenty. Two years ago Ben Jones of Calumet didn't suspect he had a Derby winner until he saw Ponder close strongly behind Olympia in the Trial. Middleground also finished second in last year's Trial and then went on to take the big pot.

Bearing top weight of 118 pounds tomorrow will be Spring Brook Farm's Pur Sang. Weights for the Trial are based on the amount of money a colt has won. Battle Morn and Kings Hope each will tote 115, Abe Sting 112, and the remainder 110 or under.

Battle Morn, ridden by Eddie Arcaro, likely will be the favorite at post time, 5 p. m. (EST), but Fanfare will attract a lot of dollars in the mutuels because of the high respect in which his trainer, Ben Jones, is held in Kentucky.

The biggest news around the Downs today was contributed by a non-starter in the Trial—C. V. Whitnew's Mameluke — when he ripped off the full derby distance of a mile and a quarter in 2:04 3-5, faster than the winner's time in many a derby. Whilaway's record is 2:01 2-5, which gives an idea.

Mameluke, which won the first division of the Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland last week by three lengths, ran his amazing effort handily, as the clockers term it. His trainer, Syl Veitch, was slightly perturbed about it.

"I'm afraid he may have worked too fast," he said. "But he did it easily and came out of it with no sign of lameness, so I guess I can't complain too much."

The Downs track is exceptionally fast this spring. The back stretch wasr esurfaced during the winter, and the ground near the rail became hard-packed by snow and ice.

Greentree Stable's Big Stretch did in the Derby distance today in 2:05 3-5. He will not go in Saturday's race unless the track is perfect. His stablemate, Hall Of Fame, worked a mile in 1:40. Repetoire, unbeaten in four stakes this year, loafed the Derby route in 2:14 3-5.

The belief now is that at least 18 will go in the Derby, maybe 20.

Brann Leaves Estate Valued At Two Million

FREDERICK, Md., April 30 (AP)—William L. Brann, in a will directing disposition of an estate estimated to value more than $2,000,000, recommended continuance of his horse breeding and racing operations.

Brann died early this month in Florida.

His will, dated Sept. 30, 1950, was probated today. Harry D. Radcliff, registrar of wills, declined to estimate the estate's value but bonds filed with it indicated it was in excess of $2,000,000. That would be the largest ever filed in Frederick.

Brann owned the Glade Valley Breeding Farm at nearby Walkersville. Foaled there was Challedon, winner of the 1939 Preakness and the "horse of the year" in 1939 and 1940.

"In my opinion," Brann wrote in his will, "the conservation of the value of real assets depends in a large part on uninterrupted continuance" of the breeding farm and the racing stable.

Derby Trial Set For Today, 14 Colts Expected To Start

By GAYLE TALBOT

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 30 (AP)—Fourteen colts were nominated today to run in tomorrow's Derby Trial at Churchill Downs, and it is just possible that the mile race will do something toward unscrambling the Derby picture, which badly needs unscrambling.

Five of those named for the trial—Battle Morn, Fanfare, King Clover, Bernwood and Pur Sang—are expected to run in the big race on Saturday. If one of the other nine should win the $10,000 first prize tomorrow, or even finish with a good rush, it is more than likely his owner will give him a shot at the wreath of roses.

The Trial is, of course, far from conclusive, as it is a quarter-mile shorter than the Derby itself. For instance a horse named Black George won it last year, and he finished 14th and last in the Derby four days later.

But the Trial can tell a smart trainer plenty. Two years ago Ben Jones of Calumet didn't suspect he had a Derby winner until he saw Ponder close strongly behind Olympia in the Trial. Middleground also finished second in last year's Trial and then went on to take the big pot.

Bearing top weight of 118 pounds tomorrow will be Spring Brook Farm's Pur Sang. Weights for the Trial are based on the amount of money a colt has won. Battle Morn and Kings Hope each will tote 115, Abe Sting 112, and the remainder 110 or under.

Battle Morn, ridden by Eddie Arcaro, likely will be the favorite at post time, 5 p. m. (EST), but Fanfare will attract a lot of dollars in the mutuels because of the high respect in which his trainer, Ben Jones, is held in Kentucky.

The biggest news around the Downs today was contributed by a non-starter in the Trial—C. V. Whitnew's Mameluke — when he ripped off the full derby distance of a mile and a quarter in 2:04 3-5, faster than the winner's time in many a derby. Whilaway's record is 2:01 2-5, which gives an idea.

Mameluke, which won the first division of the Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland last week by three lengths, ran his amazing effort handily, as the clockers term it. His trainer, Syl Veitch, was slightly perturbed about it.

"I'm afraid he may have worked too fast," he said. "But he did it easily and came out of it with no sign of lameness, so I guess I can't complain too much."

The Downs track is exceptionally fast this spring. The back stretch wasr esurfaced during the winter, and the ground near the rail became hard-packed by snow and ice.

Greentree Stable's Big Stretch did in the Derby distance today in 2:05 3-5. He will not go in Saturday's race unless the track is perfect. His stablemate, Hall Of Fame, worked a mile in 1:40. Repetoire, unbeaten in four stakes this year, loafed the Derby route in 2:14 3-5.

The belief now is that at least 18 will go in the Derby, maybe 20.

Brann Leaves Estate Valued At Two Million

FREDERICK, Md., April 30 (AP)—William L. Brann, in a will directing disposition of an estate estimated to value more than $2,000,000, recommended continuance of his horse breeding and racing operations.

Brann died early this month in Florida.

His will, dated Sept. 30, 1950, was probated today. Harry D. Radcliff, registrar of wills, declined to estimate the estate's value but bonds filed with it indicated it was in excess of $2,000,000. That would be the largest ever filed in Frederick.

Brann owned the Glade Valley Breeding Farm at nearby Walkersville. Foaled there was Challedon, winner of the 1939 Preakness and the "horse of the year" in 1939 and 1940.

"In my opinion," Brann wrote in his will, "the conservation of the value of real assets depends in a large part on uninterrupted continuance" of the breeding farm and the racing stable.

CLEVELAND, April 30 (AP)—Cleveland captured pitcher Lou Brissie from Philadelphia today in a major three-club, seven-player deal that also involved the Chicago White Sox.

Beating the other contenders to the much-sought lefthander, the Indians gave up rookie infielder Orestes Minoso, relief pitcher Sam Zoldak and third string catcher Ray Murray. But Brissie could "make" their southpaw-poor staff.

Here's the way the deal works:

Cleveland—gets Brissie from Philadelphia.

Chicago—gets Minoso from Cleveland outfielder Paul Lehner from Philadelphia.

Players Worth $300,000

The value of the seven players was conservatively estimated at well over $300,000. Zernial, potentially a terriffic power hitter, was sought by Philadelphia ever since Jimmy Dykes, his old boss, became manager.

"It's the kind of a deal a club makes when it's going all-out for the pennant," said Hank Greenberg, Cleveland general manager.

"We gave up a lot of power but we think we made a good deal," said Frank Lane, Chicago general manager. "Paul Richards (Sox manager) has been wild about Minoso ever since he caused him so much trouble in the Pacific Coast League."

"I think we made a good one," said Art Ehlers, A's general manager. We're going to keep moving players." The A's have lost 10 straight.

Brissie, it seems, had the only objection.

Manager Al Lopez plans to fill in with either Harry Simpson, a rookie up from SanDiego, or Allie Clark tomorrow when the Tribe opens a series against Boston. Clark will go if Boston uses a southpaw pitcher.

Frank Lane, Chicago general manager, admitted he'd given up a "lot of power" when he lost Zernial. But he added that Manager Paul Richards has been "wild about Minoso ever since he caused him so much trouble last year in the Pacific Coast League." Minoso batted .339 for San Diego while Richards was managing Seattle.

By getting Zernial the A's will be able to field two long-ball hitters for the first time in 20 years. Until now they've gotten along with Sam Chapman as their hitter.

Lane predicted that Zernial may hit "30 to 35 home runs for Philadelphia." The Sox manager noted Zernial would also have a shorter outfield to protect when playing at home for the A's. He batted .280 last year.

Brissie, who had to beg doctors during the Italian war campaign not to cut off his wounded left leg, won seven and lost 19 last year for the A's. Although he plays with a plate in his leg, he throws a fireball. In 1948, he won 14 and lost 10. In 1949, he won 16 and lost 11.

Art Ehlers, the A's general manager, said Brissie "wasn't helping us, but you never know. Maybe a change of scenery will do him some good. Lou has plenty of natural ability."

Philly, .242 average; Lehner batted .390; Murray, the Tribe's third catcher, batted .273; Zoldak, won four and lost two, working mostly in relief.

RALEIGH, N. C., April 30 (AP)—Cornell and Navy today accepted invitations to play in the third annual Dixie basketball classic here next Dec. 27-28-29.

North Carolina State College Athletic Director Roy B. Clogston said the acceptance of Cornell and Navy completes the field of four intersectional teams. Southern California and Columbia accepted last week.

Duke, N. C. State, North Carolina and Wake Forest round out the eight-team field for the fast-growing tournament. N. C. State is defending champion.

SPORTS GRILL

by Pat Robinson

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, April 30 (INS)—Hot off the grill today we have . . . veteran Jack Campbell . . . nation's leading handicapper . . . who still insists the Derby finish will read . . . Big Stretch, Battle Morn, and Timely Reward . . . but no guarantees go with the forecast . . .

And Broadway Sam wants to know if Jack will rue the day he didn't pick Ruhe . . . Sam gets his inspirations for those terrible puns from the purple and yellow shirts he wears . . .

Joe Louis and Omelio Agramonte . . . the Cuban canvas-kisser . . . do it all over again in Detroit Wednesday night . . and if Joe doesn't stop him this time he can kiss any outdoor shot this summer good-bye . . .

For that very reason the Broadway bums in the fight racket fear there may be a Weismuller touch to this one . . .

And Cappy Wells . . . the old west pointer . . . says anybody who thinks baseball has lost interest for American kids should have his noggin examined . . .

Cappy points out there will be more than 600 little leagues . . . leagues, we repeat, not teams . . . in this country this season . . . for kids not more than 13 years old . . . and they are all in uniform . . .

Last year there were only 337 litle leagues and Cappy estimates within the next few years there will be more, than 13,000,000 of such kids playing ball . . . should get another Stan Musial out of that collection . . .

Willie Turnesa . . . playing captain of the U. S. Walker Cup team . . . declares the smaller heavier British golf ball is absolutely essential for those wind-swept English courses . . .

"Playing those courses," explains Willie, "is like trying to hit to left field in a high wind in baseball and finding the ball curving into the grandstand or winding up away over in center field . . ."

Casey Stengel doesn't know which pains him most . . . his own kidneys . . . the wildness of Tommy Byrne . . . or the early season batting slumps of Joe DiMaggio and Johnny Mize . . .

Other teams asking Leo Durocher . . . "now that you've got your kind of a team, Leo, what are you going to do with it . . ." to which Leo replies . . . "))!!XX$$&&&and!!!!"

Yankee troubles aren't causing Bucky Harris to shed tears . . . some of the other clubs think Bucky has a good chance to land his Senators in the first division . . . one thing is sure they will be well managed . . .

Boxing Managers' Guild still demanding scalp of Madison Square Garden Matchmaker Al Weill . . . but Jim Norris hints he won't turn his back on the fat man . . .

Olympic officials are wondering if Russians will insist on making their own rules and bringing their own track and field officials . . . when and if they enter the next Olympic Games . . . Selah . . .

The game of ice hockey originated in Montreal, Canada, in 1879. Nine men played on each side. Today six play on each team.

QUESTIONS

1—Name the states in which these colleges are located—Santa Clara, Rutgers, DePauw, Kent State.

2—What U. S. woman athlete sought to enter all six women's events of the 1932 Olympics?

3—What was the highest number of 20 game winners on a single team the same season?

HOOHEE?

GUESS I'm the hard-luck guy of pro football. I've owned a National league club since 1944 with nary a title winner. Before buying the Boston Yanks I operated the Long Island Indians. What is my name?

ANSWERS

(Hoohee: Ted Collins)

1—California, New Jersey, Indiana and Ohio respectively.

2—Mildred (Babe) Didrikson. Olympic rules limit any individual to participation in three events.

3—Four. In 1920 Urban (Red) Faber won 23 games for the Chicago White Sox. Teammates Claude (Lefty) Williams, Eddie Cicotte and Dickie Kerr won 22, 21 and 21 respectively.

I know one thing Virginia Van Upp told me and that is that the first story Rita Hayworth does has to be great. "That's why we are all taking care at Columbia to be sure we are on the right track," she said.

"My heart goes into any story I write for Rita," Virginia went on. "She is not only a star, but, as you know, she has my personal love as well as my professional admiration."

At the moment, Harry Cohn is considering three stories—one a musical, with a story, the other a smart up-to-the-minute comedy, and the other a romantic comedy-drama.

Rita, herself, is delighted that Virginia Van Upp, of whom she is very fond, is writing a story for her.

Robert Merrill is bringing his brother, Gilbert, Mrs. Gilbert and their baby girl to spend a month with him. But he has to wait for a little while—the baby was only born Tuesday.

June and Stu Erwin arrived in town Saturday to do 20 of the TV series, "Trouble With Father," at the Hal Roach Studio. Wonderful that June and Stu have had this great success.

The last thing Spencer Tracy and Benny Thau did before they took off for Europe was to take a look at Spence's picture, "The People vs. O'Hara." Dore Schary told them there were no retakes so the boys departed.

Robert Preston gets a chance to return to his first love, the stage, on June 4, when he replaces Jose Ferrer in "Twentieth Century." Bob goes to New York early this month to prepare for rehearsals.

The Jack Skirballs have adopted a baby.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

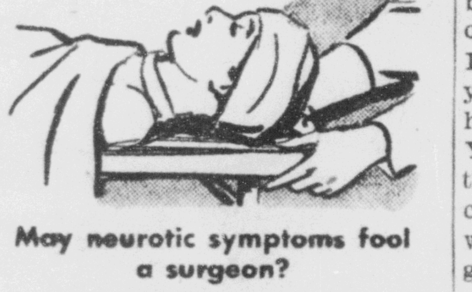
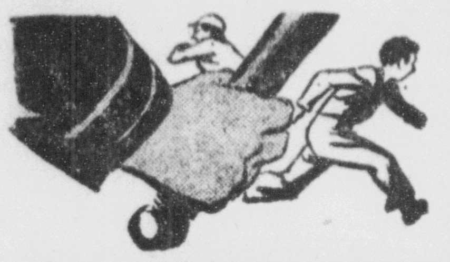
Answer: Social workers say that this is not always the wisest or even the kindest thing to do. Few unmarried mothers can work to support a baby without having to neglect him at the time when he needs intimate and loving care most. Then, too, as the child grows older, he will feel the lack of normal family life and—unjust as it may be—will probably have to suffer some degree of social ostracism. Giving him to be adopted is by no means the "easy way out" for a mother with normal emotions, but it may be the truest expression of selfless devotion.



May neurotic symptoms fool a surgeon?

Answer: Yes, and frequently they fool the patient also. There are people who have what a British surgeon calls "the Munchausen syndrome." They deliberately fake symptoms so as to have operations performed on them. More numerous are the men and women who, with the same end in view, unconsciously develop symptoms which they themselves believe to be real but which have no organic basis. You will see occasional neurotics who have had a dozen or more operations, none of which was necessary but which satisfied a morbid need to suffer.



Can youthful "gangs" be abolished?

Answer: There is little use in trying to do this, says Howard Jones in Mental Health (London). Young delinquents as a rule are ultra-social rather than anti-social and try to make up for the unsatisfactoriness of their family ties by intense devotion to a group of other children of their own type. It will be better for leaders of youth to work with the gangs (as has been done successfully in New York and elsewhere) so as to steer the group spirit into more useful channels. It has also proved worthwhile to organize the parents into groups dealing with local problems—they, too, need to "belong."

"That's why we are all taking care at Columbia to be sure we are on the right track," she said. "My heart goes into any story I write for Rita," Virginia went on. "She is not only a star, but, as you know, she has my personal love as well as my professional admiration."

At the moment, Harry Cohn is considering three stories—one a musical, with a story, the other a smart up-to-the-minute comedy, and the other a romantic comedy-drama.

Rita, herself, is delighted that Virginia Van Upp, of whom she is very fond, is writing a story for her.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Robert Merrill is bringing his brother, Gilbert, Mrs. Gilbert and their baby girl to spend a month with him. But he has to wait for a little while—the baby was only born Tuesday.

June and Stu Erwin arrived in town Saturday to do 20 of the TV series, "Trouble With Father," at the Hal Roach Studio. Wonderful that June and Stu have had this great success.

The last thing Spencer Tracy and Benny Thau did before they took off for Europe was to take a look at Spence's picture, "The People vs. O'Hara." Dore Schary told them there were no retakes so the boys departed.

Robert Preston gets a chance to return to his first love, the stage, on June 4, when he replaces Jose Ferrer in "Twentieth Century." Bob goes to New York early this month to prepare for rehearsals.

The Jack Skirballs have adopted a baby.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

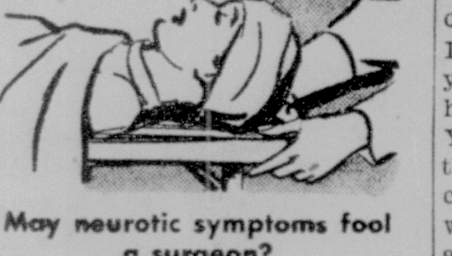
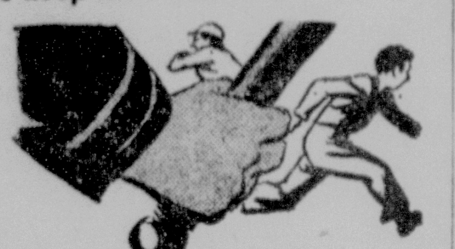
Answer: Social workers say that this is not always the wisest or even the kindest thing to do. Few unmarried mothers can work to support a baby without having to neglect him at the time when he needs intimate and loving care most. Then, too, as the child grows older, he will feel the lack of normal family life and—unjust as it may be—will probably have to suffer some degree of social ostracism. Giving him to be adopted is by no means the "easy way out" for a mother with normal emotions, but it may be the truest expression of selfless devotion.



May neurotic symptoms fool a surgeon?

Answer: Yes, and frequently they fool the patient also. There are people who have what a British surgeon calls "the Munchausen syndrome." They deliberately fake symptoms so as to have operations performed on them. More numerous are the men and women who, with the same end in view, unconsciously develop symptoms which they themselves believe to be real but which have no organic basis. You will see occasional neurotics who have had a dozen or more operations, none of which was necessary but which satisfied a morbid need to suffer.



Can youthful "gangs" be abolished?

Answer: There is little use in trying to do this, says Howard Jones in Mental Health (London). Young delinquents as a rule are ultra-social rather than anti-social and try to make up for the unsatisfactoriness of their family ties by intense devotion to a group of other children of their own type. It will be better for leaders of youth to work with the gangs (as has been done successfully in New York and elsewhere) so as to steer the group spirit into more useful channels. It has also proved worthwhile to organize the parents into groups dealing with local problems—they, too, need to "belong."

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS)

AMONG the Americans being held by the Reds on brutally trumped-up charges, and with little immediate hope of release along the lines of Robert Vogeler, are some missionary friends I wrote about a year or so ago in a book named "The Maryknoll Story."

Mark Tennien, of Pittsford, Vt., for one, a jeep-driving priest who largely created what became known as "the miracle of Blue Cloud County." With the weapons of good works Tennien invaded the mountainous country west and north of Canton and Hong Kong and, with others from Maryknoll, brought about an epochal mass conversion in an openly hostile land.

His opening wedge was a box of atabrine with which he dosed 200 Blue Cloud villagers and saved them from malaria. He moved on to the city of Shumkai, first missionary in history to visit there, and ran into a blank wall. But the break for which he prayed eventually came.

One day as he jeeped along a dizzy mountain road he looked down a deep ravine to see the wreckage of a truck, and the bodies of six Chinese tossed about it. Tennien and Maryknoll Brother Francis climbed down, found the Mandarin of Shumkai, saved his life, and thereafter had him as their devoted champion. Conversions were of deluge proportions as a result of what Tennien could feel was a routine act of Samaritanism.

Entire towns yielded to Tennien's word. Ancestor shrines, joss-stick bowls and all the other trappings of the deeply rooted religion of that area were voluntarily disposed of as Tennien moved from home to home, sprinkling everything in sight with what the Chinese called "chase-devil water."

Tennien's superior in that area, Bishop Frederick Donaghy, also was jailed when the devils who do not readily yield to holy water swept down from the north. The Bishop's indifference to their threats must have been magnificent. He made a habit for years of inviting known bandits to his shack, to brave their guns, share his humbled grub and strong tobacco.

Jailed also has been Russ Sprinkle, a priest who looks like Crosby did in "Going My Way." His crime was that he brought a little intrinsic American kindness and care to the Pingnam district's 487 villages and nearly half a million inhabitants. One man aligned against appalling forces of famine, illiteracy, and godlessness.

Father Bob Kennelly of Norwalk, Conn., is another Maryknoller recently seized. The man had saved countless thousands of abandoned Chinese children during his years of work in Kongmoon and had become a beloved figure in the area.

Kennelly bought a Hong Kong horse to use in his travels through Kongmoon early in his career there. The size of the animal stunned the Chinese inlanders, and a familiar warning from mother to naughty child became. "If you do that again, I'll call the fóreign-devil priest and he'll come charging over the hills on that great red foreign-devil animal, and then you'll be sorry!"

Later Kennelly picked up a motorcycle, causing fresh wonder. The Chinese called it a "put-put ch'e," and said, completely bewildered, "The man is not consumed by the fire within it."

One of Kennelly's great contributions to his orphans, as they grew to marriageable age, was his one-man matrimonial bureau. He scraped up a $100 bill somewhere and wore it thin, lending it to eligible bachelors long enough for them to present it back to Kennelly in handsome "payment" of an orphan bride. Thus the girl saved "face," and the man showed that he could deal with large sums of money without corruption.

Bishop Francis Ford, first applicant when Maryknoll was formed in 1912, was taken into custody by the Chinese Reds at Kaying. Bishop Patrick J. Byrne, a witty modern version of St. Francis Xavier, was grabbed in Seoul by the North Koreans— just as the Japs had jailed him in the other war. Nothing has been heard from the good-natured man of God who used to tell a twinkling-eyed story about "a young Korean priest who met a band of Chinese bandits, to whom he remained strongly attached for several months by reason of a wire through his ear."

Good men, these and so many others, Catholic and non-Catholic, who have had heavy hands laid upon them for pursuing the paths of justice and charity and godliness. God save them.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS) AMONG the Americans being held by the Reds on brutally trumped-up charges, and with little immediate hope of release along the lines of Robert Vogeler, are some missionary friends I wrote about a year or so ago in a book named "The Maryknoll Story."

Mark Tennien, of Pittsford, Vt., for one, a jeep-driving priest who largely created what became known as "the miracle of Blue Cloud County." With the weapons of good works Tennien invaded the mountainous country west and north of Canton and Hong Kong and, with others from Maryknoll, brought about an epochal mass conversion in an openly hostile land.

His opening wedge was a box of atabrine with which he dosed 200 Blue Cloud villagers and saved them from malaria. He moved on to the city of Shumkai, first missionary in history to visit there, and ran into a blank wall. But the break for which he prayed eventually came.

One day as he jeeped along a dizzy mountain road he looked down a deep ravine to see the wreckage of a truck, and the bodies of six Chinese tossed about it. Tennien and Maryknoll Brother Francis climbed down, found the Mandarin of Shumkai, saved his life, and thereafter had him as their devoted champion. Conversions were of deluge proportions as a result of what Tennien could feel was a routine act of Samaritanism.

Entire towns yielded to Tennien's word. Ancestor shrines, joss-stick bowls and all the other trappings of the deeply rooted religion of that area were voluntarily disposed of as Tennien moved from home to home, sprinkling everything in sight with what the Chinese called "chase-devil water."

Tennien's superior in that area, Bishop Frederick Donaghy, also was jailed when the devils who do not readily yield to holy water swept down from the north. The Bishop's indifference to their threats must have been magnificent. He made a habit for years of inviting known bandits to his shack, to brave their guns, share his humbled grub and strong tobacco.

Jailed also has been Russ Sprinkle, a priest who looks like Crosby did in "Going My Way." His crime was that he brought a little intrinsic American kindness and care to the Pingnam district's 487 villages and nearly half a million inhabitants. One man aligned against appalling forces of famine, illiteracy, and godlessness.

Father Bob Kennelly of Norwalk, Conn., is another Maryknoller recently seized. The man had saved countless thousands of abandoned Chinese children during his years of work in Kongmoon and had become a beloved figure in the area.

Kennelly bought a Hong Kong horse to use in his travels through Kongmoon early in his career there. The size of the animal stunned the Chinese inlanders, and a familiar warning from mother to naughty child became, "If you do that again, I'll call the foreign-devil priest and he'll come charging over the hills on that great red foreign-devil animal, and then you'll be sorry!"

Later Kennelly picked up a motorcycle, causing fresh wonder. The Chinese called it a "put-put ch'e," and said, completely bewildered, "The man is not consumed by the fire within it."

One of Kennelly's great contributions to his orphans, as they grew to marriageable age, was his one-man matrimonial bureau. He scraped up a $100 bill somewhere and wore it thin, lending it to eligible bachelors long enough for them to present it back to Kennelly in handsome "payment" of an orphan bride. Thus the girl saved "face," and the man showed that he could deal with large sums of money without corruption.

Bishop Francis Ford, first applicant when Maryknoll was formed in 1912, was taken into custody by the Chinese Reds at Kaying. Bishop Patrick J. Byrne, a witty modern version of St. Francis Xavier, was grabbed in Seoul by the North Koreans— just as the Japs had jailed him in the other war. Nothing has been heard from the good-natured man of God who used to tell a twinkling-eyed story about "a young Korean priest who met a band of Chinese bandits, to whom he remained strongly attached for several months by reason of a wire through his ear."

Good men, these and so many others, Catholic and non-Catholic, who have had heavy hands laid upon them for pursuing the paths of justice and charity and godliness. God save them.

Market Average Declines Due To Late Selling Flurry

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP)—A flurry of late selling today gave the stock market its first average setback in nearly a week.

Special targets were some of the railroads, oils and chemicals, which had led early trading with gains ranging to more than $2 a share. Many of these advances were trimmed or turned into declines. And the unsettlement pushed other sections of the market into lower ground.

Except for the favorites, stock prices right from the start showed no inclination to resume last week's rise. But at the same time urgent selling pressure was lacking.

The Associated Press 60-stock average dropped 20 cents at $95.90. Industrials and utilities were unchanged, rails declined 60 cents.

Of the 1,124 issues traded in a relatively narrow market, there were 524 on the down side while 384 closed higher, 64 of these touching new 1951 highs. About 25 stocks reached new lows for the year.

Major news development of the day was President Truman's dispatching to Congress a defense budget of more than $60 billions, with his estimates that expenditures in the current and following fiscal year would be slightly under previous figures. Wall Street noted his statement that the budget aimed at a preparedness level "well within our ability to maintain for many years, if necessary."

Brokers pointed out that some sort of "breathing spell" was to be expected in trading after last week's push to within striking distance of the highest price average in the last 21 years.

And just as they cited the expansion of trading of recent sessions as evidence of trading viewed as encouraging to those looking for an upward trend.

Total transactions dropped to 1,790,000 shares, compared with 2,120,000 on Friday, the previous full day.

Chicago Board Of Trade

CHICAGO, April 30 (AP)—Grains mostly ended lower on the board of Trade today despite some last minute buying which gave the market a good lift from its earlier bottoms.

Rye showed independent firmness, as it did mast of last week, and oats had a relatively steady undertone. These were the only two exceptions, however, to the general trend. Closing prices:

"The Authority on Authorities"

REVERSE OF A HOLD-UP

MANY good players have never realized the fundamental difference between the two plays known as "the hold-up" and "the duck." They are alike in that the holder of a card high enough to win the current trick deliberately plays low and lets the other side have it, retaining the card to win a later trick. They are diametrically different in purpose, however. The hold-up is to prevent the opponents from running a suit, whereas the duck is to enable your own side to run its suit.

Ben. J. Sackheim, president of the Stronghold Screw Products Company of Chicago and head of the International Screwball Society, is no screwball at either business or bridge. He gave on this deal an ideal example of effective use of "the duck" by a defender. It was in one of the great tournaments on the luxury liner Independence during its gala maiden cruise in the Mediterranean, and helped his pair win.

He sat in the West and led the heart 7, on which East put the 10, South winning with the K. The declarer counted tricks and decided he needed some in diamonds, so led the 3 to the J, the K winning. Back came the heart 6, on which South put the Q. Here was the crisis. But Mr. Sackheim thought clearly, having seen East's 6 lead, and reckoned either the 5 or 3 would still be in his partner's hand. So he let South win, playing the 2. When the diamond A won the Q on the next trick, East returned the heart 3, and the resulting three heart tricks beat the contract. Note that, if Mr. Sackheim had won the second heart trick, his hand would have been dead and South would have lost only two diamonds and a club. Also note that South, by playing low on either the first or second heart lead, would have assured his contract. He also could have done it by attacking clubs instead of diamonds, giving up an early one and using the duck himself.

Many other examples of good bidding and play were given in the games on the Good Ship Independence during its epochal voyage as the greatest of all American peace ships. They will be unveiled here from time to time.

Market Average Declines Due To Late Selling Flurry

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP)—A flurry of late selling today gave the stock market its first average setback in nearly a week.

Special targets were some of the railroads, oils and chemicals, which had led early trading with gains ranging to more than $2 a share. Many of these advances were trimmed or turned into declines. And the unsettlement pushed other sections of the market into lower ground.

Except for the favorites, stock prices right from the start showed no inclination to resume last week's rise. But at the same time urgent selling pressure was lacking.

The Associated Press 60-stock average dropped 20 cents at $95.90. Industrials and utilities were unchanged, rails declined 60 cents.

Of the 1,124 issues traded in a relatively narrow market, there were 524 on the down side while 384 closed higher, 64 of these touching new 1951 highs. About 25 stocks reached new lows for the year.

Major news development of the day was President Truman's dispatching to Congress a defense budget of more than $60 billions, with his estimates that expenditures in the current and following fiscal year would be slightly under previous figures. Wall Street noted his statement that the budget aimed at a preparedness level "well within our ability to maintain for many years, if necessary."

Brokers pointed out that some sort of "breathing spell" was to be expected in trading after last week's push to within striking distance of the highest price average in the last 21 years.

And just as they cited the expansion of trading of recent sessions as evidence of trading viewed as encouraging to those looking for an upward trend.

Total transactions dropped to 1,790,000 shares, compared with 2,120,000 on Friday, the previous full day.

REVERSE OF A HOLD-UP

MANY good players have never realized the fundamental difference between the two plays known as "the hold-up" and "the duck." They are alike in that the holder of a card high enough to win the current trick deliberately plays low and lets the other side have it, retaining the card to win a later trick. They are diametrically different in purpose, however. The hold-up is to prevent the opponents from running a suit, whereas the duck is to enable your own side to run its suit.

Ben. J. Sackheim, president of the Stronghold Screw Products Company of Chicago and head of the International Screwball Society, is no screwball at either business or bridge. He gave on this deal an ideal example of effective use of "the duck" by a defender. It was in one of the great tournaments on the luxury liner Independence during its gala maiden cruise in the Mediterranean, and helped his pair win.

He sat in the West and led the heart 7, on which East put the 10, South winning with the K. The declarer counted tricks and decided he needed some in diamonds, so led the 3 to the J, the K winning. Back came the heart 6, on which South put the Q. Here was the crisis. But Mr. Sackheim thought clearly, having seen East's 6 lead, and reckoned either the 5 or 3 would still be in his partner's hand. So he let South win, playing the 2. When the diamond A won the Q on the next trick, East returned the heart 3, and the resulting three heart tricks beat the contract. Note that, if Mr. Sackheim had won the second heart trick, his hand would have been dead and South would have lost only two diamonds and a club. Also note that South, by playing low on either the first or second heart lead, would have assured his contract. He also could have done it by attacking clubs instead of diamonds, giving up an early one and using the duck himself.

Many other examples of good bidding and play were given in the games on the Good Ship Independence during its epochal voyage as the greatest of all American peace ships. They will be unveiled here from time to time.

Had Sought $10,000 From LaVale Crash

A Silver Spring woman, who had filed suit for $10,000 damages, yesterday was awarded only a $500 verdict by a jury in Allegany County Circuit Court.

The woman's husband, who at the same time filed a $2,500 as a result of a traffic accident on or about last December 3 on National Highway at LaVale, received nothing.

Mrs. Frances Davis, who lives at 2311 Homestead Drive, Silver Spring, had filed suit February 15 against Robert F. Mackert,533 Greene Street. In the declaration, filed by Cumberland Attorney Milton Gerson, Mrs. Davis charged the defendant's automobile, which was headed west on Route 40 at LaVale, suddenly and without warning swung to the center of the highway and then instantly made a right turn, without signalling, striking Mrs.' Davis' husband's car, which had been following Mackert. In the petition, Mrs. Davis, who was a passenger in her husband's car, contends she was painfully and permanently injured.

At the time Gerson filed the suit for Mrs. Davis he also filed a $2,500 suit on behalf of her husband, Gerald W. Davis. This was for loss of his wife's services and for damage to his automobile.

Mackert, on April 10, through Attorney W. Earle Cobey filed a cross-claim against Davis for $500 damage to his automobile. Mackert contended he was driving properly and that Davis tried to pass his automobile without giving any warning signal.

Attorneys yesterday agreed to consolidate the two suits for a single trial. Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris ordered a directed verdict for the defendant, Mackert, in Davis' $2,500 suit. The jury returned a verdict for $500 for Mrs. Davis in her $10,000 suit and a verdict for her husband in the $500 cross-claim.

Sulphur Kills Fish And Plant Life; May Affect Industries

One of the most noticeable cases of pollution of the Potomac River by mine water was reported this week by residents in the Kitzmiller area.

Sportsmen and miners there, noticing that the river, for the first time in their memory, had turned into a nasty yellowish sulphur color, and was giving off a sulphuric odor, some of them traveled toward headwaters to investigate.

They report that the water is flowing from the abandoned Kempton mining operation, coming from the mouth of the mines and a large bore hole, in great quantities.

These men express the view that since the mines was abandoned, pumps and other machinery removed, the opening has filled with water and it has now broken out to pollute the river.

Fishing Is Ruined

Laurel Run, for all practical fishing purposes is ruined, they report. Known as one of the best trout streams in Garrett County, sportsmen report many large trout floating dead in the water, killed by the pollution.

Men familiar with the area explain that the mine water formerly was pumped out on the other side of the mountain, but with the removal of the pumping equipment, the mine has filled, and several other operations are draining into it. The overflow gushes out to pollute Laurel Run and the Potomac.

The polluted, discolored condition is noticeable along the stream for 50 miles or more. It gradually disappears just above Piedmont, so far as appearance is concerned, but industrial officials along the river say "greater quantities of sulphur have been noticed recently."

More Sludge Noticed

At the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Mill Company in Luke, Julian Patrick said they had noticed less fluctuation in the pollution in the past couple of weeks, and also noted a high sulphur and sludge content in the water, but did not know the cause. He said he was grateful for the information, and the situation would be checked to determine if it will damage their filter plant, etc.

Other plants along the river which use quantities of the water also report noticing greater pollution but had no information on the cause.

George M. Hitchcock, a member of the Upper Potomac River Board, and superintendent of the city's water supply, when informed of the situation declared, "immediate steps should be taken to correct such a condition. High sulphur content will destroy all life in the stream and along the banks. Pollution of so great an extent," he added, "would affect all of the major industries along the Upper Potomac."

Plant Life Dies

Foliage along the stream in the area below Kitzmiller to the mine, has been affected. Plant life close to the water's edge is dying. Rocks are so yellow they look like huge chunks of gold. The fish are gone. There is a slippery, smelly sludge all through the stream and along the banks.

This section of the Potomac for many years was about the cleanest and least polluted for several generations, although some mine water poured into it. But miners and sportsmen in the area say they cannot recall when the stream was polluted as badly as it is now.

School Maintenance Men To Continue Problem Study

Maintenance supervisors of county public school systems in the state have departed from Western Maryland with plans to study various phases of their mutual problems, Joseph T. Downey, supervisor of maintenance in the Allegany County school system, said yesterday.

Fifteen maintenance supervisors from 10 Maryland counties met Friday in the Allegany County Board of Education building on Washington Street. That night they went to New Germany Recreation Area in Garrett County and spent considerable time Saturday in discussions.

Downey, who is chairman of the organization of maintenance supervisors, said that the group, still without an official name, decided to meet next in Towson May 26. At that time plans will be made for a four-day workshop to be held the week of June 25 at Towson State Teachers College. Chief goal of the workshop is the establishment of a training program for custodial help within each Maryland county.

Between now and the Towson meeting, the supervisors also plan to study such problems as organization of building care, heating and ventilation control, housekeeping and building and equipment repairs. A two-man team will study each problem.

Besides Downey those who attended the meetings in Allegany and Garrett Counties were Dwight Jacobus, State Department of Education; William Willis, Jr., Ian Gordon, Jack Bauer, all Baltimore County; Russell Kepler, Washington County; Thomas Graser, Garrett County; Lewis Eaden, Frederick County; J. P. Grabarkewitz and George Barcel, Montgomery County; Frank Baker and J. M. Dennis, Anne Arundel County; Stewart Weidner, Carroll County; William Fink, Talbott County; Arthur Robinson and Armand Biscontini, both Prince Georges County.

City Refuses Wrecking Lot Permit Request

Business Termed In Violation Of Code

The Mayor and Council last night turned down an application for the location of an auto wrecking lot on Sylvan Avenue.

On the recommendation of Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, the application of C. R. Jones to operate a business involving "auto wrecking and buying and selling scrap metals" at 722 Sylvan Avenue was refused.

The action was taken on grounds that the presence of the business is in violation of the City Code and Zoning Ordinance No. 1776.

The Mayor and Council also ruled that the granting of a license to David Miller to operate a yard at 1415 River Avenue be refused until terms of an occupancy permit are met.

Mrs. Roeder reported that investigation disclosed that Miller is occupying more space than his occupancy permit allows.

The city officials also ruled that a fence should be built around the auto supply property before a new license is granted.

Two $5,000 Suits Filed In Court

Two $5,000 suits, both growing out of accidents which occurred last Christmas weekend, have been filed in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Mrs. Lillian M. May, Bowman's Addition, filed suit through Attorney Thomas N. Berry against John Weaver, 201 Columbia Street. Mrs. May, who was a passenger in an automobile driven west on Henderson Avenue by her husband, Albert Ira May, the night of December 23, charged that Weaver left his truck parked along Henderson Avenue at the intersection with Polk Street without warning lights. She further contended that the body of the truck extended into the west-bound traffic lane on Henderson Avenue. Her injuries included multiple contusions, and lacerations about the head, face, throat and other parts of her body.

In the other $5,000 suit, Roy C. Wilson, local barber, sued, Harry Winfield and Mrs. Marion Winfield, both of Zihlman.

Attorney William H. Geppert, who filed the suit for Wilson, cited that he was walking in the cross-walk across Bedford Street at its intersection with North Mechanic Street on or about December 24. Wilson alleged that he was seriously and painfully injured and was unable to earn a living as a barber as a result of a broken left leg. He cited that he was struck by an automobile driven by Harry Winfield and owned by Mrs. Winfield, his mother.

Railroad Asks City Approval For Expansion

Long Range Program Outlined At Council Session Last Night

Plans for extensive improvements of the Thomas Street area as the first step in a long-range improvements for the Cumberland terminal were disclosed last night by officials of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company.

The total cost of the project, estimated at about $75,000 for construction and another $100,000 for property, will be met by the company, according to U. S. Holden, senior assistant engineer for the railroad.

Details of the plans were related when railroad officials asked the Mayor and Council to approve an agreement involving the plan for relocating Thomas Street and the elimination of two death curves along the main artery.

Eliminates Curves

William A. Gunter, who worked out the agreement with City Attorney W. Earle Cobey, said the project will result in the relocation of Thomas Street with a 40 foot width, the elimination of two bad curves and at the same time will allow the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to straighten out and expand its tracks in that area.

He added the agreement provides that all cost of the work will be borne by the B. and O., with the city getting a modern street free.

Holden pointed out that all of the plans have been prepared under the supervision of the City Engineer.

He said the Thomas Street project is the first step in the company's long range plans for Cumberland, one of the major terminals of the company, and the project will allow more room for expansion in the yards in that area.

He added that most of the land needed for the project has been purchased.

Prepare Agreement

The tentative agreement points out that the City desires to eliminate the sharp curves on Thomas Street which constitute traffic hazards while the railroad desires to widen its right of way in the Thomas Street area in order to make improvements in the alignment of tracks. In so doing, the railroad will require additional land, including city owned land on Thomas Street, West Third Street and High Street.

A construction plan for the relocation of Thomas Street was approved by the Mayor and City Engineer on March 30.

The proposed agreemant points out that it is advantageous to the city and the railroad to exchange certain properties owned by each in order to accomplish the desired improvements.

The railroad will cause to be conveyed to the city specific areas to be used for relocating Thomas Street, thereby eliminating the sharp curves on the present Thomas Street.

Must Pass Ordinance

In connection with the plan, the Railroad has made application for the passage of an ordinance for the closing of certain portions of Thomas Street, West Third Street and all of High Street, the closing of three alleys and the relocation of needed portions of Thomas Street.

The city has indicated its willingness to enact the preliminary ordinance, but has requested the railroad to enter into a written agreement on terms of the improvements.

The agreement would provide that when certain properties on Thomas Street, West Third Street and High Street owned by the city are conveyed without cost to the railroad, the railroad will convey, without cost, to the city, all lands needed to relocate the street.

It points out that the railroad has not yet acquired certain lands needed between West Second Street and West Third Street and between West Third Street and the intersection of Crawford Street with Thomas Street.

Railroad Pays Costs

The B. and O. would agree, under the pact, to again enter into negotiations with the property owners to secure necessary rights of ways. In the event the railroad fails to reach an amicable agreement with the property owners, the city, when requested, would secure these properties under Sections 127 and 128 of

Had Sought $10,000 From LaVale Crash

A Silver Spring woman, who had filed suit for $10,000 damages, yesterday was awarded only a $500 verdict by a jury in Allegany County Circuit Court.

The woman's husband, who at the same time filed a $2,500 as a result of a traffic accident on or about last December 3 on National Highway at LaVale, received nothing.

Mrs. Frances Davis, who lives at 2311 Homestead Drive, Silver Spring, had filed suit February 15 against Robert F. Mackert, 533 Greene Street. In the declaration, filed by Cumberland Attorney Milton Gerson, Mrs. Davis charged the defendant's automobile, which was headed west on Route 40 at LaVale, suddenly and without warning swung to the center of the highway and then instantly made a right turn, without signalling, striking Mrs.' Davis' husband's car, which had been following Mackert. In the petition, Mrs. Davis, who was a passenger in her husband's car, contends she was painfully and permanently injured.

At the time Gerson filed the suit for Mrs. Davis he also filed a $2,500 suit on behalf of her husband, Gerald W. Davis. This was for loss of his wife's services and for damage to his automobile.

Mackert, on April 10, through Attorney W. Earle Cobey filed a cross-claim against Davis for $500 damage to his automobile. Mackert contended he was driving properly and that Davis tried to pass his automobile without giving any warning signal.

Attorneys yesterday agreed to consolidate the two suits for a single trial. Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris ordered a directed verdict for the defendant, Mackert, in Davis' $2,500 suit. The jury returned a verdict for $500 for Mrs. Davis in her $10,000 suit and a verdict for her husband in the $500 cross-claim.

Sulphur Kills Fish And Plant Life; May Affect Industries

One of the most noticeable cases of pollution of the Potomac River by mine water was reported this week by residents in the Kitzmiller area.

Sportsmen and miners there, noticing that the river, for the first time in their memory, had turned into a nasty yellowish sulphur color, and was giving off a sulphuric odor, some of them traveled toward headwaters to investigate.

They report that the water is flowing from the abandoned Kempton mining operation, coming from the mouth of the mines and a large bore hole, in great quantities.

These men express the view that since the mines was abandoned, pumps and other machinery removed, the opening has filled with water and it has now broken out to pollute the river.

Fishing Is Ruined

Laurel Run, for all practical fishing purposes is ruined, they report. Known as one of the best trout streams in Garrett County, sportsmen report many large trout floating dead in the water, killed by the pollution.

Men familiar with the area explain that the mine water formerly was pumped out on the other side of the mountain, but with the removal of the pumping equipment, the mine has filled, and several other operations are draining into it. The overflow gushes out to pollute Laurel Run and the Potomac.

The polluted, discolored condition is noticeable along the stream for 50 miles or more. It gradually disappears just above Piedmont, so far as appearance is concerned, but industrial officials along the river say "greater quantities of sulphur have been noticed recently."

More Sludge Noticed

At the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Mill Company in Luke, Julian Patrick said they had noticed less fluctuation in the pollution in the past couple of weeks, and also noted a high sulphur and sludge content in the water, but did not know the cause. He said he was grateful for the information, and the situation would be checked to determine if it will damage their filter plant, etc.

Other plants along the river which use quantities of the water also report noticing greater pollution but had no information on the cause.

George M. Hitchcock, a member of the Upper Potomac River Board, and superintendent of the city's water supply, when informed of the situation declared, "immediate steps should be taken to correct such a condition. High sulphur content will destroy all life in the stream and along the banks. Pollution of so great an extent," he added, "would affect all of the major industries along the Upper Potomac."

Plant Life Dies

Foliage along the stream in the area below Kitzmiller to the mine, has been affected. Plant life close to the water's edge is dying. Rocks are so yellow they look like huge chunks of gold. The fish are gone. There is a slippery, smelly sludge all through the stream and along the banks.

This section of the Potomac for many years was about the cleanest and least polluted for several generations, although some mine water poured into it. But miners and sportsmen in the area say they cannot recall when the stream was polluted as badly as it is now.

Two Shops Rent New Locations

The Jack 'n Jill Shop, located at 16 South Liberty Street for the past four years, will move to a modern building recently constructed at 18 North Centre Street. New type display cases for clothing will be introduced in Cumberland at the new store.

Curl's Camera Shop, which has been located at 35 North Liberty Street, since December 17, 1945, will also move to the same building.

A third store room as yet has not been rented. The building was started the beginning of this year and completion is expected during this month. The Frater Realty Corp., New York City, is constructing the modern building on Centre Street.

School Maintenance Men To Continue Problem Study

Maintenance supervisors of county public school systems in the state have departed from Western Maryland with plans to study various phases of their mutual problems, Joseph T. Downey, supervisor of maintenance in the Allegany County school system, said yesterday.

Fifteen maintenance supervisors from 10 Maryland counties met Friday in the Allegany County Board of Education building on Washington Street. That night they went to New Germany Recreation Area in Garrett County and spent considerable time Saturday in discussions.

Downey, who is chairman of the organization of maintenance supervisors, said that the group, still without an official name, decided to meet next in Towson May 26. At that time plans will be made for a four-day workshop to be held the week of June 25 at Towson State Teachers College. Chief goal of the workshop is the establishment of a training program for custodial help within each Maryland county.

Between now and the Towson meeting, the supervisors also plan to study such problems as organization of building care, heating and ventilation control, housekeeping and building and equipment repairs. A two-man team will study each problem.

Besides Downey those who attended the meetings in Allegany and Garrett Counties were Dwight Jacobus, State Department of Education; William Willis, Jr., Ian Gordon, Jack Bauer, all Baltimore County; Russell Kepler, Washington County; Thomas Graser, Garrett County; Lewis Eaden, Frederick County; J. P. Grabarkewitz and George Barcel, Montgomery County; Frank Baker and J. M. Dennis, Anne Arundel County; Stewart Weidner, Carroll County; William Fink, Talbott County; Arthur Robinson and Armand Biscontini, both Prince Georges County.

City Refuses Wrecking Lot Permit Request

Business Termed In Violation Of Code

The Mayor and Council last night turned down an application for the location of an auto wrecking lot on Sylvan Avenue.

On the recommendation of Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, the application of C. R. Jones to operate a business involving "auto wrecking and buying and selling scrap metals" at 722 Sylvan Avenue was refused.

The action was taken on grounds that the presence of the business is in violation of the City Code and Zoning Ordinance No. 1776.

The Mayor and Council also ruled that the granting of a license to David Miller to operate a yard at 1415 River Avenue be refused until terms of an occupancy permit are met.

Mrs. Roeder reported that investigation disclosed that Miller is occupying more space than his occupancy permit allows.

The city officials also ruled that a fence should be built around the auto supply property before a new license is granted.

Two $5,000 Suits Filed In Court

Two $5,000 suits, both growing out of accidents which occurred last Christmas weekend, have been filed in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Mrs. Lillian M. May, Bowman's Addition, filed suit through Attorney Thomas N. Berry against John Weaver, 201 Columbia Street. Mrs. May, who was a passenger in an automobile driven west on Henderson Avenue by her husband, Albert Ira May, the night of December 23, charged that Weaver left his truck parked along Henderson Avenue at the intersection with Polk Street without warning lights. She further contended that the body of the truck extended into the west-bound traffic lane on Henderson Avenue. Her injuries included multiple contusions, and lacerations about the head, face, throat and other parts of her body.

In the other $5,000 suit, Roy C. Wilson, local barber, sued, Harry Winfield and Mrs. Marion Winfield, both of Zihlman.

Attorney William H. Geppert, who filed the suit for Wilson, cited that he was walking in the crosswalk across Bedford Street at its intersection with North Mechanic Street on or about December 24. Wilson alleged that he was seriously and painfully injured and was unable to earn a living as a barber as a result of a broken left leg. He cited that he was struck by an automobile driven by Harry Winfield and owned by Mrs. Winfield, his mother.

Railroad Asks City Approval For Expansion

Long Range Program Outlined At Council Session Last Night

Plans for extensive improvements of the Thomas Street area as the first step in a long-range improvements for the Cumberland terminal were disclosed last night by officials of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company.

The total cost of the project, estimated at about $75,000 for construction and another $100,000 for property, will be met by the company, according to U. S. Holden, senior assistant engineer for the railroad.

Details of the plans were related when railroad officials asked the Mayor and Council to approve an agreement involving the plan for relocating Thomas Street and the elimination of two death curves along the main artery.

Eliminates Curves

William A. Gunter, who worked out the agreement with City Attorney W. Earle Cobey, said the project will result in the relocation of Thomas Street with a 40 foot width, the elimination of two bad curves and at the same time will allow the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to straighten out and expand its tracks in that area.

He added the agreement provides that all cost of the work will be borne by the B. and O., with the city getting a modern street free.

He said the Thomas Street project is the first step in the company's long range plans for Cumberland, one of the major terminals of the company, and the project will allow more room for expansion in the yards in that area.

He added that most of the land needed for the project has been purchased.

Prepare Agreement

The tentative agreement points out that the City desires to eliminate the sharp curves on Thomas Street which constitute traffic hazards while the railroad desires to widen its right of way in the Thomas Street area in order to make improvements in the alignment of tracks. In so doing, the railroad will require additional land, including city owned land on Thomas Street, West Third Street and High Street.

A construction plan for the relocation of Thomas Street was approved by the Mayor and City Engineer on March 30.

The proposed agreemant points out that it is advantageous to the city and the railroad to exchange certain properties owned by each in order to accomplish the desired improvements.

The railroad will cause to be conveyed to the city specific areas to be used for relocating Thomas Street, thereby eliminating the sharp curves on the present Thomas Street.

Must Pass Ordinance

In connection with the plan, the Railroad has made application for the passage of an ordinance for the closing of certain portions of Thomas Street, West Third Street and all of High Street, the closing of three alleys and the relocation of needed portions of Thomas Street.

The city has indicated its willingness to enact the preliminary ordinance, but has requested the railroad to enter into a written agreement on terms of the improvements.

The agreement would provide that when certain properties on Thomas Street, West Third Street and High Street owned by the city are conveyed without cost to the railroad, the railroad will convey, without cost, to the city, all lands needed to relocate the street.

It points out that the railroad has not yet acquired certain lands needed between West Second Street and West Third Street and between West Third Street and the intersection of Crawford Street with Thomas Street.

Railroad Pays Costs

The B. and O. would agree, under the pact, to again enter into negotiations with the property owners to secure necessary rights of ways. In the event the railroad fails to reach an amicable agreement with the property owners, the city, when requested, would secure these properties under Sections 127 and 128 of
